Godoy Stays Limit With Louis, but Loses Fight

Fans Boo Decision; Chilean's Crouching Bothers Champion as 16,000 See Action

By the Associated Press

Madison Square Garden, Feb. 9.—Joe Louis successfully dedended his world heavyweight championship tonight by outpointing Arturo Godoy, of Chile, in a hard, crowding fight in 15 rounds before a crowd of about 16,000 fans in Madison Square Garden.

A chorus of boos greeted the decision, but it was just one for Louis landed most of the punishing blows, although he was baffled at times and was hurt on more than one occasion by Godoy's crowding, crouching style and hard lefts to the head and body.

Surprisingly the champion, who thus defended his crown for the ninth time, failed to score a knockdown against the 10 to 1 shot, who in pre-fight opinion had been figured to last les sthan ten rounds.

Louis came on in the last five rounds, after being held even over the first ten, to take the decision.

The crowd was announced as 15,857, and the gross gate as $88,523.89.

In the crowd were many prominent Chileans, headed by Consul General Anibal Jara. The Chilean Embassy at Washington was represented by its first secretary, Mario Rodriguez, Senor Avilado Silva and the aviation attache, Capt. Saracua. Officers and 75 crew members from the Chilean ship Acancagua also were present, hoping to see Godoy become the first South American heavlweight champion of the world.

The champion scaled 203 pounds and Arturo, 202.

Joe Matisi, 194, Binghamton, N. Y., won the decision over Henry Moroz, 188, Scranton, Pa., after a bruising battle in which Matisi's hard hooks to Moroz lofty head turned the trick.

Jimmy Webb, a hard-hitting newcomer from Texas scored a technical knockout over Jimmy Smith, of New York, at 1:16 of the first round in the initial six-rounder. Webb floored Smith three times with righthand shots to the head before the referee intervened.

Another quick knockout followed, when Leroy Evans, lanky Negro from Buffalo, N. Y., put Jarl Johnsen, of Norway, down for the court at 43 seconds of the first round.

House Passes Ramspeck Bill, Shuts Out D. C.

Employes From States Over Quotas Denied Promotion, Transfer

The House yesterday passed the Ramspeck civil service extension bill but with an amendment which it is believed will deny all of its benefits to Federal employes here whose original residences were in the District, Maryland and Virginia.

In fact, according to Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, the bill's author, the amendment will "freeze" into their present jobs, and prohibit the promotion, transfer or reappointment of Government workers from those areas who do not now have civil service status.

The bill contemplated extending the civil service system to about 300,000 Government workers, of whom about 35,000 are in Washington.

Of the 35,000, however, only those who came to Washington from States now underapportioned will obtain any benefits, as the law now stands. Although the rest would not necessarily lose their jobs, it would appear that they would be worse off than before.

Vote on passage of the bill was 214 to 110.

Ramspeck admitted that he was unable to estimate the consequences of the amendment, but said he did not beljeve the fundamental purpose of the legislation.

At the Civil Service Commission, however, officials last night confessed they could not see how the

Senate Confirms Edwards; Chavez Scores Outsiders

The nomination of Paul Edwards, of New York, as District WPA administrator was confirmed by the Senate yesterday.

Senator Chavez (Democrat), of New Mexico, told the Senate that while he would not object to Edwards' confirmation, he would oppose all future appointments of outsiders to District positions.

Asks Better Deal For Unfortunates; Favors Suffrage

The eyes and ears of the Nation were turned toward the District and its welfare institutions yesterday as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made a plea on Capitol Hill for better treatment of indigent aged and unfortunate children as an example to the country, and tacitly approved suffrage for the District.

For the first time in the history of the Republic the wife of a President testified before a Congressional committee.

As the first witness before a House subcommittee headed by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, Mrs. Roosevelt climaxed her recitals of visits to the District's Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains, the Children's Receiving Home, and the Industrial Home School with the comment:

"I came away from Blue Plains with the feeling that if in the United States this is our conception of how to care for the aged, we are at a pretty low ebb of civilization." Radio and newsreel picked up her words.

Tacitly Indorses Suffrage

Mrs. Roosevelt made no definite recommendation to the subcommittee, but in response to questions of committeemen she tacitly indorsed local suffrage as a means of placing responsibility for conditions which she deplored.

Answering an inquiry of Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"I have finally come to the conclusion that perhaps there should be, whether full suffrage or partial suffrage, I do not know, but that there should be something done along these lines to remove the excuse which is given, I find, for taxation without representation.

"I also am quite familiar with the fact that many communities in this country which have suffrage do not clean up the conditions in their communities, and it might not have any bearing whatsoever on the ultimate things that would happen in the District.

"But I begin to think that perhaps there is a possible excuse for lack of responsibility, and it might be of advantage to get it out of the way, but I am not an expert on government, certainly not the government of the District."

Garner Files In Race, Forces 3d-Term Issue

Illinois Candidacy Desgined to Make Roosevelt Answer

By Robert C. Albright,
Post Staff Writer

In a move obviously designed to force the President to show his hand on the third-term issue, Vice President Garner yesterday entered his name in the Illinois preferential primary for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

President Roosevelt's name previously had been filed in the Illinois race by Chicago third-term advocates, but lacked a declaration signed by the President.

The Garner petition, carrying about 4,900 signatures, was filed with a formal declaration of candidacy signed by the Vice President.

Close friends of the Vice President here said they believed Garner was determined to bring the President out on the third-term question before the April Illinois primaries, and believed his primary declaration would aid in the process.

While the Illinois certification board has never formally decided whether State statutes require a signed statement from the candidate, officials of the board have indicated they would rule the President need not sign one.

Requirement at Issue

But in filing the Garner petition, Julius F. Smietanka, Chicago attorney and collector of internal revenue in that city under the Wilson Administration, declared a sworn certificate of candidacy was "provided by law and custom in Illinois."

"We have made every effort to conform with the Illinois statutes which have in the past been construed as requiring the personal ex-

Red Dead Sprawled ByThousands inSnow After Night-Long Karelian Assault

By Thomas F. Hawkins.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Helsinki (Saturday), Feb. 10. Russia hurled her troops against the Mannerheim Line throughout Friday night in such great numbers that the Finns reported early today they were resorting to bayonets and hand grenades because of temporary exhaustion of ammunition.

Finnish advices from the front said Red army dead, running into the thousands, were sprawled in the snows in front of the line and that hundreds of wounded were left to die because of an apparent breakdown in the Russian transportation system in the rear.

The central section of the isthmus front, between Punnunioki and Panuri, bore the brunt of the fighting, and the Finns asserted the Russians had lost more than 700 men as they battered unsuccessfully against the line's outer fortifications with tanks, artillery and planes.

Heavy Russian losses also were reported by the Finns in the Summa sector, at the western end of the line, and along the Taipale River on the eastern flank, where Red army thrusts were reported turned back.

40 Tanks Captured

Despite these setbacks, the Finns said, the Russians still were attacking along the entire length of the front.

As usual, the Finns made no estimate of their own losses on the isthmus or in the sector northeast of Lake Ladoga, where they said they had captured "a powerfully manned enemy firing point" and improved positions near Kuhmo. Bitter fighting was continuing in this sector, too.

The nightly communique said 40 Russian tanks had been captured in yesterday's fighting. Twenty-one of these were reported destroyed on the isthmus front.

Finn Planes Active

Far northern advices said the Russians had been repulsed in an attempt to capture the Arctic town of Hoyhenjarvi, 60 miles south of Petsamo. Finnish patrols then penetrated the Russian lines and reached Salmijarvi, nickel mining area midway between Petsamo and Hoyhenjarvi.

Finnish officials firmly denied reports the Mannerheim Line had been punctured at any point, and said it was holding up against all assaults. A Russian communique last night said attacks on the line had resulted in the capture of 13 forts.

Increased activity of the Finnish air force was indicated by the high command, which reported the bombing of "several enemy motor columns and concentrations of troops in the war area."

The communique added tersely: "Enemy fighter planes disturbed the work of our forces."

The opening session of the American Youth Congress, attended by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was thrown into an uproar last night youths, who attempted to introduce anti-communism resolutions were forcibly ejected from the meeting in Departmental Auditorium.

Department of Labor guards grabbed Stephen McArthur, who said he was a Young Democrat from Kearney, N. J., when he interrupted the speech of Jack McMichael, Congress chairman, to read a resolution. He began to read a resolution "condemning rape of Finland by Soviet Russia."

He was ruled out of order and was hustled down the aisle as delegates booed and hissed.

The second man removed by attendants was Peter M. Tropea, another young Democrat, of Jersey City, who tried to introduce the same resolution.

In the midst of the near riot, Archibald D. Roosevelt, a grandson of Theodore Roosevelt, who was seated eight seats away from Mrs. Roosevelt but not in her party rose and left the hall.

Young Roosevelt leads the delegation to which McArthur and Tropea belong, and attempted unsuccesfully to get recognition on the floor when his friends got into trouble.

As Tropea was being thrown from the hall he yelled: "and you talk about the right of free speech and you won't let me talk in a Government auditorium."

Chairman McMichael in his address assailed the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities for suggesting that we deny the bill of rights to certain young people."

Mrs. Roosevelt sat calmly throughout the ejection procedings.

Later the delegates heard Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, the principal speaker, defend the American Youth Congress, branded by the Dies Committee as a Communist Front. He assailed the Republican Party and asserted the courts had "reduced the national Government to its lowest efficiency" up to 1936.

As the delegates assembled here last night they learned that President Roosevelt might discuss the question of communist membership in the A. Y. C. today.

Asked at his press conference yesterday whether he thought non-Communist groups should expel

Boy Aided by Six Transfusions Shows Need of Blood Bank

A 10-year-old boy who was pronounced near death when he was admitted to Children's Hospital January 7 happily awaited his discharge yesterday.

Skillful surgery, abetted by six blood transfusions and tender nursing care, plucked Jimmy Wilkins from the very brink og the grave, said hospital attaches. It was a victory for the blood bank as much as for any other service, they added.

Suffering from empyema, a complication of pneumonia, when he was brought to the hospital five weeks ago tomorrow, Jimmy was placed on the danger list immediately. His breathing was labored and the pain intense.

A rib section was perforated to permit drainage of his chest. Jimmy lost a considerable amount of blood in this operation. An immediate transfusion was imperative. The outcome might have been fatal had there been a long wait for volunteer donors, each needing to be typed.

But all that is unnecessary in hospitals having blood banks. Luckily, Children's is one of them. It was only a matter of minutes until Jimmy was transfused because all four types of blood always are on hand in the "bank."

A few days ago the boy had his sixth transfusion. He has received two and a half pints of fresh blood and the effect is visible in his cheerful, pain-free face. Dr. C. Francis Scalessa, chief resident, said Jimmy will be discharged in a couple of weeks.

To keep that life-saving blood bank going, help pay the salaries of the nurses and technicians who operate it and have available at all times a complete stock of serums and antitoxin as well as blood is the purpose of the Valentine parties which are being held this month under sponsorship of The Post and Station WJSV.

Several large benefits have already been held, including those of

U. S. Sounds Neutrals On Peace; Welles Sent To See Belligerents

Picture of Conditions Is Visit's Object; Hull Seeks to Map Postwar Economy

By William V. Nessly

The United States yesterday embarked on two distinct and concededly highly important steps concerned with ultimate restoration of peace and order in the world.

President Roosevelt announced that he is sending Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles to Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain to ascertain and report on "present conditions in Europe."

Secretary of State Hull made known that this country has commenced informal conversations with other neutral governments dealing with conditions after the war's end, and relating especially to "a sound international economic system" and "world-wide reduction of armaments."

These moves, separate yet certain to cross and recross each other as current conditions in the world are explored, were said officially to be closely intertwined with the President's eager desire to further the coming of peace whenever such a condition is practicable.

Warns Against Speculation

Announcing Welles' trip at his press conference yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt cautioned reporters against any speculation dealing with it.

He gave the newsmen copies of a statement reading:

"At the request of the President, the Undersecretary of State, Mr. Sumner Welles, will proceed shortly to Europe to visit Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain. This visit is solely for the purpose of advising the President nad the Secretary of State as to present conditions in Europe.

"Mr. Welles will, of course, be authorized to make n oproposals or commitments in the name of the Government of the United States.

"Furthermore, statements made to him by officials of governments will be kept in the strictest confidence and will be communicated by him solely to the President and the Secretary of State."

Hull May Extend Talks

Hull's statement, issued two hours later, read:

"It is announced by the Secretary of State that in view of existing hostilities in many parts of the world, in view of the effect of such hostilities on the neutral nations of the world and in view of the evident desire of all neutral nations for the eventual restoration of world peace on a sound and lasting basis for all nations, diplomatic conversations of an informal character have been commenced with neutral governments and will probably be continued with all neutral governments.

"It should be emphasized that these conversations involve no plan or plans but are in the nature of preliminary inquiries relating to a sound international economic system and, at the same time, world-wide reduction of armaments. Matters involving present war conditions are not a part of these preliminary conversationus. These conversations can, of course, be extended to belligerent nations in so far as they involve these two common problems of future peace."

Despite the President's cautiousness in seeking to avoid speculation on Welles' trip, there was an inclination in some circles to consider that it constituted possible opening of a channel for peace should suitable conditions for such a de-

500 Czech Leaders Reported In 'Protective Custody' of Nazis

Thruhlar, Samal, 120 Former Army Officers, Seized by Germany to Guarantee Order Mostly Residents of Prague, Among Those

By the Associated Press

Prague, Feb. 9.—Reliable authorities said tonight that German authorities had placed between 500 and 600 leading Czech personalities in "protective custody."

Prominent among those arrested were Joseph Thruhlar, leader of the Sokol organization (National Czech Patriotic Movement); Prenysl Samal, former chancellor of Czecho-Slovakia under the presidency of Han Masaryk, and approximately 120 former Czech army officers, mostly residents of Prague.

The action was interpreted in the protectorate's political circles as a measure intended to guarantee order.

Berlin, Feb. 9 (AP).—Hans Frank, Governor General of German-occupied Poland, told 150 correspondents here tonight that Poland never before has been ruled with as much consideration for the social and material welfare of the Polish people.

Germany took over the state at the brink of bankruptcy, he said, and created a region of "economic sovereignty" which faces a promising future.

Frank submitted to a crossfire of questions and himself reviewed charges from abroad against his administration in Poland.

He denied quietly that he was "shooting priests, sterilizing Polish children, torturing Jews or executing students by the thousands."

"Such fantastic accusations merely can make a philosopher smile," he remarked.

Turks Charge Sabotage Plot, Oust 100 Nazis

German Technicians Given 48 Hours To Leave Country

By the Associated Press

Istanbul, Feb. 9.—Turkey today struck her second blow in as many days against Germans, her allies of the World War, in swift action which authoritative sources laid to exposure of a widespread Nazi plot for sabotage and terrorism in the Near East.

One hundred German technicians were discharged by the war and naval ministeries and given 48 hours to quit the country a day after Turkish occupation of the German-owned Krupp shipyards on the Golden Horn.

Thirty Germans in the Krupp Works were supervising completion of two submarines for the Turkish navy.

Authoritative military sources here tonight reported additionally that evidence has reached the Turkish government that Soviet Russia is pushing construction of fortifications on her Caucasian frontier with Turkey, to defend her oil fields from any Anglo-French-Turkish attack. Several hundred thousand workers have been drafted by the Red army for the building of defense lines and military roads, these reports said.

Turks Ferret Out Plot

Reverberations of the German-British-French war at the same time concerned leaders in southeastern Europe and elsewhere in the Near East where Britain and France have concentrated armies authoritatively reported to total 500,000 men.

Authoritative sources said the Turkish government has uncovered evidence of a network of Nazi agents throughout the Near East ready on a signal from Berlin to

British Sink Two U-Boats, Down Bomber

Scottish Freighter Is Set to Bottom By 'Enemy Action'

By Robert Bunnelle
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 9.—Britain's admiralty in a terse but prideful communique tonight announced that a single destroyer of His Majesty's navy had sunk two German submarines while they were attacking a convoy.

Disclosure of this double blow to Nazi undersea strength came at the end of a day in which British and neutral coastal shipping felt the fury of German aerial bombs in the fourth series of attacks in 12 days. One German plane was shot down by British fighting planes, two others damaged and still more scattered out to sea.

The destruction of the U-boats today brought to at least 40 the unofficial estimate of Germany's total submarine losses, or probably one-half of the undersea craft she

Emmitt Warring Denied Freedom By Parole Board

The parole board yesterday denied Emmitt R. Warring his plea for freedom.

Release at this time from Lorton of the former Washington numbers king would not be "in the public's interest," the board said.

Warring was sentenced to three to nine months last May for income tax fraud, and to 26 months for jury tampering. He was convicted with his brothers, Leo and Charles, in the income tax case. Leo and Charles paid $2,500 fines each. The brothers were not involved in the jury tampering charge.

Roosevelt Navy Figure Cut $109,000,000 by House Group

The House subcommittee on naval appropriations was revealed last night as having slashed President Roosevelt's Navy estimates by about $109,000,000, and to have proposed delaying construction of two battleships until the Navy comes to more definite conclusions on the size of future dreadnaughts.

Committee members said the naval estimates have been cut from $1,078,436,577 to about $970,000,000, and that most of the economies have come out of shipbuilding funds and the so-called "B" or emergency defense budget.

It was emphasized, however, that the group has no intention of slowing down the warship program, or of definitely banning the two new battleships, which the Navy wants to be of 45,000 tons each.

In curtailing the shipbuilding fund, the subcommittee proposes to permit the President to carry forward construction as fast as desired, exceeding the allotments if necessary, and probably will leave the construction and size of the two new dreadnaughts to his discretion.

The Navy has proposed constructing the two vessels as sister ships of the two 45,000-ton, high speed craft provided last year to give the fleet a unit of four of this type. The high command has indicated that it may next year ask for 52,000-ton ships, carrying more guns and armor but with less speed than the 45,000-ton vsesels.

Committee members, however, hearing unofficial reports that foreign navies are building warships of 60,000 tons or more, are fearful our new dreadnaughts will be weaker than those of potential enemies. The Navy has come to no definite conclusion as to the size of ships beyond the two proposed now, and the group does not want to go ahead with the $100,000,000 craft until naval thought on the subject has crystallized.

First Lady's Testimony At House Quiz

Plight of D. C. Aged Sickened Her, She Tells Subcommittee

Following is the text of the testimony of Mrs. Roosevelt before a House subcommittee investigating District welfare institutions:

I am very glad to tell you about conditions as they seemed to me. I do not feel that I could make definite recommendations because I simply visited these institutions and it would require much more careful investigation before I could make definite recommendations.

Some years ago I visited the National Training School for Girls, the jail in the District of Columbia, Gallinger Hospital and one or two other institutions the names of which I have forgotten but one of them was where women are temporarily detained. I do not know whether you would call it the Detention Home for Women, but I have visited a number of institutions before my last visit to the Blue Plains Home for the Indigent and the Aged. I also visited the Receiving Home for Children and the Industrial Home for Children.

I have never yet found an institution in the District which was a model institution. They vary in degree but I think anyone who has had any experience with institutions would agree with me that they all need a good deal of improvement.

I believe that since I first visited the National Training School for Girls there has been considerable improvement . . . I have not been back so I cannot say anything beyond what I have heard.

Room for Improvement

I also believe that is true of the jail and perhaps of a number of other institutions that I do not happen to recall specifically. I know it is so from what I hear of Gallinger Hospital, and I hope to go there again. There is still room, however, for improvement. They are still not the model institutions which we would like to see in the Nation's Capital, where I feel a good many people come here w ith varied interests. I think that is borne out by the fact that after I wrote my column ("My Day") on Blue Plains I received a letter from someone interested in New Jersey institutions who said she had come to Washington 18 years ago and had gone to the Blue Plains and come away just as heavy hearted as I was. So it would seem as though we did have visitors who were interested in getting inspiration from many different kinds of interests when they visited the District of Columbia. That is one reason why I have always h oped we would bring our District institutions to the point where we could with pride say that we had something to show, and we cannot do so now.

My latest visit to Blue Plains, the Receiving Home and the Industrial Home leaves me w ith this impression:

We will begin with Blue Plains. I think that physically it is totally unfitted to give proper care to the inmates. They are not properly seggregated. You have a hospital there with 130 people in bed and a doctor who comes for half a day and one trained nurse with two assistants. Outside of that the only other care is that given by the i nmates. Much of the work is done by the i nmates. Now that is probably a good thing because people must be kept busy, but you have a feeling all the time that it is not done on a wise basis of a program to give proper exercise and employment to people who feel it is done because they could not do anything else. They had to have them do certain things whether they were fitted to do it or not.

Now it is impossible to give proper care to 130 bed patients with the force at their command. There is also a small group of cancer patients there and they should not be there. There is no adequate care for them.

Odors Were Trying

Now in regard to the management of the institution, I do not know that I can tell you much about it. In a short visit such as mine you can only say what your general impression was. My general impression was that possibily that could be a little improvement in management, but it would be almost impossible with the plant as it was to do a good job.

There is a mixed population of colored and white.

There are many things that could be mentioned. For instance, just the smell in certain places is something which you and I would find very trying and which in the winter months when it has to be heated and comparatively little air comes in it must be a little difficult for the inmates too. They may get so that they do not notice it much; they probably do not notice it as much as you and I would, but it should be remedied; and there were certainly some things there which should not be there and which should not be allowed.

My feeling was the the food and the service—I rather think the service is done entirely by the inmates themselves with the result that I saw the food placed on the tables and I did not see people eating it for fully ten minutes. Some of them were going in as I left which was fully 10 or 12 minutes after I first saw that food placed in the tables. Now one of the things that makes food palatable is to have it hot and I of course do not know how much money should actually be spent on food for the people there. My impression would be that many of those people should be on a special diet. I saw no provisions which would make that possible or to do that in an intelligent way. There was no dietitian but only a steward employed.

Now with old people and people who are ill, they are not so old but they are ill and they have no one to care for them and no resources and they certainly need special food. With the plant as it existed I could see no way in which that could be possible.

I came away from Blue Plains with a feeling that if that was the conception of the United States of proper care for the aged who were not able to care for themselves we were at a pretty low ebb of civilization. It was a sickening feeling that you got from that whole atmosphere. But that in itself did not seem to me as important as the Receiving Home for Children because the Receiving Home deals with the future.

We know that those who are in the Home for the Aged and Infirm, that a great many of them are going to die and while we may be a little ashamed of the treatment accorded them that is not going to be so harmful to the country as in the case of the Receiving Home where you are dealing with the future and there the service is entirely inadequate.

At the Receiving Home for Children they try to do, I think, a very good job but they could not do a good job. Take for example recreation for boys.

There are more boys there, of course, than girls and naturally it is easier to give girls employment and it is easier to teach them more or less quiet things. But when you come to boys the average boy needs a way to work out physical spirits, and physical occupations are almost a necessity to the average boy. Even boys who are not in any way delinquent find it rather hard to be coped up in a small room with a lot of other boys for many hours of the day.

Lack Play Equipment

I could not tell you the exact number that were in the room which is assigned to the boys for recreation. Next to that room there is a little room with a ping pong table but only two boys can play at one time and the other boys all sit in a room with benches around the wall with two long wooden tables which are empty. Upon those tables there were a very few dilapidated books. The story is that few of those boys read. Well I am not very much surprised that they do not a s the books were not very attractive looking and there was no incentive for the boys to try to read.

In addition to that there were two checker boards and I saw no checkers and no one playing checkers. The boards were so badly scratched that you thought they would have to recover the squares, remark them. However, I did not see any checkers so I do not know whether they were in any of the drawers but I do know that no one was playing checkers when I was there.

There were a few packs of very old and dirty cards and some of the boys were playing with those and that was all I saw in a room which contained colored and white boys and the ages of those boys ranged from 6 to 18 years. Some of those older boys had for one reason or another been in and out of that home, one told me, as many as 21 times. Now it may be that they are there only a very short time. Some of them are only there a few hours but if they cannot be paroled back to their families the court does allow a child as I understood from the superintendent to stay there for several weeks, and there is no occasion to keep young people for that length of time.

Play Yard Very Small

The only outdoor place for play is a little yard, very small, where there are some boxes but as the yard is covered with snow in winter and they do not have adequate clothing to go out in the snow it means that they do not go out and I should not think that more than six children could play in that yard and get any exercise, so that to me it is entirely inadequate for healthy exercise even if they are there a few days.

They provide for physical examinations twice a week. Now a boy may come in the day after the doctor has been in and he will get no physical examination until after he has been there for several days and the dormitories have beds that are close together. They use the same lavatory and I do not think it is physically safe, aside from anything else.

Now I think that they do their best with what they have. They have a WPA worker that comes there. They have an assembly room which they use occasionally when the WPA worker comes. They have pictures of WPA workers on the wall which I think makes it cheerful.

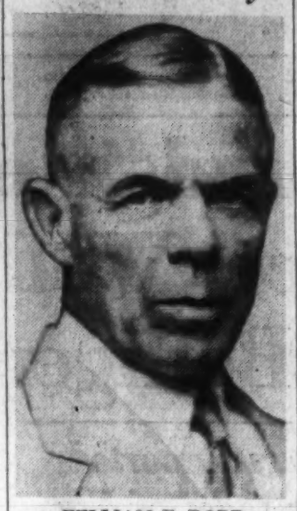
I do not think that food is adequate. They had some 50-odd children when I was there and they took 30 quarts of milk and that is not enough for children of that age. They have a dietitian there but it did not seem to me that I would calll it a good job of trying to rehabilitate the children and start them out with a better conception of what the Government meant to them. And after all every institution for the care of children should not only try to give them higher standards in every way to take away with them but it should also give them a sense that if this is what the Government is doing they have something to be grateful for and that is the beginning of faith in democracy. So I felt very, very seriously troubled over the Receiving Home.

Now the Industrial Home, of course, takes older children, borderline children. They are all white children.

The buildings are old. It is not a modern plant and it should be on the cottage plan. The children have better room and there is a more modern program there and I think the children there have a better chance. It does give them a better chance. I did not come away from that institution as heavy hearted as I did from the Receiving Home.

I am afraid that is about all I can tell you of my latest visit.

Pneumonia Fatal To Former Envoy



WILLIAM E. DODD

Dr. W. E. Dodd, Ex-Envoy, Dies Of Pneumonia

Bitterly Criticized Nazis After Return From German Post

Dr. William E. Dodd, 70, former United States Ambassador to Germany, died yesterday at his estate at Round Hill, Va., of pneumonia.

Dr. Dodd contracted pneumonia several days ago and was placed under an oxygen tent Thursday. He died at 3.10 p. m. Private services will be held at Round Hill tomorrow.

Dr. Dodd was an historian of international reputation with an intimate knowledge of German language and culture. President Roosevelt appointed him Ambassador to Berlin at the outset of his Administration in March, 1933.

Received cordially by President Paul von Hindenburg, as one having "warm appreciation of the cultural bonds between the two countries," Dodd left his post in January, 1938, a bitter foe of nazilism, with no word of farewell from Berlin officialdom. He quit the country more unceremoniously than any other American envoy.

Bitterly Assailed Nazis

Dodd bitterly assailed Germany in public speeches and writings in this country and Canada after he was relieved from his diplomatic post. The effort, coupled with an attempt to complete a multi-volume study of the Old South, caused a partial physical breakdown.

He was born at Clayton, N. C., October 21, 1869, scion of a family that had been in the State since 1745. He received a B. S. degree in 1895 and an M. S. degree in 1897 from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The next three years he spent at the University of Leipzig, receiving a Ph. D. degree in 1900 for a thesis on Jefferson.

He became professor of history at Randolph-Macon College in 1901, remaining there eight years. From 1909 to 1933 he was professor of American history at the University of Chicago, becoming head of the history department in the last six years of his term. Honorary LL. D. degrees were conferred upon him by Emory University, the University of Alabama, the University of North Carolina and the University of Cincinnati.

Fitted Into "Brain Trust"

Among the most important of his works were his "Life of Jefferson Davis," "Statesmen of the Old South," "Woodrow Wilson and His Work" and "The Public Papers of Woodrow Wilson," which he edited with Ray Stannard Baker. In 1919 he served with the House commission to study terms and conditions of the peace treaty.

At the University of Chicago Dodd was known for his fondness for discussing politics, always defending the "liberal" view, and farming, a subject which engrossed him because of his ownership of the plantation at Round Hill. His economic views fitted those of the "brain trust" of Roosevelt's early Administration.

Bitterness at his years in Germany was expressed upon his return to this country on January 6, 1938, when he termed representing the United States in Germany "a hopeless task."

"In a vast region where religious freedom is denied, where intellectual initiative and discovery are not allowed and where race hatred is cultivated daily, what can a representative of the United States do?" he asked.

Dr. Dodd was married at Auburn, N. C., December 24, 1901, to Martha Johns, of Wake County, N. C. Their children are William Edward Dodd, jr., and Mrs. Martha Dodd Stern.

the Washington Bridge League, Army and Navy Club and several American Legion posts, but the majority are scheduled for next week, notably on St. Valentine's Day.

Police Lieut. Horace Lineberg, an official of the 40 and 8, announced yesterday that the joint benefit party sponsored by the American Legion honor society and the 8 and 40, its women's auxiliary, will be held March 2 at the Pythian Temple.

50-Table Party Planned

The Washington unit of the American Bridge Association is planning a 50-table party at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A. on February 20, according to an announcement by its president, C. E. Barron.

The Quota Club of Washington reported that its president, Miss Katherine Tancill, and Miss Alma McCrum will entertain at dinner on February 15 at the latter's residence, 1662 Thirty-third street northwest, proceeds going to the blood and serum bank fund.

Mrs. Beatrice Jacobs, of G. P. O. Auxiliary, No. 33, American Legion, announced a benefit bridge to be held at the home of Mrs. Sue Yaendale, 2414 Tenth street northeast, the date to be decided in a few days.

Mrs. Carrie A. Brooks, president of Kenna-Main Auxiliary, No. 37, will give a card party at her home, 3760 Nichols avenue southeast, the first of several activities planned by the post and women's unit.

$56 Realized at Benefit

With 15 tables in play, the Army and Navy Club benefit bridge Thursday night realized $56 for the Children's Hospital blood and serum bank fund. Capt. and Mrs. D. J. Leahy were the north-south winners, and Lieut. and Mrs. William C. Coe the east-west victors.

Bridge and Chinese checkers will be the twin attractions at a benefit scheduled for the afternoon of February 14 at the Bethesda home of MrMs. J. Wesley Buchanan, regent of the Judge Lynn Chapter, D. A. R. The chapter hopes to top the $25, which it raised for the blood bank in 1939.

Harry Cedar, secretary of the local unit, Third Division, A. E. F., reported yesterday that the announcement on Wednesday of the benefit party it will hold next Tuesday night resulted in the donation of four door prizes without solicitation. The Third Division program will be held in the Bunker Hill Post Clubhouse, 807 Monroe street northeast.

Station WJSV yesterday announced a special blood bank program for tonight, beginning at midnight.

First Lady Tells House Inquiry Of Plight of D. C. Indigent

with her hands folded, Mrs. Roosevelt told the subcommittee that she had come away from Blue Plains "with a very sickening feeling," but that she considered the plight of juveniles at the Children's Receiving Home much more serious because of their age.

Inmates of the home, whether they are held at the receiving home for a few hours or several weeks, Mrs. Roosevelt said, should be given a "better conception of what the Government meant to them."

"After all, every institution for the care of children should not only try to give them higher standards in every way to take away with them," she added, "but it should also give them a sense that if this is what the Government is doing they have something to be grateful for, and that is the beginning of faith in democracy. So I felt very, very seriously troubled over the receiving home."

Mrs. Roosevelt's testimony followed a rebuke of Congressional neglect of District needs by President Roosevelt at a press conference.

The President said he approved of Mrs. Roosevelt's activity in behalf of local welfare institutions and suggested that District committees at the Capitol should have done something about the situation years ago.

He recalled that a study had been made of the National Training School for Girls several years ago, but that Congress had done little to improve conditions there.

King Replies to Charges

Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, when asked to comment on the President's remarks, pointed out that District appropriations have increased steadily in recent years, being double what they were 20 years ago.

"I have no doubt," he added, "that the welfare institutions in Washington are superior to those in any other city of the country."

Mrs. Roosevelt was greeted with applause when she entered the caucus room of the Old House Office Building at 6 minutes after 2 o'clock.

Dressed in a simple hunter green velvet frock, with plumed hat to match, she bowed smiling in response to the applause. Representative Randolph escorted her to the witness stand.

In a flurry of excitement, D'Alesandro rushed to greet her as flashlight bulbs popped and movie cameras cranked. The subcommittee chairman and Randolph were the only members present when the hearing began, but Representatives Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, and Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, appeared before it was concluded.

No member of the Senate or House subcommittees on appropriations or the Senate District Committee attended although the chairmen had been invited. Several pleaded that they could not leave

"Should Set an Example"

With a glance at the cameras and microphones, D'Alesandro rapped his gavel and called the meeting to order. The committee, he said by way of introduction, was "honored and delighted to have Mrs. Roosevelt here as our first witness."

"It seems to me," he said, "that Washington should set an example for the Nation in providing proper care for the indigent, aged and infirm people."

Under the bright glare of Klieg lights, Mrs. Roosevelt then described her visits to the District institutions. She reminded the committee that she had in previous years inspected the National Training School for Girls, the Jail, Gallinger Hospital, and the Women's Bureau of the Police Department.

"I have never yet found an institution in the District that is a model," she said. "They vary in degree, but I think anyone who has had any experience with institutions would agree with me that they all need a good deal of improvement."

Illinois Candidacy Designed to Draw Roosevelt Answer

Garner managers at the same time released here the Vice President's statement of candidacy, sworn to before J. Mark Trice, District notary public, on Thursday.

"I, John Nance Garner," it read, "being first duty sworn, say that I reside in Uvalde, in the County of Uvalde, in the State of Texas; that I am a qualified voter therein; that I am a candidate for nomination for the office of President of the United States of America to be voted upon at the primary election to be held in the State of Illinois on the ninth day of April, A. D. 1940; and that I am legally qualified to hold such office, and I hereby request that my name be printed upon the official Democratic primary ballot for nomination for such office at said primary election."

Hurja Flies Petition

Besides Smietanka, filing the Garner petitions were Emil Hurja, magazine editor formerly associated with the Democratic National Committee as election analyst, and Col. William M. Bannon, Chicago businessman.

As spokesman for the Garner-for-President committee in Illinois, Smietanka said the petition, filed with the Illinois secretary of state in Springfield, carried signatures from every one of the 102 counties in the State.

"We expect to make an aggressive campaign in the primaries which contemplates a vigorous campaign by the Garner committee in every county in Illinois," he said.

Primary Not Binding

Circulation of the petition, Smietanka said, "divulged a spontaneous interest and a ready desire to join," adding that "pledges from Democratic voters in Illinois or signed in headquarters run into many thousands."

While the Illinois primary is advisory, and not binding on delegates, it would provide a direct test of the President and the Vice President, unless Mr. Roosevelt withdraws.

A week earlier in the Wisconsin primaries, the campaign partners of 1932 and 1936 will be matched against one another for the first time, unless the President withdraws there. But the Wisconsin statute requires no signed statement of candidacy.

The President's name will go on the primary ballot in a third State, Nebraska, on April 9. Democratic National Committeeman James C. Quigley, after a meeting with 50 party leaders in Omaha, said a resolution was adopted authorizing him to prepare petitions and put them immediately in circulation.

Al Smith Frozen Out

On Wednesday in New York, Tammany Hall made public its slate of delegates and alternates to the Democratic National Convention freezing out such former leaders as Al Smith. While officially uncommitted, a spokesman said Tammany was for Roosevelt "even for a fourth term."

The New York primary for district delegates is April 2. Postmaster General Farley is expected to enter this primary if the President fails to. If Farley enters, Garner probably will not. Reports were current at the Capitol yesterday that Farley may enter the Massachusetts primary on April 30.

Garner's entry in the Illinois primaries came in the face of last week's Roosevelt petitions filed by the Kelly-Nash Democratic machine in Chicago, supported by Gov. Horner's followers downstate.

Garner Risks Defeat

With the Kelly-Nash-Horner combination plugging for a third term, observers believed the Vice President risked a serious licking if Roosevelt remained in that race. But most of the Garner people here do not believe that he will.

Despite the President's statement Monday that he would have nothing to say until such a time as he himself chose, he was asked for comment at yesterday's press conference on the filing of his name in Wisconsin. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had had no direct word on that, although he had seen newspaper reports. He ended the exchange by saying he did not know what the law was in Wisconsin.

Youth Congress To Hear Roosevelt

Communists, the President told reporters that they might get his opinion today. He will address the young people at 12:30 p. m. from the south portico at the conclusion of the Youth Congress parade up Constitution avenue.

Subject of Argument

The issue has already become the subject of argument involving the Youth Congress leaders and Mrs. Roosevelt on one side and Republican National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton, Gene Tunney and the Dies Committee on the other.

Other speakers included Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana; James B. Carey, president of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, a C. I. O. affiliate; Edward E. Strong, chairman of the Southern Negro Youth Congress; Jack McMichael, chairman of the American Youth Congress, and Howard Ennes, chairman of the Washington Youth Council.

Ten Put Up At White House

As leaders of the Youth Congress and organizers of the anti-Communist opposition completed last-minue plans for the four-day meeting yesterday, delegates were moving into the White House, the homes of Cabinet officers, of Congressmen, and of hundreds of Washington friends of the organization.

Ten were provided with accommodations at the White House. Others will be taken care of through a contribution made by Mrs. Roosevelt. Mrs. Robert Jackson, wife of the Attorney General, opened her home to two delegates, as did Mrs. Harry Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War. Housing contributions were also made by Speaker Bankhead, Secretary Hull, Secretary Edison, Frederick Delano and Mrs. Luke Wilson.

Parade Route Changed

The parade today, originally planned for Pennsylvania avenue, has been changed to Constitution avenue. Delegates will assemble at 10:30 a. m. near the Mellon Art Gallery, Fifth street and Constitution avenue. They will march along the avenue to the White House lawn.

Young people from all sections of the country swarmed over the Capitol, seeing Representatives and Senators in behalf of the $500,000,000 Youth Act, which would provide jobs and training for young people between the ages of 16 and 25. About 15 Ohioans called on Senator Taft, but he was not in.

Amendment Bars Promotion of Workers From Overquota States

amendment could work out, and termed it "administratively impossible."

The confusing clause was introduced by Representative Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, and reamended by Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma.

It provides that no incumbents of jobs covered by the act into civil service can themselves acquire classified status if they happen to come from States whose apportionment quotas are more than filled. Only when all the States whose quotas are less than filled have obtained their allotted share of Government jobs here, may employes from States now "over-quota-ed" gain the desired permanent status.

Four Words Change Meaning

As originally introduced by Keller, and accepted by Ramspeck, the amendment's effect would have applied only to future appointments to the Federal service. Employes now in exempt positions could have received the benefits anticipated by the bill.

Nichols' four-word amendment to the amendment, however, made the restriction apply to present employes.

The apportionment system referred to in the amendment applies to the majority of Federal jobs in the District, but not to those in the field. It specifies that residents of each State shall hold a certain number of jobs, proportionate to the State's fraction of the Nation's population.

During the World War, however, vital need for Government workers in a hurry led to the employment of a huge and disproportionate number of nearby citizens. The Civil Service Commission has sought to whittle down the number from the District, Maryland and Virginia, but even after 20 years, the District is about 4,000 per cent over its quota.

As an indication of the confusion concerning the workings of the amendment, Ramspeck said he did not believe it would apply the quota system to field positions; Nichols said that such was his intent; commission experts believed it could not apply to the field, and Luther Steward, head of the largest Federal workers' union and an expert on civil service regulations, said he believed field positions would thereby come under the quota system and result in an impossibly complicated situation.

"A Brick in Dark"

"No one knows what will happen in trying to apply the amendment," Steward said. "It's like throwing a brick in the dark."

Ramspeck opposed the amendment, but was snowed under when his Democratic supporters deserted him on Nichols' inviting suggestions that some 35 under-apportioned States would stand to gain more Federal jobs if the amendment was passed.

Until then, Ramspeck had successfully turned back a series of attempts from the Republican side of the House to amend the bill and require that passing competitive, rather than noncompetitive, examinations be the prerequisite for bainketing exempt workers into classified status.

Seal Issues Ruling on Tax Liability Here

Legal Residence Elsewhere No Cause For Exemption, He Says

Federal employes living in Washington but claiming legal residence elsewhere must pay the District's new income tax, according to an opinion given yesterday by Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal.

Only those persons temporarily residing in the District for "definite" periods are exempt from paying the tax, he said. The entire question centered around the definition of the word "domiciled," which has plagued officials and taxpayers ever since the bill was approved by Congress.

Jo V. Morgan, member sole of the District Board of Tax Appeals, had ruled that a person domiciled in the District for an "undetermined" period was not liable for the intangible personal property tax. On the other hand in the case of James J. Sweeney, an attorney in the Justice Department, Morgan ruled that although Sweeney claimed legal residence in Boston, he nevertheless was here for an "indefinite" period and hence liable for the tax.

Case Is on Appeal

This latter case was appealed and is now before the District Court of Appeals. A decision is expected early next week in the case, which involves only $1.49.

According to statistics of the United States Civil Service Commission, at least 41,167 persons are affected by Seal's ruling. It was explained that out of 125,597 Federal employes in this city, 41,167 are known to have legal residence elsewhere under the apportionment system. Many more of this total number, however, claim residence elsewhere.

In his opinion Seal said that numerous individuals who vote in the various States where they claim legal residence have inquired as to what effect, if any, payment of taxes under the District income tax law, would have upon their status in such States. Seal said there "would seem to be no relation" between the payment of taxes to the District and the right to vote in the various Sates.

"The District income tax law merely describes the persons required to pay taxes to the District upon their taxable income, and the fact that a person is domiciled in the District for purposes of such taxation certainly does not take away or destroy any rights or privileges which he theretofore possessed or enjoyed," he explained.

Three Classes Exempt

Seal listed three categories of individuals to which the act apparently was intended to have no application. These are:

The President of the United States, Vice President and members of Congress elected for a definite term of public office and temporarily residing in the District while performing duties of such office.

Members of the President's Cabinet and officials appointed to public office for a definite period prescribed by statute, who were not domiciled in the District prior to such appointment, and are temporarily residing in the District while performing the duties of such office.

Persons in the military or foreign service, who were not domiciled in the District at the time of enlistment or appointment, assigned to service in the District for a definite period and temporarily residing here while performing the duties of such assignment, and who have not voluntarily established a domicile in the District.

Dent Gives Guidance

Seal said that all individuals residing in the District, other than those classes above mentioned, "would appear to be at least prima facie domiciled in the District for purpose of taxation under the provisions of the Income Tax Act."

His opinion was sent to Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent for his guidance.

The total payment of the tax is due March 15, although an amendment is now pending in Congress which would provide for split payments of the tax, one April 15 and the other October 15.

Ban on Army Eligibles in CCC And WPA Urged

With Enlistments Lagging, Taber Finds Condition 'Repulsive'

Representative Taber, of New York, ranking Republican member of the House subcommittee in charge of relief legislation, urged yesterday that all men eligible for military service be barred from WPA and CCC rolls.

"While enlistment in the armed forces is lagging," Taber declared, "it seems to me to be repulsive that men who could serve in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps should be allowed on WPA."

Taber would not say he intends to offer a legislative proposal to this effect.

Meanwhile, Acting Chairman Woodrum of the subcommittee, countered attacks on the 18-month "rotation" provision of the present relief bill with the statement that he favors renewing all the restrictions of the current law.

The 18-month rule, written into the bill last year, requires all persons on WPA for 18 consecutive months to take a "furlough" of at least 30 days to make way for those on the waiting list. The provision in its present form has been attacked by(among others, Representative Ludlow (Democrat), of Indiana, a committee member, as having caused severe hardship.

"In isolated instances, there may have been hardships," Woodrum said yesterday, "but in cases where there has been real need, certifying agencies have put the applicants back on the rolls after the 'furlough.' This provision has more than justified itself. It has tended to spread the relief program."

The bill, which was passed last June 30, put into effect lower wage scales in Northern cities, but Woodrum pointed out that "there have been no strikes because public sentiment didn't support them."

The President's estimates for this year's relief measure, expected to total about $1,125,000,000 for WPA, will be taken up by the subcommittee not before next month, it was indicated. Observers expected that public hearings on the investigation into WPA will be resumed at about the same time.

Dr. Schiff Appointed Seminary Profesor

Dr. Hugo Schiff, of Alexandria, has been appointed professor of Hebrew at the Virginia Episcopal Theological Seminary, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Wallace Rollins, dean. He will fill the unexpired term of the late Dr. Thomas Nelson, who died suddenly two weeks ago.

Dr. Schiff is the rabbi of the Congregation Beth El in Alexandria, having come to the city several months ago.

Green Denies He Could Act On 'Racketeers'

No Right to Interfere With Unions, He Replies to Pegler

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 9.—To critics' demands that he remove "racketeers" from the American Federation of Labor, William Green, president, answered today that he constitutionally does not have the authority to take action, even if the reports were true.

Green's remarks were made in commenting upon what he described as charges made by Westbrook Pegler, columnist, and others that the labor federation's membership included "racketeers," and that he should remove them.

"No president of the American Federation of Labor is vested with authority or clothed with power to interfere with the administration of any of its international unions or remove any officer elected," said Green.

"That means, therefore, that the American Federation of Labor has no more authority to discipline or remove an officer than Mr. Pegler, himself. I have no more authority to interfere in the exercise of the autonomous power and authority of nationally credited unions than does the President of the United States have authority to interfere with the affairs of a sovereign State.

"That is the reason why we must rely on the courts and our judicial authorities to punish criminals who may fasten themselves upon the American Federation of Labor. If a man is guilty of the commission of a crime—if he is a racketeer—he ought to be punished and removed."

Green's remarks were made after he again charged John L. Lewis, C. I. O. leader, with blocking negotiations for peace between the two labor organizations. Commenting on a statement by President Roosevelt today that Lewis had told him before Christmas that he saw no useful purpose which would be served at that time by a renewal of the peace talks, Green said:

"I interpret the statement by the President as advice to the Nation that John L. Lewis refused and rejected the President's request to resume peace negotiations."

Hospital Where He Worked Bars Admittance to Dying Man

Former Orderly Dies in Taxicab While Driver Seeks Police Order To Gain Entrance to Bellevue

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 9.—Joseph Siegel, 58, died today in front of a police station while he sought in vain to enter the hospital which for five years he had served as an orderly.

His death bed was the rear seat of a taxicab.

Dr. S. S. Goldwater, city commissioner of hospitals, concluded that the tragic blunder was made by a harassed night nurse—name withheld—at the admitting desk in the psychopathic division of Bellevue. It was in that division that Siegel had worked.

Taxicab Driver John Forney said he was hailed early this morning by Siegel, who groaned:

"I'm desperately ill. Drive me to Bellevue as fast as you can."

Forney halted at the first red light.

"Never mind the lights," Siegel cried. "For God's sake, I'm dying."

Reaching the hospital, Forney ran to the admitting desk, but was told by an attendant, he said, that Siegel must be accompanied by a policeman. The fare, meanwhile, lay moaning in the cab and the anxious Forney appealed for help to the first patrolman he saw.

But, he said, the policeman responded that he couldn't do anything, because he wasn't assigned to Bellevue. Then Forney drove to the nearest police station, and a lieutenant ordered an ambulance. It was then Siegel's heart stopped. The autopsy showed it was hardening of the arteries.

Roosevelt Says Lewis Balked Labor Peace

Failed Even to Answer Fall Plea to Renew Parleys With A. F. L.

President Roosevelt revealed yesterday that John L. Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, had refused to resume peace negotiations with the American Federation of Labor on the ground that no useful purpose would be served.

Moreover, he said, no official of formal reply was received to a letter he sent Lewis last October urging that efforts be made to bring about peace between the two large labor organizations.

Lewis refused yesterday to comment on the President's statement.

Mr. Roosevelt said he brought the matter up when Lewis was at the White House some time before Christmas. He intimated that, in view of Lewis' attitude, he had taken no further action. He said he did not know whether there had been any development since that time.

William Green, A. F. L. president, he remarked, advised him earlier that his organization's peace committee stood ready to resume negotiations with the C. I. O. The conferences were broken off last April to enable Lewis to work out a new contract with coal operators and never were renewed.

Disclosure that Lewis had refused to negotiate further was made by the President at his press conference in response to a question about an A. F. of L. request that he make public replies he had received to his peace appeal.

Mr. Roosevelt sent the letters to the C. I. O. and A. F. L. conventions last October. The reply from Green was sent to the White House during the A. F. L. convention at Cincinnati.

53 Capital Friars To Attend Funeral For Father Paul

Drive to Boost Flood-Control Funds Opens

More Cash for Rivers And Harbors Also Sought in House

By the Associated Press

A campaign for increased appropriations for flood control and navigation projects got under way yesterday.

House flood control advocates, claiming support of 100 members, named a committee headed by Representative Secrest (Democrat), of Ohio, to agitate for more money.

Chairman mansfield (Democrat), of Texas, of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee led a drive for more funds for rivers and harbors projects. He wrote House members urging appropriation of $75,000,000 instead of the $25,000,000 for fiscal 1941 as recommended in President Roosevelt's budget.

The flood control group, appointed by Chairman Whittington (Democrat), of Mississippi, of the House Flood Control Committee, was directed to seek at least $120,000,000 more for flood control, or $50,000,000 in excess of budget recommendations.

The proposal was to be presented to a House appropriations subcommittee considering flood control and navigation appropriations.

Meanwhile, informed persons said it was probable that the additional $50,000,000 for flood control would come, if at all, from the 1941 relief appropriation. They reasoned that President Roosevelt might agree to such procedure, but probably would object to taking the money from defense funds as proposed by Secrest.

Farmer a Sujcide After Quarrel With Mother of 3

The body of Medford G. Lick, 33, a tenant of the Jouett Shouse estate near Vienna, Va., was found hanging from a rafter of a barn on hte farm last night.

Another workman on the estate discovered the body.

Sheriff Eppa Kirby, of Fairfax County, reported that several hours earlier, about 2 a. m. Friday, he had received a telephone call from Lick's wife, saying her husband had left the house suddenly dressed only in his underwear and boots. She also said, according to Kirby, that she and her husband had quarrelled earlier in the evening.

Dr. C. A. Ransom, Fairfax County coroner, last night issued a certificate of suicide in the case. In addition to his wife, Lucille, Lick is survived by three children.

Rankin Expels Pension Foe From Hearing

Alexandrian Declared He Wanted to Beat Patriotism Into Group

A witness who declared he desired to "beat some patriotism into the heads" of members of the House World War Veterans Committee was expelled yesterday from a hearing on legislation which would broaden benefits to widows of former soldiers.

The witness was Cornelius H. Bull, of Alexandria, general counsel of the American Veterans Association.

He was ordered from the hearing by Chairman Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, as the climax of a heated exchange over the legislation and taxation and propaganda.

Bull voiced opposition to pending legislation which would grant pensions to needy widows, regardless of the cause of the husband's death or whether the widow herself was born before or after the war.

Passage of this legislation, Bull declared, would open the door to other measures to pension all veterans.

Points to Heavy Debt

With the national debt limit virtually reached and the possibility of involvement in war, Bull declared, the Nation could ill afford such a financial burden.

Rankin stopped the witness with a bang of his gavel when he suggested the veterans committee would put its colleagues "on the spot" by bringing to the floor "a disastrous pension system."

"I will not let you lecture this committee," Rankin shouted at the witness.

Insisting he was not attempting to lecture or "impugn the motives" of the committee, Bull said he had a right to appear to ask how pension legislation might be financed.

"I am here as a American citizen and I want to know," Bull said.

Membership Questioned

Rankin allowed Bull to proceed but only after warning that he would strike from the record any remarks that might "reflect on this committee."

Later when Rankin said he understood the American Veterans Association had only three members, Bull, his face reddening, insisted that even though it had only one member, he had a right to ask information and present his views on pension financing.

"I am here trying to beat some patriotism into the heads of the people within the sound of my voice," he declared heatedly.

"That's enough," Rankin shouted. "You leave this committee. You will not have the right to appear here again."

Powder Plant Blown Up; Arson Quiz On

Loss Put at $150,000 As Fireworks Blasts Raze 17 Buildings

By the Associated Press

Redondo Beach, Calif., Feb. 9.—Arson investigators trod smoking embers of a one and one-half acre fireworks plants today seeking cause of an explosion that destroyed 17 buildings.

Heavily stocked with explosives, the factory was ripped by repeated blasts. The shocks were felt for 20 miles.

Three residents or nearby houses were injured slightly, but a dozen other families asleep at the time were unhurt. Many windows were broken.

Loss Put at $150,000

Damage was estimated unofficially at $150,000. Pat Lizza, owner of the plant of the Golden State Fireworks & Display Co., was in the East on a business trip.

Investigators theorized the explosion was caused either by arson or spontaneous combustion.

Considerable quantities of powder and other explosives had been stored in the plant because of war conditions abroad.

Son Warned by Father

Harry M. Peterson, Redondo Beach police chief, said only the fact the plant was situated in a sparsely settled area prevented serious injuries.

Lizza, had left the factory in charge of his son. Before leaving he warned:

Driver Sought Who Punched Policeman

Baltimore Officers Here to Aid; Stolen Car Left in Field

Baltimore police were here last night aiding local authorities in a search for a youth who punched a policeman in the face and escaped three bullets after crashing his speeding automobile into a "dead-end" barricade early yesterday.

The car, which was abandoned in a field at South Dakota avenue and Allison street northeast, was identified as one stolen from a Baltimore garage Thursday night. It was examined for fingerprints.

Motorcycle Policeman Joseph S. Davis and Scout Car Patrolman W. J. Middleton set out in pursuit of an automobile which passed them at Central avenue and Bladensburg road northeast, entering the city at 75 to 80 miles an hour.

At South Dakota avenue, the machine halted for a large trailer truck and swung into a filling station. Davis pulled alongside the car and stepped to the running board. He was struck in the face and knocked to the street. Skid marks on the street where the speeding car stopped measured 237 feet.

South Dakota avenue comes to a dead end at Allison stret. The fugitive drove through the barricade only to be bogged by soft earth in a field. He got out and started to run. Middleton fired two shots at him.

Davis received minor injuries to his face and head in the fall from the side of the car, but he refused hospital treatment.

A lookout was broadcast for the youth. He was described as 20 to 25, weighing 130 to 140 pounds. He was dressed in a filling station uniform.

Senate Sets Vote Tuesday On Finn Loan

Measure to Furnish $20,000,000 Seems Certain of Passage

Amid attacks on Russia and pleas for a direct loan to Finland, the Senate yesterday agreed to vote finally Tuesday on an Export-Import bank authorization not mentioning Finland by name.

With bipartisan support, the measure permitting the bank to extend $20,000,000 more nonmilitary credit to the Baltic republic appeared certain of passage at 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, and Senator King, of Utah (Democrats), urged that Congress specifically direct a loan instead of leaving it within the discretion of the bank, while Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, told the Senate:

"Russia is on the march. The Russian hordes are reaching out, relentlessly, ruthlessly uprooting Christianity, destroying churches, because there is not room enough in this world for the church and communism."

Danaher Asks Credit Ban

Opposing direct loans to any foreign government, Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, offered an amendment to ban such credit. He said it would not bar non-military loans to Finnish corporations. Once again, Danaher called on Congress and the President to proclaim a state of war exists between Finland and Russia, invoking the Neutrality Act. He said failure to invoke it was benefiting Russia, which was buying large quantities of military supplies in this country.

The President earlier at a press conference voiced doubt that the United States would sell any guns directly to Finland, because it is engaged in armed conflict.

His opinion was expressed in answer to a question as to whether Finland could obtain military supplies in this country inasmuch as she is engaged in an undeclared war with Russia.

Favors Sale to Neutrals

Discussing earlier conferences with State, War and Navy Department officials on materials possibly available as surplus for shipment to Norway, Sweden or other neutrals, Mr. Roosevelt stressed he was talking about sales to countries at peace.

The President told reporters he was checking up with munitions control advisors on what properly could be considered surplus supplies. He recalled that in 1913 the Navy still had some old ships retained from the Civil War period. While some advised against selling these, contending they were not surplus, they were sold, he said.

He disclosed recent discovery that the Army has 450,000 pairs of shoes it bought during the World War, and said it was a question whether these shoes, still new after 22 years, could be considered surplus. Referring to the Army's inheritance of some British 75's from the World War period, he said they were not as good as the French 75's but there might be some argument as to whether they should be disposed of.

Brown Leads Battle

In the Senate, Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, led the fight for the Export-Import Bank $100,000,000 increase in capitalization, from which Finland may be lent $20,000,000. Brown said he favored a direct loan, without strings, but had accepted the Senate Banking and Foreign Relations Committee modifications in his measure.

Appealing for passage of the pending bill, Senator Tydings said that "if Finland loses this war, all the things that humanity holds dear will be swept from another part of the face of the earth."

"I do not look with favor on the extension of communism. Russia is welcome to it, but we don't want it in America and we should not overlook an opportunity to hold its spread in check."

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, asked if Russia overcame Finland, whether Tydings would favor credit to France and England. Tydings said he would have to see what the circumstances were at the time, that while against war involvement, he didn't "want to be such an ostrich as to keep my head in the ground until someone sneaks up and puts me out of existence."

Gallery Cheers Are Stilled

Joining the opposition fight, Senator Wylie (Republican), of Wisconsin, said he favored private aid by individual citizens to Finland, but said the bill for export-import bank aid was "a camouflage and a delusion."

At one point some gallery spectators were silenced by the chair when they applauded a speech by Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, opposing loans to Finland "while one-third of our Nation is ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed."

Senator Danaher charged "America is financing every war on the face of the earth today."

During Senator Danaher's criticism of the bill, Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, declared Southern tobacco farmers had been led to believe arms embargo repeal would aid tobacco sales in Britain. After repeal, he said Britain forgot "her friends of yesterday" and turned her tobacco business over to Turkey.

Senator Ashurst told the Senate he wished to tell his constituents he voted for a loan to Finland, but as the bill was drafted he doubted he could do so. He urged the Senator not to vote "a blank check" to the bank, but to vote instead for a direct loan to Finland.

Germans Taken From Japanese Liner

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Part of the group of 21 German seamen, seized by a British warship when it stopped the Japanese liner Asama Maru, 35 miles off the coast of Japan, January 21, are shown as they boarded a lighter which took them aboard the warship as prisoners. The seamen were returning to Germany via Japan and Siberia after serving on Standard Oil tankers on a South American run the group was the elimination of $20,000,000 for providing submarine nets to guard harbors and naval bases in time of war. The subcommittee, told the devices could be produced in six months time, deferred the project until later.

Roosevelt Approves Bill

Members said the group would meet again today or Monday for a final review of the bill and present it to the full Appropriations Committee on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the House Naval Affairs Committee received a formal report from the Administration giving President Roosevelt's approval to the $854,000,000 bill to authorize new ships and planes. Secretary Edison wrote Chairman Vinson that the measure, which will authorize a two-year program comprising about 21 warships, 22 auxiliary ships and 1,000 additional warplanes, was "in accordance with the financial program of the President."

was believed to have had at the war's start.

The admiralty's communique pointed out that it did not make a practice of announcing the sinkings of U-boats as they occur, but said an exception had been made this time because a single destroyer sank the two submarines while they preyed on convoyed merchantmen.

The British have stressed repeatedly the safety measures taken for such convoys.

The admiralty did not say where the attack occurred nor did it identify the destroyer.

Activity at Sylt

A Reuters dispatch from Copenhagen reported that great airplane activity had been seen early tonight at the German air base on Sylt Island, near Danish territory. About 6 p. m. (2 p. m. E. S. T.) some 150 airplanes were seen in the air. An hour later five squadrons were seen flying westward.

Germany tonight broadcast the official Nazi News Agency's claim that eight British or British-convoyed ships had been sunk or made total losses today, along with the admission that one Nazi plane was lost.

This raised to 40 the total of ships which Germany claims have been sunk in the four raids, with four German planes acknowledged to have been shot down.

The ship total has been vigorously disputed in London, and there was no confirmation from British sources of the eight claimed today.

"Enemy action," whether by planes, mine or torpedo, sank a Scottish freighter off the northwest coast, however. The ship, the 5,406-ton Charges of Glasgow, went down after an explosion, with two of her crew of 64 missing.

Two other ships off the British east coast sent S O S messages during the afternoon but whether they were damaged was not made known. They were the Clintonia, 3,106 tons, and the Lord Darling, 256 tons.

The German plane which the Royal Air Force's defenders downed was a big black Heinkel which swung over the Firth of Forth and dropped a bomb through the 102-ton dredger Foremost. Two of the dredger's crew of nine were feared lost when their lifeboat swamped.

As the Heinkel turned loose its guns on the Foremost a British patrol of three swooped on its tail.

A few minutes later residents of North Berwick, near Edinburgh, saw the big raider crash in a suburban field. The fate of its crew was not made known immediately.

Two other Nazi "bomb blockaders" registered a direct hit on a coastal steamer off the Scottish coast, shattering her hatches, damaging her bridge and machine-gunning the crew. The ship, not named in official reports, limped into port.

Both Believed Damaged

British Hurricane fighters fired into the two raiders before they disappeared in a cloudbank, and reports said it was believed both were "seriously damaged."

Shore watchers could see the bombers dive on the ship and the water spouts made by the bombs.

The British fighters chased away a Junkers plane as it was bombing a tanker near Peterhead, Scotland, and attacked three Heinkels which were flying low over the water off Arbroath.

Fishing boats and trawlers up and down the coast also were bombed and gunned.

Other Nazi raids were carried out on Monday, Tuesday and Saturday of last week. The Germans claimed they sank two British and neutral ships in the first three raids, but British sources said the losses were much smaller.

sabotage communications and precipitate a reign of terror.

Under the circumstances, the sources asserted, it was impossible to permit the Germans to remain in strategic positions, especially since the technicians were completing work on submarines which Turkey would expect to use if, as many fear, she should be drawn into war in the spring.

Neutrality Disavowed

Prompt action by the government was particularly necessary, the informants said, because of Turkey's recent disavowal of neutrality for a policy of mere nonbelligerency and her increasingly close relations with Great Britain and France, with whom she has mutual assistance pacts.

Rumania attempted to keep a balance in her delicate position between the two sides in the European conflict by creating a new ministry under Ion Cristu.

Cristu, a Bucharest foreign office official, will attempt the seemingly impossible task of satisfying conflicting economic demands of Germany and the Allies.

Germans have complained that Rumania's mobilization measures were keeping 800,000 men from producing goods Germany needs; instead of reducing her armed forces, however, Rumania has ordered technically trained officers and noncommissioned officers to join the colors April 1 and youths qualified to become officers to join the army "for training" by next Thursday.

Reaction Conservative

Immediate reaction abroad to news of the two moves was favorable but conservative.

A semiofficial London statement expressed "satisfaction" over Welles' forthcoming visit and said "he may be sure of receiving all the information which the British government can provide him in order to enable the President to form a clearer view of the European situation."

Germany's spokesman termed the news "very interesting" but withheld further comment since the "pupose of the trip still is not clear."

French circles expressed readiness to be helpful to the President's emissary in any way possible but it was emphasized that France is opposed to any peace with the present regime in power in the Reich.

London, likewise, said the Allies' war aims have been "made abundantly clear."

Poles in German-occupied sections of Poland. The Polish government-in-exile at Paris issued January 31 a white paper declaring Germans had executed 18,000 Poles. Arthur Syess-Inquart, deputy Governor of German-occupied Poland, declared the white paper a "gross exaggeration.")

The ruddy, professorial lawyer, who has authority from Adolf Hitler to be almost the absolute ruler of Poland, admitted he was rigorously stern in smashing any movement or tendency in Poland which would weaken the German administration or give German enemies in the east a chance to strike at the Reich.

"Germany is at war, fighting for its existence," he said. "So it is not to be supposed that the Reich could extend liberties to the Poles greater than those enjoyed by the populations or England, France or Germany.

"But those who assail me from abroad should know that since German obliteration of the old Polish government the population of Warsaw has increased from 1,400,000 to 1,800,000.

"They should know there is no hunger, there isn't even any rationing of bread as in Germany itself. They should know there is not a single concentration camp in all Poland.

"And the charge that the health of the Poles is neglected is best answered by the report that German medical services in a few months gave free innoculations to 720,000 Jews, Ukranians and Poles—a prodigious feat in medical administration.

"Never in modern times has there been less typhus than now in disease-ridden Poland."

Paris Chamber Holds Secret War Debate

Socialists Attempting To Get at Least One Place in Cabinet

By P. J. Philip

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, Feb. 9.—From shortly after 11 o'clock this morning until 7:30 p. m. the Chamber of Deputies discussed, in secret session, the "organization of national defense" in a debate which will be continued tomorrow, still in secret.

A combination of causes led to the session. In the first place there was curiosity described yesterday which had led half a dozen deputies to table interpellations on conduct of the war.

In the second place, the minister of air, Guy La Chambre, was anxious to give a full account of airplanes production and the state of the air arm.

In the third place, Premier Daladier felt the time had come for some plain speaking and for clearing the air.

Socialist Maneuver

Behind today's maneuvering it is generally admitted there is nothing more serious than the desire of the Socialists, who are numerically the largest single party in the chamber and who feel they deserve some recompense for having disassociated themselves from the Communists, to have at least one member of their party in the cabinet.

Daladier did not want a secret sitting. Leon Blum, who was scheduled to speak on the information, propaganda and censorship services during the afternoon, led the demand for secrecy.

The debate which preceded the decision, by 262 to 227 votes, to hold a secret session took less than an hour.

Daladier said: "I insist that the debate on national defense and the conduct of the war should be begun at once and continued without interruption until it is concluded.

Nazi Agents Blamed

"I do not wish to permit the development in the French army of unjustifiable disquiet. I do not wish to leave, without reply, the frequently discouraging motions which are voted each week by our commissions. Above all, I wish to reply to Germany."

The premier then said secret Gestapo agents had been circulating a questionnaire regarding his popularity as premier with such questions as these:

How many votes would he obtain on a question of confidence?

Who would be his successor?

Who were his political adversaries?

What is the attitude of the mass in France toward England?

How is the role of Italy judged?

What are the possibilities of war in the Mediterranean?

"I said," Daladier continued, "that we must reply at once to the questions raised so that the Parliament can say at once if it has confidence in the government, or if it wishes to relieve it of its functions. That is clear."

Firemen Fiddle Around Building As Safe Burns

Unaware that firemen were scouring the District Building in search of a fire, a group of safe-crackers last night went about their business, on orders of the Commissioners.

They were breaking open an old safe on the third floor and using an acetylene torch. The smell of the burnt paint on the safe came up to the fifth floor and lingered awhile. Pretty soon the men who were counting the "March of Dimes" contributions in Commissioner Allen's office began to ask each other "Is that an old shoe you're smoking?"

One of them finally decided there must be a fire. Next, four trucks, four engines and two battalion chiefs were at the building looking everywhere but on the third floor. They went to the attic, where Dr. George C. Ruhland, health commissioner, keeps his guinea pigs, and in the basement, but found no fire.

Finally one of the safe experts came running asking what the trouble was. Everything then was straightened out.

The safe, it was explained, is too heavy to carry down the elevator or stairs.

Rumania Forbids Oil Companies To Hoard Surplus

Copyright by New York Times

Bucharest, Rumania, Feb. 9.—The oil commissioner has issued an order forbidding the making, sale, hiring or removal of pertoleum tanks, which have a capacity of more than 10,000 liters without special permission. This order prevents oil companies from increasing their stocking capacity and would force them to sell any surplus.

The chief oil buyer lately has been a British company. It has bought up large quantities of petroleum leaving it in the seller's containers. That company now will be compelled to stop buying and will have to export the oil.

The Germans have sent to Rumania an expert, Hans Bosghe, to keep an eye on the Rumanian oil commission.

A French pertoleum adviser also has arrived to keep an eye on petroleum deliveries to France.

Nuns From Poland Say Hitler Used Church Spire as Lookout

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

The Germans "were very nice to us," said Sister Bogumila (right) as she and Sister Innocencia arrived in New York yesterday aboard the liner Saturnia. The American nuns told of making an American flag to protect their convent 16 miles outside of Warsaw, during the Nazi invasion of Poland

U. S. Sisters at Convent Near Warsaw Tell How German Staff Established Its Headquarters at Their Convent

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 9.—Two American nuns of the Franciscan order, who were in a convent 16 miles from Warsaw when the Germans invaded Poland last September, said today on their return here that Adolf Hitler had visited the convent and from a church spire had viewed the results of bombardment.

The n uns, Sister Bogumila and Sister Innocencia, were in Poland 17 months. They arrived on the Italian liner Saturnia en route to the order's convent at Lodi, N. J.

Sister Bogumila said there were seven other American nuns at the convent, which was established and operated with American funds, when the drive on Poland started.

The nuns made an American flag, 20 by 15 feet, out of pieces of cloth and painted white stars on the blue field. This they hung, with signs proclaiming nationality of the convent, on the walls.

The German staff established headquarters at the convent, but the nuns were not molested and were, in fact, paid for the food the Germans ate, Sister Bogumila said.

Hitler Could See Warsaw

Hitler was taken up into the steeple, she said, because it was one of the highest structures in the vicinity and Warsaw could be seen plainly.

"No words can describe the bombardment," Sister Bogumila said. "It was hellish. Dear God, they are all good martyrs, those Polish people."

The troops that the nuns saw were mostly Bavarians and Austrians, she added, and "were very nice to us."

She said she had read the report of Cardinal Hlond, of Poland, to the vatican, describing anti-religious activities of the Nazis, but thought that "most of those things happened in Prussian Poland and in the Danzig territory."

"None of the sisters in Warsaw or Cracow were molested in any by the Germans," she continued. "I don't know what happened elsewhere, but I understand that our sisters in the Danzig vicinity were not as fortunate as we, and had to give up their garb and wear ordinary clothing."

Church Damaged by Guns

During Hitler's visit to the convent church none of the nuns was allowed in the church, Sister Bogumila said.

Both she and Sister Innocencia were hesitant about talking to reporters, saying they feared the Nazis might "take revenge" upon their sisters in Poland.

"At the convent we took care of the injured as much as we could," Sister Bogumila said. "Our church was partly damaged by Polish guns because we were in the line of the defense fire by the Poles."

Green Heads Coast Artillery; Brig. Gen. Short Promoted

resident Nominates Col. Peterson Inspector General; Col. Loughry Made Chief of Finance; Col. Lewis Elevated

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Brig. Gen. Walter C. Short, newly designated commander of the first complete peace-time Army Corps, to be a major general and at the same time advanced four colonels to general officer rank.

Col. Joseph A. Green, executive officer to Maj. Gen. Archibald H. Sunderland, chief of Coast Artillery and an antiaircraft expert, was named to succeed Sunderland when the latter's term expires March 1. Green will have the rank of major general during his four-year term.

Col. Virgil L. Peterson, Corps of Engineers, assigned as chief of staff to the Second Army in Chicago, was named inspector general with rank of major general for a four-year term. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Walter R. Reed whose term expired December 23.

Col. Lewis Elevated

To succeed Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Boschen April 22 as chief of finance, the President went to another branch of the Army, naming Col. Howard K. Loughry, of the Coast Artillery, to the post.

The other nomination advances Col. Robert H. Lewis to brigadier general, March 1, to fill the vacancy resulting from Gen. Short's promotion.

Gen. Short, 59, is a native of Fillmore, Ill. He entered the Army from civil life in 1901, and in the World War, participated in the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne battles. During most of the war was engaged in training troops in France, winning the Distinguished Service Medal. He now commands the First Division and will head the Fourth Army Corps during the Southern maneuvers this spring.

Col. Green, 59, was born in Cherokee, Iowa, and graduated from West Point in 1906. He commanded a special White House guard during the first part of the World War and later saw action in France. He has been editor of the Coast Artillery Journal and commanded the Sixty-first antiaircraft artillery from 1931-33.

Loughry Rose from Ranks

Col. Peterson, 57-year-old Kentuckian, is a 1908 West Point graduate. During the World War, he commanded the training camps at Fort Belvoir, and Camp Lee, Va., and in 1929-30 was assistant director of public buildings and parks here.

Col. Loughry is now serving as chief of budget and legislative division of the General Staff. The 57-year-old officer is a native of Indiana and went to West Point after service as an enlisted man in the World War. He was adjutant general of the Second Army during the World War.

Col. Lewis, commander of the Seventy-seventh Field Artillery at Fort Russell, Tex., is a 1905 graduate of the Military Academy. A 55-year-old native of Ohio, Lewis won the Croix de Guerre with gilt star in the World War.

Liquor Board Inquiry Delayed

A scheduled meeting of the special House subcommittee directed to investigate the administration of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board failed to produce a quorum yesterday, and Chairman Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, called another executive session for Monday afternoon.

Eberharter said he hopes to start hearings early next week after the subcommittee agrees upon the extent of the inquiry and the procedure to be followed.

Soviet Aide Loses Court Battle

Norman Weinberg, treasurer of Bookniga Corporation, yesterday lost his fight to escape trial on charges of failing to register his company with the State Department as the agent of a Russian publishing concern.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue of the District Court upheld the indictment. The trial of Weinberg and Raphael Rush, vice president of the company, is expected to be set shortly.

Dizzy, Diverting 'Girl Friday' Opens at Earle

Rosalind Russell and Cary Grant Costarred; Skelton's Final Week

"HIS GIRL FRIDAY." Columbia picturization of a screen play by Charles Lederer, adapted from the play "The Front Page," by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, costarring Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell, with Ralph Bellamy, Gene Lockhart, Helen Mack, Porter Hall, Ernest Truex, Cliff Edwards, Clarence Kolb, Roscoe Karns, Frank Jenks, Regis Toomey, Abner Biberman, John Qualen, Alma Kruger and Billy Gilbert. Directed by Howard Hawks. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

"You're marvelous—in a loathsome way!" says Rosalind Russell to Cary Grant. That's something of an overstatement because the tall, dark and handy Cary isn't loathsome. But in manners, morals and monkey business he surely is setting the Earle audience up to a bunch of semihorrified laughs in "His Girl Friday," celluloid resurrection of "The Front Page," one of the hottest opuses ever dashed off by Messrs. MacArthur and Hecht.

Hildy Johnson was a newspaperman in the original, but Hollywood has chosen to transform Hildy into Rosalind Russell. It's a neat idea, at that, because it gives a new angle to the show for those who've seen "Front Page" a time or so. Also, La Russell puts plenty of sizzle into the role, is much better than she was in "The Women."

For the rest, "His Girl Friday" is pure "Front Page," with the exception of the original boiling profanity. There's the pathetic murderer waiting for the necktie party in the morning, there's the stuffed shirt sheriff, mayor and psychologist, there's the nutty prison break, there are wise cracks with bite and sting, there's the hell-raising, let-'er-rip spirit of a newspaper day that is done—as the picture's announcement frankly says.

The cast of "His Girl Friday" is something tremendous, with star caliber people scattered all through.

It all adds up to making "His Girl Friday" one of the dizziest but most diverting pictures of the season. With its cast and the impact of that "Front Page" theme, it couldn't be otherwise.

"Red" Skelton pops up in the orchestra pit this week, practically tears an overture into tiny bits. "Red" does most of his conducting with his flaming top-knot. Master Skelton's other specialties of the week include his idea of how people walk up and down the Capitol steps, an inspired demonstration of why people applaud in radio studios and a brief excursion into magic. They say this is Red's last week. But we don't see why. He seems to whip up new acts with the speed of an electric mixer making milk shakes.

Emmett Oldfield is an acrobat who's like no other acrobat. To begin with, he has a certain resemblance to a Walt Disney cartoon. Then he and Eddie Ware go into stunts that we think are optical illusions. That's the only way to explain them. Gregory, Raymond and Cherie make music with harmonicas, rubber gloves, a vacuum cleaner, a tire pump and a "mystery machine."

Betty Bruce, dancing star of "The Boys from Syracuse," offers some slashing tap-stepping. Carol Manners warbles "Estrellita" very prettily while the spangles on her bodice reflect little stars of light all over the theater. The Roxyettes are balancing themselves on huge rubber balls this week.

MARY HARRIS.

Capitol's 'Remember the Night' Is as Unaffected as Indiana's Popcorn

Stanwyck, MacMurray Play Credible Humans In Likeable Film; 'Dance Crazy' on Stage

By Richard L. Coe.

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

"REMEMBER THE NIGHT." Paramount picturization of a screen play by Preston Sturges, costarring Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray, with Beulah Bondi, Elizabeth Patterson, Willard Robertson, Sterling Holloway, Charles Waldron, Paul Guilfoyle, John Wray, Thomas W. Ross, "Snowflake," Tom Kennedy Georgia Caine, Virginia Brissac and Spencer Charters. Directed by Mitchell Leisen. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

Because its humor and its sentiment are as inherently American as the Banks of the Wabash, "Remember the Night" is a film that will satisfy millions of filmgoers immensely, just as it did us yesterday at the Capitol Theater.

We don't like to use the words "folksy" to describe this likeable picture about a couple of Hoosiers, for less worthy works have often appropriated the adjective; but it happens that "folksy" is just the word to describe Fred MacMurray, Beulah Bondi, Elizabeth Patterson and Sterling Holloway as they are shown off to such advantage in Preston Sturges' sincere script.

For it is when these two young New Yorkers start out for an Indiana Christmas, that "Remember the Night" finally reveals itself. Up to that point, it has been alternately a whacky courtroom comedy with an attorney revealing his predelection for ham and a serious drama of a pretty young thief who got that way because of a poor upbringing.

The corn pops over the the roaster. The mother and her maiden sister are glad to have her lawyer son home for the holidays. They welcome the girl he brings with him as an intended fiancee, not for the crook for whom an assistant prosecuting attorney is responsible. And when the lights are low, frowzle-pated Sterling Holloway sings "The End of a Perfect Day" in a soft, quiet voice which you would never dream he had.

All this is handled too carefully by players, author and director to once become mawkish. The hairline between sentiment and sentimentality is ever respected. There is witty comedy, too, with "Snowflake" as Fred's New York houseman running off with some Rochesterish lines. There is the hilarious escape from the clutches of the law in Pennsylvania. There is an episode of bucolic fortitude in which the cow banquets on a hat that could be put to no better purpose.

"Dance Crazy" is the title of the Capitol's stage show. On the stage everyone dances except Al Gordon's well-trained dogs and the Three Sailors, although they weaken at the end. The Stadlers dance. Tall Melissa Mason dances. The Rhythm Rockets dance. The way we laughed at the Three Sailors one would have thought we were laughing at W. C. Fields. They are good no doubt, but so welcome were they in this revue in which everything danced, including our head, that we very nearly canonized them on the spot.

Art Brown at the organ is a redeeming feature, however. His screened lyrics are an F street novelty and without a doubt will have the Capitol rafters singing with the customers. Now, as a tribute to a fine comedy-drama, he ought to finish off his act with "Back Home in Indiana."

Not So Dizzy as It Looks

BARBARA STANWYCK AND FRED MacMURRAY, completely entranced to all outward appearances by their fingers the costars of the Capitol Theater's "Remember the Night," are in reality deeply concerned about her regeneratiton. He is the force which warns her of pitfalls on the primrose path

In Washington, last week, Jackson explained it this way: "I am in the position of a man marrying the widow of a perfect husband—who had died during the honeymoon."

FAY WRAY: The heroine in Sinclair Lewis' forthcoming book is the girl who was an understudy in the Lewis play in which you were to appear—"Angela at 22" . . . Maxwell Anderson: The Barrymore influence has affected Paul Muni, who now is starring in your "Key Largo." Paul ad libs a few names, and mutters cracks about the coughers in the audience—cracks which can be heard only by the cast . . . Elaine Barrie: Your press agent, Irving Strouse, is producing a new radio show, "Mr. and Mrs. New York," featuring Mr. and Mrs. James J. Walker.

FILM CRITICS CIRCLE: In the American Press Society Bulletin—rival of the Newspaper Guild—is an ad by a "former-Red critic," asking for a job. The ad describes him as having been "highly regarded by other New York movie critics, many of whom have followed his lead for the tone of their reviews." He's Howard Rushmore, who was fired by the Daily Worker . . . Ballet Theater: William Saroyan never saw your presentation of his ballet, "The American Goof." When George Jean Nathan wrote to him, and asked him why he wasn't coming East to see his Ballet, Saroyan confessed: "I might not like it."

AVERY BRUNDAGE: Paavo Nurmi and Taisto Maki are still optimistic about the Olympic games which were to be held in Finland this year . . . "Remember one thing, Nurmi said Wednesday, "We haven't as yet canceled the Olympics" . . . "But what about the war now going on in Finland?" the runners were asked . . . "Yes, there is a war now," said Maki, "but we're talking about the summer."

BOB SHERWOOD: Your associate, Elmer Rice, played in Monday night's performance of his show, "Two On An Island." He played a sightseer in a bus, a straphanger in a subway train and a customer in a coffee pot . . . Walt Disney: The premiere audience at "Pinocchio" loved it. It's a masterpiece . . . Betty Gable: Ferenc Molnar saw your show this week and wasn't impressed when you first walked onstage. Then when you shed your long dress Molnar caught one glimpse of your legs and confided: "That young lady has talent."

'Balalaika' Has Returned to The Main Stem

Film Operetta at Columbia Stars Eddy And Ilona Massey

"At the Balalaika" remains the most ingratiating song of the "Balalaika" film operetta which yesterday returned to F street for a run at the Columbia Theater.

As the vehicle which is introducing Ilona Massey to American stardom, "Balalaika" must surely be accounted an enormous success. It was the same studio—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer—which well over a year ago introduced the statuesque Miliza Korjus to this country. The impression the singing star made was enormous, but since that film her voice has been stilled on the sound tracks.

So it is that one hopes Miss Massey will not likewise be lost to view. Slimmer by many pounds than her voluptuous predecessor as the studio's white-haired canary Miss Massey is always a pleasure to watch. For one so blond she has a surprising voice, one that is given to the lower registers of "Carmen," from which she sings several arias with costar .Nelson .Eddy, instead of the more birdlike tones one would expect in so delicate a woman.

But in "Balalaika," the music is the thing. Nelson Eddy is there to do his part, to sing a Cossack riding song, to hum a lovely lyric and to miss his lost love of prerevolutionary Russia. And Dalies Frantz, that promising young concert artist who gave up his piano career for the life of an actor, seems to have made a profitable choice.

Charlie Ruggles and Frank Morgan are on hand to carry the comedy, frequently a load under the massive trappings of the old Russia or in the snow-bound trenches. But the two expert funmakers work as well as they wear.

Atlas

Edmund Lowe, debonair movie star, opened a four-day engagement at the Atlas Theater yesterday afternoon to thrill a packed house composed mostly of women who were anxious to see the suave star in person.

Mr. Lowe, assisted by the very charming and beautiful red-headed Loretta Dennison, does an informal love skit and demonstrates the various techiques employed by a handsome Hollywood leading man.

Mr. Lowe's hit is backed up by the pretty, vivacious Gaye Dixon, "solid" vendor of swing songs.

Last but not least Motter and Davis, the most sensational hand-to-hand act ever seen on the Atlas stage, thrill the patrons with their death-defying stunts. Morey Da Volt, Navy Yard draftsman and winner of last Friday night's amateur show, is given his first engagement as a professional and pleases everyone with his guitar-strumming and singing.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 9 (INS).—The real reason back of Madeleine Carroll's sudden decision to make a trip to London has just come to light. Madeleine is traveling to the war-ridden country to discuss with her divorced husband, Capt. Phillip Astley, the trust fund he settled on her following their divorce. But it isn't a battle—Madeleine expects to hand back the money to the good captain because she says she is able to earn her own fur coats and jewelry and does not want to accept his donations.

Chatter in Hollywood: Greta Garbo smashed all precedent at the swank Monte Carlo night club in New York when she and Gaylord Hauser marched in without being in evening dress. Guests are permitted to remain at the bar but not to enter the main dining room without evening regalia. The management was so amazed when la Garbo marched in that not a word was said and she was seated pronto. The rest of the stragglers at the bar not in evening clothes followed—and what could be done—what was right for one was right for all.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Edison (Jack) Randall in at Maurice, the jeweler's, buying a wedding ring to put on Louise Stanley's finger tomorrow. The ceremony will take place at his mother's house; Judy Garland and Artie Shaw are becoming an item; Deanna Durbin has dieted and is now pounds lighter; Lana Turner celebrated her birthday and the M.-G.-M. studio gang threw her a party with a cake and all the trimmings; Peggy Fears, hostess at an Indian dinner honoring Louise Stanley and Addison Randall who are planning to have a big reception following their wedding; Norma Shearer and George Raft lucky winners at Santa Anita. Countess Di Frasso, Mrs. Sam Goldwyn and this writer didn't have a lot of luck but we had a lot of fun. Norma, who to my knowledge was never a race enthusiast, even went to look over the horses with George. These two are really in love. Hal Roach stopped to tell me he has received a ton of mail since we announced that he is looking for an "unknown." He is serious, too, and reading all the mail himself; Ronald Reagan is now second to Errol Flynn in the amount of fan mail he receives; Maureen O'Sullivan's young son made his debut at the M.-G.-M. studio today when he posed for publicity stills with Greer Garson; Robert Stack and his mother, the very attractive Betzi, flew into town today from their New York jaunt. Amazing how Bobby's one movie has intrigued all the girls over the country.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

Hollywod, Feb. 9.

For those of you who have loved Charlotte Greenwood lo these many years, you'll get the kick of your life when you see her as the dramatic coach in "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star" at Twentieth-Century. The talent scout as her best beau in the picture is Roland Young. And if somebody doesn't grab this team of the long and short of it, I miss my guess. Charlotte started to kick those long legs of hers in her uncle's barber shop way back in Philadelphia. She did a couple of pictures years ago, but parts weren't entirely suited to her. This one is, and take my word for it, she's romping home! Charlotte has that Marie Dressler quality—a pathetic comic flare—the stuff that tugs at your heartstrings while you're laughing your head off. And Roland, who's been giving four star performances for years, is one of our least publicized big names. Only once did he have a press agent, and then wouldn't let the man write anything except about his collection of penguins. He wants his work to speak for him. Well, their present jobs will have you screaming for both.

Our beauties are delighted that one of the world's wealthiest bachelors, Sir Victor Sassoon, is in town for a week's visit with the Chester Fritzes, who are pouring for him tomorrow, with the glamour girls dancing in. I hear he's looking with an eagle eye into the picture business. Don't be too surprised if he plunges into it himself. And would that be good news! He's one of the most sophisticated, charming, well informed Englishmen it's ever been my pleasure to meet.

The freezing weather, which killed the citrus fruit in Florida, reminded me of one of the funniest preview stories I ever heard. Bill Le Baron and his Paramount gang, a couple of years back, took a Mae West picture for its preview to Pomona, the heart of our Citrus Belt. The place was jammed, and for four reels the audience went into hysterics. Bill decided to have a smoke and powder his nose—and when he came back the house was empty, except the gang who came with him. Seems while he was out—they flashed the following notice on the screen: "Temperature now 29—time to smudge." Audience didn't walk but ran to nearest exit.

My hat's off to Darryl Zanuck for getting Ted Scherdeman, a swell writer who's been in radio ever since it started, to write the "Cavalcade of Radio." He'll do a great job . . . You know what

WHY VALENTINE'S DAY IN LEAP YEAR MEANS nothing IN HOLLYWOOD

What a target for Cupid! Pretty girls wherever you turn. Valentine's Day. And Leap Year! But it all leaves Hollywood cold. There's the career problem, you know, and the glamour girls who are reaching for stardom don't feel they can do it with a dishrag in one hand. As for the Eleanor Powells, Sonja Henies, Olympe Bradnas, who have already arrived—well, there's the movies' caste system to consider. Read how Hollywood makes Cupid look stupid in Lucie Neville's Sunday Post article.

MRS. ROOSEVELT DOESN'T KNOW THE HALF OF IT!

When Mrs. Roosevelt was shocked at conditions at Blue Plains she saw only one-sixth of the problem. The Home for the Aged is in no more deplorable state than are five other Washington institutions: Receiving Home for Children, District Training School, National Training School for Girls and the two Industrial Home Schools for white and colored. In Robert DeVore's article in Sunday's Post you'll get the story of what these places are like, what they need and why nothing has been done. Here's something for every citizen to read and think about.

JUST ANOTHER CRANK . . . OR A POTENTIAL HITLER?

They laughed at Hitler once . . . which may be the reason some of the Dies committee members refuse to laugh off Pelley now. Who is this William Dudley Pelley? What's behind his sudden reappearance? Why has the Dies committee been searching for him so long? What's the significance of his statement that he's ready to disband his Silver Shirts now? How many of them are there to disband? John B. Oakes gives you the whole story in his Sunday Post article.

WASHINGTON CIVIC THEATER STARS LUISE RAINER FOR RED CROSS

The star—Luise Rainer—and the cause—the American Red Cross European Benefit Fund—are the drawing cards that will attract audiences for the coming week of Shaw's "Saint Joan." But it's all made possible by the hard work of the Washington Civic Theater. In The Sunday Post Richard Coe brings you personality sketches of the people who are responsible for the Civic Theater's accomplishments.

LINCOLN LOSES TO THE DIME They still stand in awe at the foot of his statue in the memorial. But the dime admission charge introduced last April has cut down the number of visitors to the Lincoln Museum and house where Lincoln died. In his Sunday Post article Gerald Gross tells about the visitors who still visit these shrines, and about the new displays, including the Booth pistol, which may make attendance at the museum pick up again.

NEAR EAST GETS THE WAR SPOTLIGHT With half a million British and French troops concentrated on the southeastern shores of the Mediterranean, and the Russian and German troops within close marching distance, the eye of Mars is focused once more on the Near East, scene of so many decisive battles through the centuries. Are the Allies planning a push from the south? Will Russia invade India? Hedley Donovan explores the possibilities for you in the Sunday Post.

Morgenthau And Russia

Secretary Morgenthau is reported to have dismissed as "ridiculous" the assertion of Senator Townsend that the Treasury is aiding the Communists by purchasing Russian gold. In a letter to Senator Vandenberg Mr. Morgenthau later explained that during the past two years no gold had been imported directly from Russia, although some gold bearing a Russian stamp has come from other countries.

As Senator Townsend has pointed out, whether we receive much or little gold directly from Russia is immaterial so far as his argument is concerned. As long as we take from the outside world all the gold that is offered, at an inflated price, every producing country, Russia included, is aided and subsidized by our policy. And now, to make the rout of the Secretary of the Treasury more complete, Russia has shipped about $5,600,000 of gold directly to this country.

This inopportune arrival is dismissed by Mr. Morgenthau as "an unimportant matter." In point of size the shipment may indeed seem insignificant to a Government official accustomed to deal in billions. But it serves to focus public attention upon the inconsistencies of the Administration's policies, justly criticized by Senator Townsend.

The Treasury follows the practice of accepting all gold offered, regardless of the country of origin, at a fixed price. This policy certainly nullifies the efforts of the Department of State to give at least moral assistance to Finland as a victim of aggression. While the Department of State places a "moral" embargo upon exports of airplane parts to Russia, the Treasury accepts gold shipments which enable the Soviet government to build up dollar balances here. Those dollars can be used to buy copper, machinery and various goods that Russia needs to wage successful war.

There is something very "screwy," as Senator Townsend says, about such a policy. The Administration should either adopt a consistent policy of discriminating against aggressor nations, or it should give up its half-hearted efforts to bring pressure to bear upon them. Our present method of administering rebukes and simultaneously bestowing benefits is worse than ridiculous. It is outrageously irresponsible.

On A False Assumption

The fact that an error is attributed to President Roosevelt in speaking of a great reduction in State, county and city debts at his Hyde Park press conference on Monday is not in itself significant. He was not reading an official document nor making an official speech. Rather he was defending the New Deal in an informal way before a group of newspapermen.

Like any other individual, the President is not infallible. Indeed, it would be strange if men in high Government office did not occasionally make mistakes. Fortunately, in a country where free speech and freedom of the press prevail, errors of this sort are quickly challenged and corrected. As a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, Thomas E. Dewey appears to have taken great delight in setting the President straight.

The only significant aspect of the incident is its suggestion that the President has formulated his fiscal policies under a gross misconception of the total amount of the public debt. If his statements were accurately reported (and the White House makes no complaint of inaccuracy in the Associated Press story) the President said that State, county and city debts have declined during his Administration as much as the Federal debt has gone up.

That statement appears to be in error to the extent of about $21,000,000,000. The figures cited by Mr. Dewey show a slight decline in State and local debt from 1932 to 1939. But the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury, citing more recent figures, estimates the volume of State, county and city securities outstanding in 1932 at $19,330,000,000, as compared with $19,626,000,000 in 1939. Presumably the debts of local governments increased slightly instead of declining. If all these debts had been wiped out, as Mr. Dewey notes, the reduction would not equal the increase in the Federal debt since Mr. Roosevelt went to the White House.

Is it possible that Mr. Roosevelt has predicated his spending program upon the false assumption that the total public debt of the country is not being increased? If so, the error is of colossal significance. In that event, the entire spending program would rest upon an illusion. For that reason, if for no other, it is to be hoped that the President will further amplify and interpret his statements to the press on this point in terms that are clear and unmistakable. When Congress is asked to continue borrowing vast sums of money to finance governmental activities, there should certainly be no misconception of the full burden that policy is laying upon future taxpayers.

The Welles Mission

Ten days ago, in a notable speech before the Yale Political Union, Assistant Secretary of State Berle predicted that "as a matter of course" the United States will, after the war, "contribute to the reconstruction of an ordered world as rapidly as possible." The American people, he added, "have not declined to assert peace, if peace can be soundly based."

A natural sequel to Mr. Berle's observation is found in President Roosevelt's announcement that the Undersecretary of State, Mr. Sumner Welles, is soon to leave on a mission to Europe. The potential importance of this trip, to France, Germany, Great Britain and Italy, cannot be obscured by the precautionary statement that: "This visit is solely for the purpose of advising the President and the Secretary of State as to present conditions in Europe."

The time is ripe for such an exploratory visit, by a career diplomat whose tact, discretion, intelligence and understanding of international problems are alike beyond question. Mr. Welles' mission may bring no tangible results. It may prove of the utmost importance. But, whatever its outcome, it is a move which is obviously in order.

A corollary to the American policy of neutrality is a constant willingness, whenever and wherever opportunity affords, to extend our good offices in behalf of a constructive peace settlement. And it is obvious that this settlement will have to go deeper than a mere termination of hostilities; it must also envisage cooperative action in long-range solution of the staggering problems which are multiplying for civilization with every day the war continues.

Interest in such a settlement is an essential part of our neutrality policy, for without such an interest our neutrality, difficult at best, will become progressively more hazardous. As the war goes on, and disintegration spreads, the chances of our involvement, political as well as economic, will mount. A maelstrom which grows in strength and suctional pull will inevitably draw this country nearer to its horrible core.

Any form of durable peace settlement may be wholly unattainable at present. But there is nothing premature in a careful analysis of the situation. And such an analysis implies a step such as that which the President announced yesterday. It demands not merely the reports received daily in Washington from our diplomatic agents abroad, but also a synthesis of the picture in the various nations, to be composed by an observer as shrewd, objective and judicial as is the Undersecretary of State.

No false hopes must be built on the mission which Mr. Welles is about to undertake. No discredit whatsoever will attach to him if it leads to nothing, for only information is sought. The beauty of the project is that while it may not succeed, it cannot fail. And it is wholly in line with the deeper obligations of our neutrality policy to ascertain what helpful action, if any, the United States can take at this stage of world disaster.

The Welles mission is a positive assertion of the American will for peace. As such it will be welcomed by the entire Nation.

Priceless And Unique

Few Washingtonians realize that in this city is to be found what experts agree in defining as the most valuable medical library in the world.

The description may sound exaggerated. But it seems to be the unanimous opinion of the physicians from every State and many countries who constantly utilize the facilities of the Army Medical Library at Seventh street and Independence avenue southwest. And the far-flung reputation of this library was well attested when, at its centennial celebration in 1936, messages of congratulation poured in from over 200 foreign institutions of learning.

Local ignorance as to the importance of the Army Medical Library is not surprising. Its work does not lend itself to general publicity and its quarters are such as to repel rather than attract attention. Nowhere else in the United States, perhaps, is so priceless a scientific collection so miserably housed. The building is old, ill equipped, terribly overcrowded and not even adequately fireproof. It also contains the Army Medical Museum, where inflammable materials are necessarily stored in connection with the preparation of specimens.

In these unworthy surroundings is to be found a collection, gathered over more than a century of continuous effort, which is both priceless and unique. The Army Medical Library possesses, either in original, in reprint, or in photostatic copy, virtually every medical publication produced since the invention of printing. There are files of unpublished letters from the most distinguished doctors of modern times. Aside from manuscripts and documents, the collection numbers close to a million volumes, all now subject to unnecessary deterioration because of the total absence of modern preservation facilities.

Over and above the books and papers there is, in the great Index Catalogue of the Army Medical Library, a world-famous adjunct to medical research. Here, kept constantly up to date by the little staff, is a complete bibliography in five languages on everything pertaining to medicine, surgery and allied subjects. Practically all of the vast material covered in this recurrent catalogue is available at the library.

Within the next month, as part of the hearings on the War Department appropriation bill, a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee will consider a modest estimate of $600,000, designed to purchase a site and prepare plans for a new building which will more adequately house the Army Medical Library and Museum. Whatever the needs of other forms of national defense, there is no part of the current Army estimates more worthy of public support than this relatively tiny item.

Nearly two years ago Congress authorized a new building to replace the present antiquated Army Medical Museum, erected in 1887. Economy of a glaringly penny-wise pound-foolish variety has heretofore blocked action under this authorization. In view of the long delays, and the urgent need, in providing this new building the least that can be done at this session is to make a start in a matter so patently overdue.

Wards Of The State

The lively controversy over the communistic elements within the American Youth Congress has tended to divert public attention from the problems under consideration by the current conference of that body here.

The delegates are primarily interested in obtaining for young people training at public expense that would fit them for their chosen occupations, and in finding jobs which would enable them to exercise their acquired skills. It is safe to say there would be no American Youth Congress if it were not for economic maladjustments that have thrown several million youths upon a world having little to offer them in the form of work and wages.

It is expected that the Congress will strongly indorse Senator Murray's bill providing work at prevailing wages on Government projects for young people between the ages of 16 and 25 years. In addition to full-time work on such projects, part-time work would be given to these still in school and college. Federal scholarships would be granted to students in high schools, secondary schools and vocational training schools, while needy students in professional and technical schools would be supplied with funds to pay for personal living expenses, books and school fees.

This program, calling for an annual appropriation of $500,000,000, would greatly expand the present student-aid program and in effect set up another WPA limited to young people. Like the present WPA, the program would be merely a palliative. It offers no hope of a constructive approach to the problem of creating jobs in private employment. Moreover, the provisions for schooling and professional training, based upon need alone, would encourage many incompetents to prolong their education at public expense.

In its current Bulletin the Federal Reserve Board estimates that the total output of industrial products, goods and services was at a higher level in the last quarter of 1939 than in 1929. Yet the number of persons employed, excluding those on work-relief projects, is somewhat less today than 10 years ago, although hours of work are shorter. Meantime, the population has increased about 8 per cent. In other words, no additional employment has been created since 1929 to provide jobs for the many thousands of young people who enter the labor market each year.

In face of this showing there is no reason to believe that an expansion of the WPA to take care of youthful applicants for work would help to solve the unemployment problem. If young people are supported in school and colleges by Federal grants, then graduated into "made" jobs provided by the Government, there is every reason to expect that many of them would become wards of the State for life. Certainly, many would come to believe that their Government owed them a living. Even if the country could stand the expense of the Murray program, it could not afford to risk the social consequences of setting up a secondary WPA for youth alone.

The very generosity of the Murray plan would increase the difficulty of finding jobs for inexperienced young people in private employment. What is needed is greater inducements to employers to hire workers, instead of policies that increase labor costs, thereby encouraging the installation of labor-saving devices and discouraging new enterprises.

If the American Youth Congress would devote some sober thought to the question of how to enlist employer cooperation in a campaign of expanded employment, it might make some really constructive suggestions for dealing with a problem that concerns Americans of all ages and all classes.

$26 Per Week

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his letter in The Post of February 7, G. C. B. goes to great lengths to explain how it is possible to support a family on $26 per week. This was totally unnecessary, as most of us have had to do it at some time or other during our lives and know only too well how it is done.

Also, it is entirely beside the point. The argument should not be, "how much can a musician live on?" but "how much is a musician worth?"

In about ten years, if G. C. B. studies very hard and continues to pay out his hard-earned money for music lessons and has enough native talent he will be qualified to apply for a job in an orchestra. Can G. C. B. say in all honesty that he would be satisfied with or deserve only the same salary he is getting now? Does he know how much janitors in the Government service receive per year? Is a musician less worthy than a janitor?

I appeal to civic-minded Washingtonians to demand that the members of the National Symphony Orchestra receive the very reasonable raise in salary that they are requesting. E. V. S.

Washington, Feb. 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Have read letter of Honorable G. C. B. with much interest and surprise.

What honorable gentleman say at end of letter is gem of wisdom—"once you have to and want to do it, it can be done."

I buy my humble lodging, food and clothing in much the same way as Honorable G. C. B. The pleasures of the theater and automobile are far beyond my income, so I do without them.

For same reason, I don't drink, smoke or gamble.

Even a cheap, $2.75 music lesson is too high for me—to say nothing of a $120 instrument!

In all this, the Honorable G. C. B. and I are in agreement. But where we differ is my doing all this because I have to—not because I want to.

In conclusion, let it be known that you can't eat your pie if you haven't got it!

CONFUCIUS SAY.

Arlington, Va., Feb. 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I add my voice of dissent to that of G. C. B. regarding the musicians' demand for a higher living standard?

However, even G. C. B. evidences a too liberal concept of what it takes to keep alive. Allow me to point out the reputed standard of the Chinese coolie who manages to get along on as little as 10 cents a day.

Nevertheless, there is no gainsaying G. C. B. that if there is a will there is a way. But G. C. B. has little to pride himself on compared with the Chinese coolie.

Impatience On Both Sides

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Roosevelt, refusing to be "smoked out" on the third-term issue, says he is tired of the wisecracks sent his way on this subject by newsmen and others.

He is no more impatient than a large segment of the American public in respect to his own levity and humorous dismissal of the same subject.

Presumably this has made a hit with single-track New Deal worshipers and beneficiaries; and those who believe all economic problems have to be "solved" by the New Deal.

It does not make a hit with those who doubt that the country could weather another four years of the Deal. Soft-pedaling the hate and business abuse campaigns over the last year has resulted—despite pump-priming curtailment and similar magic—in the first natural impulse shown by business and employment during the New Deal.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Visits

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That our First Lady is paying unheralded calls upon Washington institutions is most commendable. It is a pity she has no magic carpet that she might make calls upon all such institutions throughout these United States.

She is a great lady, indeed. If the wives and daughters of our Senators and Congressmen would be less concerned about their social positions and more concerned about the social problems of this Nation much might be accomplished to make this world a better place in which all may live decently.

Let us get to the root of what causes subversive activities. Remove that cause and there will be no need for appropriations for such as the Dies Committee. A doctor would be a poor one indeed who did not trace the disease to its source. There is a cause for every outer manifestation. Subversive activities, Dies Committees, and dictators are effects and until our aged and youth are cared for properly, we cannot consider ourselves civilized. CLEORA BAINBRIDGE.

Would Limit Income

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regarding the three letters in The Post of January 24 replying to Mrs. Russell's letter on taxation, I would much like you to state that there is a growing sentiment in this country, seeking organized expression, looking forward to bringing about a degree of economic or financial democracy to supplement the now formal or political democracy we think we exercise on election days.

And that democracy can and should be and some day will be, of Congress. The slogan now can expressed through the taxing power well be: "No one should be allowed to retain more than $1,000 a week until all who wish it have a job at $40 a week."

The average wage of employed people, $588 a year, is only $11.30 a week. That is too little, as an average, to permit businessmen to sell to the people the quantity of things they want to sell and the people want to buy. And all over $1,000 a week is nearned, however, frugal and thrifty one's ancestors may have been.

A table of proposed income taxes, ararnged by arithmetical progression, is sent herewith, which perhaps is too long to be printed in full, but I believe if printed would be much appreciated by your readers. An income of $2,000 a year should not be taxed at all, as that much could be spent in things needed. The proposed tax would be 1 per cent on the third thousand dollars of income, leaving a person who had $3,000 gross income a net income of $2,990. With an extra 1 per cent tax on each additional thousand dollars, the tax would gradually grow until a person with $100,000 a year would pay $48,510 tax, leaving the "earner" or "getter" of the $100,000 salary or income a net sum of $51,490 to spend, enough for any ordinary family in times like these when the average is $11.30 a week.

The Government should take 10 per cent of all incomes over $100,000 a year, in my opinion. Money should be earned, not "made." It is the "made" money that should bear the brunt of taxation.

American Music

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is encouraging and stimulating to American composers that the cause of American music is bringing forth the views of the public on this question, and most of them highly favorable. The only adverse note so far has been that of Mr. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony Orchestra.

In Mr. Cappel's opinion the appearance of an American composition on a program scares people away from the concert. The facts do not uphold this view. In the past six years the National Symphony Orchestra has played 11 different compositions by local composers.

In 1934 Mr. LaSalle Spier and I each had a number on a program on which there were three other American compositions; in 1936 I had a number on a program on which there were three other American compositions; when Deane Shure's "Circles of Washington" was performed it received the highest number of votes for repetition on the request program; later his "Berkie" symphony was performed with three other American compositions on the same program; in 1939 Mary Howe and LaSalle Spier had numbers on the same program, and in 1938 Alden Finckel had a number performed at one of the "Water-gate" concerts before an audience of something like 10,000 people.

At every one of the above-named concerts the hall was nearly filled and at every one of those concerts there were considerably more people than were present at the concerts of January 10 and January 17 this year, both of which were of exclusively foreign compositions and the second one had the additional magnet of a famous and gifted pianiste, Mme. Novaes.

At the concerts cited above in which American compositions were performed there were no casualties, the orchestra was not disrupted nor did anyone leave the hall; on the contrary, the applause seemed to indicate unusual enthusiasm, and the criticisms were unanimously friendly. No, Mr. Cappel, American compositions that Dr. Kindler deems worthy of a place on his programs do not scare people away.

The title of our local orchestra is "The National Symphony Orchestra." That word "National," to my mind, connotes something more than the fact that the home of the orchestra is the National Capital. It should connote an especial interest in "National" (native) music. It would also be a natural assumption that the interest of the orchestra should center largely on the local group of composers.

Help From Providence

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was happy to see more snow last Friday. I knew it was "Pennies from Heaven" for the District. After the big snow of two weeks ago, I noticed news items about the high cost of snow clearance but did not realize then that this cost is self-liquidating.

While my car was marooned, I was tagged and fined $3 for parking more than 18 hours in one place. When I realized that each of the fully 10,000 other cars in similar trouble presumably paid the District a like sum, I figured that there must be at least $30,000 from this source for snow removal. This should help a lot.

I hope the police do not get careless about reaping this harvest of manna from the sky. Last night, fully ten days after the big snow came, I saw numerous cars not yet moved and not yet tagged. This would seem to indicate less than full appreciation of the effort of providence to help balance the budget for the District.

The Post Impressionist

Dear Mr. Burpee

Thank you, Mr. Burpee, for the fine 1940 seed catalogue you just sent me. It's a particularly colorful edition, and I see you and your men have put in a busy year developing many new varieties of flowers and vegetables—and finding the fancy names for them. I enjoyed the whole annual very much.

I enjoyed it so much that I'm worried—conscience-stricken, I mean. I don't know what I can do to repay you for your thoughtfulness in sending me the book. You see, I live in a downtown third-floor apartment. Our kitchen window overlooks a nice expanse of tin sheeting that covers the rear rooms of the apartment below ours.

So all I can do is to let you know I appreciate the catalogue (humdrum term, that, for your exciting book, especially how happy it makes me, coming as it does in the midst of a very cold winter. I know now warm seed-growing weather will soon be with us again.

"If seed catalogues come, spring cannot be far behind," my father always said. I think he actually meant that "if." Winter days drag on the farm, as you probably know. While in our home the holidays were always gay enough, my father looked on them as the time for "getting over the hump" of winter. When, shortly after the first of the year, the seed catalogues bloomed in the morning's mail, he was sure the "hump" was passed.

I don't know what he would have done "if" those catalogues hadn't turned up to reassure him about spring. Of course, they never missed, and my father always had four or five weeks' jump on neighbors who had to wait for their seasonal forecast until ground-hog day.

Your catalogue for 1940 is impressively turned out—up-to-date in every respect, complete and very scientific. Yet I am glad to note you haven't lost the homey touch. True, you don't get as homey as one seed house man who sent my father catalogues—he regularly announced in his chatty foreword the arrival of a new baby in his family. But that is a lot to ask anyone to match, and of course I don't expect you to.

But you wrote a nice, friendly opening letter, too. Wishing us all kinds of luck with the spring planting and offering $100 for naming a new tomato your experts have produced.

Then, right beside the letter is that pleasingly informal snapshot of yourself with the new marigold you have developed, I believe, out of some new chemical. You look well and happy, Mr. Burpee, as you also do in the picture on page 4, where you are examining the new David Burpee zinnia.

I wonder if this new zinnia can be more outstanding, really, than the variety I bought from you five or six years ago (I had a small garden then).

I didn't have very good soil for them—a thin layer of sand and clay poured over an old brick fill-in. It wasn't "dirt" as we knew it on the farm. But zinnias don't need rich dirt, and the description you gave one of your new varieties promised results even, I thought, under the handicap my soil would give them.

I planted the seed and nursed the little plants through a cold, wet spring. Then it turned hot and dry. It was so hot that all the water I poured on the bed with the garden hose should have produced an A-1 fire sale. The zinnias hung on—withering by day, paling by night.

In August we went on our vacation, and I wasn't sorry, because for two weeks I wouldn't have to watch the zinnias suffer.

By the time we were back the poor things, without the care I had been giving them, would be out of their misery.

We were gone two hot weeks and returned dead tired one hot night. So I didn't get the surprise of my life until next morning. Looking out of the kitchen window, I saw that zinnia bed ablaze—not from the sun, but with blooms. My back yard was as brilliantly luxuriant as a tropical garden.

That evening our neighbor called across to us while we surveyed our splendor.

"Don't it beat all," he said without so much as a prefatory "hello" welcoming us back, "how nature works! For two weeks my zinnias have been getting the hoeing, weeding and sprinkling—and your zinnias burst into bloom. Just look at mine."

There wasn't much to look at. His flowers were dying.

As I said, this happened some years back. I hope my telling you this long afterward won't keep you from being a little happier for knowing about it.

And about that name for the new tomato. I'll do some real hard thinking about it. But looking at the names you have given other recent discoveries, I frankly believe any name long enough, mystifying enough and unpronouncable enough to suit your needs will be well worth the $100 you are going to pay.

'Jockeying' Of Parties

By Mark Sullivan

Convention Issue

THE REPUBLICAN National Committee will meet in Washington next Friday. This, like the meeting of the Democratic National Committee during the past week, is one of the events which start the quadrennial machinery for selecting a President. The principal business of the Republicans, as of the Democrats, is to select a time and place for the national convention, which shall nominate the candidates for President and Vice President.

SULLIVAN

As to time, there has been a certain amount of "jockeying" between the parties, to determine which should hold its national convention first. Traditionally, the Republicans have met first, about mid-June, and the Democrats some two weeks later, during the last week in June. This has been the rule regardless of which party was in power, and which the opposition party.

Some months ago it occurred to some Republicans that they should hold their convention after the Democrats. The idea was not new—it was discussed in 1936. The notion was that the party in power ought to meet first. Then the opposition party would have opportunity to perform the function of an opposition party—write a platform and name a candidate providing contrast with the party in power.

THIS YEAR, after the Republicans had talked of holding their convention later, the Democrats showed disinclination to let this happen. President Roosevelt made a suggestion which, if carried out, would have postponed the Democratic convention until quite late, too late for the Republicans to wait and meet afterward.

When the Democratic National Committee met early in February, to fix their date, they showed a clear disposition not to let the Republicans meet later than them. The Democratic committee, instead of fixing the date, left the decision in the hands of their national chairman, Mr. Farley. This gave the Democrats a hard and fast advantage. Mr. Farley could wait as long as he chose, for announcing the date; and he could fix the date as late as he chose.

In this situation, the Republican committee, meeting next week, are obliged to forego any notion of trying to hold their convention later than the Democrats. Under the circumstances it seems likely the Republicans will fix the date in accord with past usage, on the nearest Tuesday to the middle of June, June 18. This is commonly expected, though of course it will not be decided until the committee meets.

IT IS COMMONLY felt, also, that just as soon as the Republicans have fixed their date, probably Mr. Farley will promptly announce the date of the Democratic convention. Likewise it is felt Mr. Farley is likely to choose a date a week or two subsequent to the Republican date, that is, during late June. All of which, if it turns out that way, will mean that all the talk about the Republicans meeting later than the Democrats, about later conventions of both parties and a short campaign, will have come to exactly nothing.

So far as there is any symbolism in this, it might be said that in a time when all traditions and usages having to do with government are under menace; when the great American tradition, the one against a third term, seems especially threatened—in this condition the Republicans choose to stick to their tradition about date. And if the common surmise about the Democratic date turns out to be correct, it would mean that the Democrats too—at least that portion of them reflected by Chairman Farley—will stick to their tradition about date.

The New Deal portion of the Democrats wanted a materially later date. When anything is permitted to be as equivocal and mysterious as the matter of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt, surmises about motive arise. It has been said that if the Democratic convention were held quite late, that would make the time for the campaign short. A short campaign would be ample for Mr. Roosevelt as a candidate, because he is already perfectly well known to the country. But a late date for the convention would make it inexpedient to nominate a candidate less well known, who would need a longer campaign to make his impression on the public.

THERE HAS BEEN another surmise—that a late date for the Democratic convention would increase the possibility of nominating Mr. Roosevelt, because it would give him the maximum length of time to become the beneficiary of any gestures he might make toward peace, or other developments having to do with the war in Europe.

The third term question dominates everything within the Democratic Party. So far as can be observed, it affects the Republicans not at all. In discussions of who should be the Republican nominee, no one suggests that one man would be better than another for the purpose of running against Mr. Roosevelt. That consideration is not mentioned. Many Republicans think, as many Democrats do, that Mr. Roosevelt would be the strongest candidate the Republicans could nominate. But many Republicans, and likewise some Democrats, think the opposite. The view of one doughty Republican is expressed thus: "I hope they nominate Mr. Roosevelt. Then we'll have everything—the New Deal, Mr. Roosevelt and his record, and the question of a third term—all on one limb; we can get all three with one shot."

Jackson's Speech to Youth Congress

Declares Lincoln One Republican Unafraid To Address Rally

Following is the text of an address delivered last night by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson before the Lincoln Memorial meeting of the American Youth Congress:

Perhaps it is hard for you to imagine how flattering it is to such a well worn youth as I to be invited to share the platform at a Youth Congress. For more reasons than one it is appropriate that you open your institute tonight with a memorial meeting for Abraham Lincoln. He was one Republican who would not have been afraid of you. Speaking of his long fight for human freedom, Carl Sandburg says of Lincoln:

"He knew that his best hopes for listeners to such an appeal were the young people. The 15 and 16 year old boys who had read 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' when it was published six years before Lincoln's 'House Divided' speech had grown into 21 and 22 year old voters. In what he was doing and saying Lincoln kept in mind the young men; he knew that the challenging radical tone of what he was saying about the Declaration of Independence would interest not only the foreign born voters, but also the young people of all classes those to whom the American Revolution still had a breath of smoke and a banner of sacred flame."

And, as Sandburg adds:

"Perhaps, after all, only the young people with dreams and wishes in their eyes would understand his language. When his talk was ended and his language had failed to measure off all he wanted to say, it might be the young who would best understand the desperation of his dreams, the unmeasured lengths of the adventure he was for."

Lincoln's Aims Exaggerated

I do not know what your dreams are, and it probably will not be for me to experience the unmeasured length of your adventures. In any case, I am quite certain that I believe in your right to have your dream and your adventures.

Of course, to some people this spirit of social and political unconventionality is terrifying, and to some people such an assembly of young people is a symbol of dark and nightmarish plottings against government. Lincoln, too, experienced that. A book written at the time of Lincoln's campaigns so exaggerated his real aims as to anger him. It said:

"Men once fairly committed to Negro slavery agitation—once committed to the sweeping principle that 'man, being a moral agent, accountable to God for his actions, should not have those actions controlled and directed by the will of another' are in effect committed to socialism and communism and to the most ultra doctrines—to no private property, no church, no government—to free love, free lands, free woman and free churches."

Dangerous?

Thus it was sought to blast the dreams and ideals of the early Republican Party by labeling its anti-slavery sentiment as dangerous radicalism. Seems a little far-fetched today, doesn't it? But what seems more surprising is that the political party which has been trying to wear Lincoln's political garments now refuses to associate with any of you youths because you are now labeled radicals and Communists.

Of course, I do not know how dangerous you really are, but I do hope you are not so bad as to warrant the suggestion that you must clean up and purify yourselves in order to be worthy of a message even from the party of Warren Harding, Albert Fall and Joe Pew.

I may be wrong about it, but it always seemed to me that a parent or a citizen who thought a youth in danger of great error was under an equally great duty to give patient and understanding counsel. That was the spirit and the practice of Abraham Lincoln. Convinced that he was right and that it was a duty and a privilege to set others right, he went out and sought to present his views to those who differed with him. He set before us the classic example of revealing his own thoughts in debate, in the generous confidence that out of the free competition of ideas the American people can be trusted to choose the best ones.

My embarrassment in speaking to you tonight is not from a sense of being holier than thou, but from a confused sense of inferiority. While I try to be unconscious of the passing years, I am still vaguely aware of the mortality tables. They tell men of my age that, on average, you will be here long after we are gone. That means that our work, our capital, our institutions, and even our reputations will be left in your hands. Some men like Lincoln have grown in fame with posterity; others shrivel. The best we of today can do is at the mercy of time, and more time remains to you than to us.

Then, too, I am not so cocksure that my own generation has done such a good job in its time that I feel qualified to tell you what you should do with your lives in your allotted time. It would be too devastating if you should, as you probably would, reply:

"Well, if you are so wise, why are you leaving us such a mess of wars, and rumors of wars, of social strife, economic stagnation and political reaction, which has overwhelmed much of the world and bedevils all of it?"

I freely acknowledge that the world of today lives in a glass house and is not privileged to throw stones at those who are to follow.

Part of Status Quo

It is, I admit, a little difficult for one of my generation to talk to you in terms of your own dreams and visions, for we cannot share them fully. After all, we are a different generation, and we are a trifle afraid of you. That because, while you are tossed about by the same storms as we, you are riding free, while we older ones are mostly anchored. Some of us are anchored to a little accumulation of property; some, anchored to a prospect of accumulating. Some are anchored to jobs, or to social position, or political affiliations, or to some of those things which are tangible assurances that we will "stay put."

No matter how free we try to be, we are all tangled up in the existing order of things, and it is woven into us. We are part of the status quo.

And, too, no honest man can expect a free and hopeful youth to accept a status quo in which involuntary unemployment, foreclosed opportunities for independence, dependent old age, and so many injustices play so large and disastrous a part. We know we are leaving you an indefensible legacy. We know you are going to do something to it, and we don't know what. We know that you don't know what. We only know that the pattern of the future is in your minds, not in ours.

Not Only Ones

Although you do inherit a good deal of difficulty and confusion, you here in America are also the inheritors of things which have cost blood and sacrifice to win and which you will find still worth preserving. We have a system—an imperfect one, it is true—but one which aims to give us government by consent of the governed. And in order that such popular will may be enlightened and freely known, there was established the right of free speech, and of the press, and of petition, as well as other liberties from restraint. These limitations are to protect your freedom against the persons you elect to office.

Of course, they are not the only persons from whom you will need to guard your liberties. Under our economic system grave injustices and inequalities may be perpetuated by men never elected to office, but who through economic advantage control jobs, or credit, or monopolize commodities, or who can otherwise strike at your means to live or your standard of living. From these sources come the greatest modern threats to your pursuit of happiness.

This democratic government of ours was so fashioned as to be a power for your protection against such private injustice and exploitation and, at the same time, not to become an oppressor itself. It was placed in the hands of the people that they might stop wrongdoing by irresponsible private power, without becoming subject to irresponsible public power.

Time will not permit me to trace the steps by which this virile and strong government envisoned by John Marshall was stealthy deprived of its power to curb private exploitations and injustices of an economic nature. The slave power feared a government strong enough to check i ,tand its penetrating influence was long dedicated to the task of restricting through judicial decision, the power of the national government. After Lincoln struck down that menace there arose the great combinations of finance and industry which found strong government an obstacle to their imperial designs for exploitation. By 1936 the national government was reduced by judicial decision to its lowest efficiency.

It has seemed to me that the biggest task of the New Deal was to restore to this people's government its original powers, lost through judicial interpretation. That is the task in which I have been chiefly engaged, and we are prepared to hand on to you a more effective government than the one Franklin D. Roosevelt has had to work with. Consider with me a list of the things that he was told he could never, never do, but which we now are told the Government always really had a right to do:

When President Roosevelt took office the people were powerless to enact, either through State or Nation, a minimum wage law to protect women. Both the States and the Federal Government now have that power.

Farm Program Upheld

President Roosevelt took over a Nation without power to enact a law dealing with child labor. We now have such a law.

President Roosevelt found a Nation with its power to protect the right of labor collectively to bargain condemned as unconstitutional by a junta of 52 of the lawyers of America. The Nation has now won recognition of that power.

It was only about a year ago that we won the final decision of the Supreme Court confirming the power of this Nation to enact a valid farm adjustment program.

It was only about three years ago that I sat before the Supreme Court on decision day to learn for the first time that our argument had prevailed and that a system of unemployment compensation could be legally undertaken.

Less than three years ago I was standing before the Supreme Court as a representative of this Administration pleading for the power to deal with the urgent problem of decent care for our growing population of aged and infirm. We were opposed by the conservative argument that the Nation could not take any step whatever to deal with old age pensions. Now we have that power.

Utility Honesty Won

Phesident Roosevelt found this Nation without power to aid a distressed industry, like the bituminous coal industry. The Guffey Coal Act was thrown out as wholly illegal in 1936. This year the Coal Commission won its first contest in the Supreme Court.

President Roosevelt found the power of the Nation to enact a public utilities holding company act challenged. Its power to impose common honesty upon great interstate utility combinations which had always been the purse of reactionary politics was doubted. We have won the power to do that.

He found the country without power to enact a municipal bankruptcy act to permit its cities and villages to restore financial order and credit where there had been overobligation from years of political looting or improvidence. We have won the power to do that.

He found it without power to tax the public officeholder's salary as it did other citizens' salaries. We have won the power to do that.

He found it without power to tax the salary of a Federal judge, as it did other citizens' salaries. Today the Nation has the power to do that.

In short, Roosevelt has won for the Nation that which he found it without adequate power to do—either to govern the powerful or to protect the weak.

The reason I call your attention in such detail to this change of constitutional interpretation is that I think it may answer in your mind, as it has in mine, grave doubts as to whether our Government could be made equal to solving its problems.

Four years ago, as measure after measure of recovery and of reform were crushed as unconstitutional, I, too, was pretty despondent about the future. I did not, and do not, feel that the New Deal measures were the perfect nor even the best solution of our problems. The loss of these particular measures was not so serious as the loss of the power to enact any measures dealing with those admitted evils.

Before you look wistfully at any other form of government, let's see what we can do with this American government with its powers thus restored. Here are old frontiers reopened to statesmanship. Here are new possibilities for the redress of grievances, restoration of lost opportunities and equalities.

"American System"

Of course, it will not move as fast as some would like, but our Government can move as fast as our underlying society and economy will assimilate changes, and efforts to move faster always produce countermovements that undo much of what has been accomplished. If the people are really determined, they can now utilize our Federal Government to knock out old privileges and unfair advantages, to open the closed doors to individual opportunity and to turn out unprecedented national wealth to a source of individual security.

I know full well that many people who talk of preserving this "American system" really mean only that they want to preserve the status quo and their advantageous position in it. But I would urge you to preserve our American system for an exactly opposite reason. Our system is really a great system for the changing of the status quo by peaceful and orderly means. Except in nations that have the device of popular elections, there is no way to repudiate and change a governmental policy except by force. Elections are the civilized substitute for force to keep a government abreast of public opinion.

I know that in many places abroad and in a few at home, it is the custom to scoff at free government, to call democracy the "cult of incompetence," to complain of it as slow and compromising and outmoded. But if we were to grant all of those charges—which we need not—it is still democracy alone which preserves that priceless thing for which youth in all ages has searched—the dignity and worth of the individual.

Almost Alone in Influence

With all our gropings and uncertainties we have in America held to that ideal. If our practice does not measure up to the ideal then, that discredits not the ideal but only the weakness of our efforts. You live in a country where the individual may listen to his radio even if what he hears does him no good. The individual here may have grievances against his system, but he does not disappear unaccountably if he unites with others in denouncing them. The individual may read anything he can get hold of, write as he pleases, and speak his mind, even if what he says is distasteful to the rest of the country.

Among the great nations of the earth this is one of the few where plain ordinary citizens are preparing to go to the polls and settle our national policy by a choice of leaders for the next four years. You are almost alone of the peoples in which the individual in humble station may register his influence on questions that settle the fate of the Nation.

You may truthfully say that we have not the complete democracy and the perfect justice that we dream of, but you cannot deny that we are among the few who have in our own hands the possibilities of approaching those hopes. Is it any wonder that among us are people passionately attached to this system, in spite of its shortcomings, and intensely resentful of any movement which they think would overturn it?

You will soon take over from your elders unsolved problems as vexing as have fallen to any generation. But there is also handed to you a government more responsive, more effective, and more useful than we have had. Your great opportunity is to make it work. Let that be your crusade! Drive out of power the incompetent, the corrupt and the indifferent! Walk into this democratic process and master it! Make it serve your dreams and realize your visions! I, for one, welcome your active, unbossed, and unpurchasable enthusiasms in public affairs.

If your enthusiasms and visions at times conflict with the lessons of experience and our cautions, that is only what happens under every roof that is blessed by housing two generations. For my part, I am glad it is so.

Pardon For Parker?

EIGHT THOUSAND friends and neighbors of Ellis Parker, the celebrated hick detective, had signed a petition for a Presidential pardon before he died last Sunday in the Federal penitentiary, at Lewisburg, Pa., the Groton of the prison system, where he was serving six years for kidnaping and torturing an innocent man to compel him to confess to the Lindbergh murder. It is now intended to pursue the matter, anyway, so that Parker's honor may be restored posthumously if there be any legal precedent for such a stroke.

This is another of those melancholy developments which give rise to despair that public officers in the United State ever will be held to a decent standard of honesty and responsibility. Parker was an intelligent man who often made boast of his cunning, and the crime for which he was sent to prison was the more vicious because he was a trusted peace officer with a national reputation attributable in large part to the enthusiasm and, it may be, the gullibility of metropolitan reporters.

Publicity-Loving Pet Of The Press

MANY ANOTHER MAN whom Parker himself put away for offenses which were trivial by comparison is still in prison, and the proof presented in Parker's trial that he was a treacherous faker obsessed with an ambition to get convictions regardless, and thus swell his cheap little record and his vanity, should remind the courts of New Jersey of more urgent demands on their solicitude. He was a strutting, publicity-loving pet of the press who made a specialty of picturesqueness, and the very fact that Parker was convinced of a man's guilt was equal to at least one strike, if not two, on a defendant in the courts in which he practiced.

But if he would resort to kidnaping and torture to break down one innocent man, intending to send him to the electric chair as a sacrifice to his ambition, he may have faked evidence and extorted confessions from many others before he was caught in the act and convicted. He was a loner in his investigations, distrusting other peace officers, some of whom, no doubt, were dumb or venal, or both, but consideration should not be given to the probability that he worked alone the better to plant evidence or frame witnesses. Some of those whom he convicted went to the chair, but some large number are still confined in much worse prisons than the genteel Federal clink in which he was quietly putting in his time for a horrible offense puttering in the library.

His Cruel Perfidy Shocked Reporters

THE REVELATION of Parker's cruel perfidy in the Lindbergh case was a shock to reporters who in years long past had worked with him and carelessly formed a high opinion of his character. He was not always scrupulously legal in his methods, but that was put down to the fact that he was not a lawyer, but sort of goosebone Hawkshaw who used crude methods to arrive at honest results. When he was convicted his guilt was shown beyond any doubt, and there were no extenuating circumstances. Not only did he know what he was doing, but he left his own jurisdiction to do it, and for no other reason than to harvest another stack of newspaper clippings and possibly some pickings for ghosted pieces under his name.

In view of all the facts it is plain that Parker deliberately chose to sacrifice his own honor, that he suffered no injustice but, on the contrary, got off much better than some of the dumb, blundering ignoramuses whom he sent away for longer terms in much worse prisons, and that a pardon after death or any other gesture of condonation or forgiveness would be a sneer at the half-forgotten ideal of decency in public office.

Pardons are for men who have been convicted by mistake, or, having done their time, rehabilitate themselves by going straight. Parker was guilty, and he hadn't finished a term which wasn't half of what he deserved, and a pardon, if one is issued, will be only a dirty political document granted for the satisfaction of dirty politicians who made a political issue of the Lindbergh case.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Vandenberg's Pup

MR. HULL has had two successes in the past ten days. His policies have been indorsed by the House Committee. But even better, Mr. Hull's most formidable opponent, Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, has ventured to introduce a bill (S. 3238) defining his ideas of the alternative, his ideas of what the commercial policy of the United States should be if it rejects Mr. Hull's policy, and of how the policy should be put into effect.

LIPPMANN

If Mr. Hull can now persuade the Republicans to read and appreciate Mr. Vandenberg's bill, he will win his fight with a landslide vote. Mr. Hull's only difficulty will be to make the Republicans believe that a leading candidate of their party is sponsoring the program that Mr. Vandenberg is sponsoring. Mr. Hull may even have difficulty in making Mr. Vandenberg himself believe it.

The Vandenberg bill abolishes the Tariff Commission and sets up a new agency, composed of six men, called the Foreign Trade Board. In this board are vested not only all the powers of the Tariff Commission but also the powers of the State Department, as they deal with commercial treaties. What must interest us, however, are the new powers that Mr. Vandenberg would vest in this board.

Sets Up Machinery For Exchange Control

They begin in Section 11, which gives the board the right to compel "every person within the United States," (meaning individuals, partnerships, corporations, banks, trust companies and so forth) to produce all books, contracts, letters or other papers relating to the following subjects: any transaction in foreign exchange, the transfer of credit or payment between American and foreign banks, the export or import of securities and of gold and silver.

Whether or not Mr. Vandenberg realizes it, this is a proposal to establish the machinery of exchange control. The Vandenberg bill does not propose to use this machinery right away. But it would set up the machinery by which the board of six men could, under a slightly broader interpretation of its powers, control every kind of financial transaction across the frontiers of the United States. Now such machinery as Senator Vandenberg wishes to establish here exists of course, in many other countries. But no country, excepting only Soviet Russia, has ever willingly adopted it. Elsewhere in time of peace it has been adopted only by debtor countries, like Germany and Italy, which, needing to import more than they were able to pay for, have been constrained to adopt exchange control in order to conserve funds for foreign purchases. Only the most lunatic of the Nazis have ever pretended that the system was anything but a horrid necessity; every sensible German and Italian has deplored the fact that his country had to adopt such a system. In Britain and France the system of exchange control was not put into effect until the war compelled them to conserve their resources for the purchase of essentials.

No country would dream of adopting this system if it were in the position of the United States. For exchange control is necessary only when a country does not have the means of buying abroad the things that it needs to buy. When a country is in our position, possessing an inexhaustible stock of gold, attracting to itself free funds from all over the world, the idea of instituting exchange control is an absurdity. It is like a fat man taking a cure for undernourishment.

Why then does the Vandenberg bill propose to vest in the new board the inquisitorial powers, the vast, complex regulatory mechanism, the immense overhead bureaucratic supervision of private transactions, that are employed elsewhere only by impoverished countries, by countries under a dictatorship, and by countries at war?

I really do not know why Mr. Vandenberg thinks such powers need to be vested in another board in Washington.

Tariffs Abolished, Embargoes Take Place

BUT PERHAPS the answer is to be found in Section 13 of his bill which, believe it or not, provides for the abolition of the tariff and the substitution of embargoes "to prevent the importation" of articles "at an import price" which is "less than the reasonable cost of production of a like or similar domestic article, in the case of articles other than agricultural commodities." The reader may think that Mr. Vandenberg merely wants to raise the tariff. He will be mistaken. Mr. Vandenberg wants to prevent imports. And he means to prevent them not merely by having the board raise the tariff rates as high as may be necessary but, if this does not prevent imports, to impose "import restrictions" which he describes as "limitations, prohibitions, charges and exactions other than duties imposed on importation or imposed for the regulation of imports."

Since he believes in such a policy, it is perhaps understandable why he thinks it necessary to get the country ready for exchange control. For this policy of the embargo would not only wreck foreign trade but would throw the currency and financial markets of the United States and elsewhere into such disorder that it probably would be necessary, even for us, to establish Government control of all exchange transactions. Thus Section 11 becomes intelligible in the light of Section 13. For Section 13 might succeed in producing the calamity that Section 11 would then be needed to deal with.

• • • •

This leads us into Section 14 which provides that the United States should descend to the level of carrying on its foreign trade by barter agreements. After Section 13, which would do so much to destroy normal commerce, Section 14 would undoubtedly be necessary. For the country, having wrecked its foreign trade, would be loaded with unsalable surpluses of all sorts of commodities. Mr. Vandenberg's new board would then have plenty to do trying to get rid of these surpluses by barter agreements.

A Proposal Alien To U. S. Principles

SO MR. VANDENBERG offers us as a commercial policy an embargo on imports of non-agricultural products, the prospect of exchange control, and the conduct of our commerce by the primitive method of barter. And this, I suppose, is to be done under the impression that Mr. Vandenberg is saving the American system of free enterprise.

If it were not obvious that Mr. Vandenberg is an innocent man, one might wonder how he ever came to sponsor a proposal so utterly alien to American principles, so naively acquiescent in the very worst practices of the age we live in. Mr. Vandenberg cannot possibly mean seriously to commit his party and his country to the economic philosophy which his bill describes. He cannot have understood what he was doing when he accepted these ideas.

But this time somebody has certainly sold him a pup.

Radio Workshop To Present Skit From Cardozo

Forty pupils of the Cardozo High School will participate in the Student Radio Workshop, sponsored by The Post and WJSV, from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today.

An original skit, based on incidents at the school, will be featured, with the following persons having parts: Theodore Nickens, Robert Edwards, Leon Eskridge, Frederick Hinson, Mary Curry, Bertha Timbers, Paul Shackelford, Helen Lucas, Edith Anderson, Dorothy Gordon and Jane Norton.

Redeemer Chapel, Glen Echo. The Rev. Edward Slater Dunlap, new executive secretary of the Washington Diocese, will preach at 9:30 a. m., the first of a group of prominent clergymen scheduled to appear during Lent.

All Saints. The Boy Scout Troop will be guests at the 11 a. m. service, at which the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke will preach on "Life's Disciplines."

Rockefeller Backs League to Help Alcoholics Reform

New York, Feb. 9 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller, jr., who has tried to hide many of his philanthropies and social reform activities under the bushel of anonymity, was revealed today as interested in a "secret" organization aimed at regenerating alcoholics.

The organization is "alcoholics anonymous" which started when three men who overcame their craving for whisky and wanted to help others in the same plight began the movement that today numbers 120.

Rockefeller advocated prohibition but decided it was wrong after it had been tried 12 years.

The organization came into being about four years ago to help, anonymously and without publicity, chronic alcoholics in reclaiming themselves.

The work is carried on principally by personal contact of former alcoholics with alcoholics.

Church of the Week

Chevy Chase Methodist Scouts Holding Double Celebration

Troop 25 a Year Old; Boys to Attend Rites Tomorrow in Body

By Robert Tate Allen.

"Boy Scout Week," inaugurated last Thursday throughout the Nation, is a double-barreled celebration for Troop 255 of Chevy Chase Methodist Church.

It not only marks the thirtieth anniversary of the Scout movement, but the first birthday of the troop. While formally organized on February 1, 1939, the group is linking its celebration with the general observance.

Led by Scoutmaster Carleton Wahl, of 8403 Sixteenth street northwest, and assistant scoutmasters Fred Plitt and Leslie Teller, jr., the boys will attend services tomorrow—"Boy Scout Sunday"— in a body, and hear the Rev. Edward G. Latch, pastor, speak on "The Sources of Happiness."

One of the founders of the troop, Mr. Latch yesterday expressed extreme gratification at the unit's progress in its first year.

Girl Scouts Also Active

The troop, more than 50 per cent of whose members are working for merit badges, sent the largest representation to the recent Boy Scout "Court of Honor" of Montgomery County, the clergyman pointed out. Twenty-five boys are in the troop and more are waiting to enroll.

Girls of the Chevy Chase Methodist Church also have ample opportunity for scouting activity. Twenty-four youngsters are members of Troop 84, led by Mrs. Kenneth Rouse.

Among the most progressive congregations of the suburban area, the Methodist group is hoping to have its new $4,250 Lewis and Hitchcock organ installed and dedicated before Palm Sunday—March 17.

J. Horace Smithy, leader of the noted Chevy Chase Chanters, heads the choir, now busy "tuning up" for Palm Sunday and Easter Day programs. Margaret Thornton is organist.

Mothers Have Club

As in other years, the Chevy Chase Methodist Church is playing an active role in the union Lenten services of the community's Protestant churches, and on March 7 will have its turn as host. Dr. George D. Heaton, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Lynchburg, Va., will preach.

Women's activities are centered around the Women's League, which meets for a luncheon-meeting on the first Wednesday of each month under the leadership of Mrs. Robert C. Straw. The three circles are led by Mrs. Charles A. Shepp, Mrs. Edward A. Burnett and Mrs. Donald Simpson. Mrs. Marshall C. Guthrie heads the Women's Missionary Society, which last year exceeded all its goals.

will address scouts

The Mother's Club, whose purpose is to bring closer association between the home and church, is composed of mothers of kindergarten and nursery children, and gathers monthly.

Chief workers in the expanding Men's Club are L. Varella, also chairman of the church's finance committee; John Poole, William L. Orme, jr., Carl Plitt, Horace E. Troth, Dr. Harvey L. Curtis and William E. Springer.

Pastor Also Youth Leader

Scientist at the Bureau of Standards and author of several books on scientific subjects, Dr. Curtis is president of the board of trustees, of which Mr. Springer is secretary-treasurer. Mr. Latch is chairman of the official board. Mr. Springer and Mr. Orme are lay delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist Church.

The Rev. W. Harold Snape, supervisor of Goodwill Industries here, is superintendent of the active Sunday school, while young people's work is carried on under the leadership of Francis Schmidt, Mr. Varella, Casper Shafer, John Troth and the Rev. Mr. Latch.

Prominent in the field of religious education, Mr. Latch, who came to his present charge in 1932, has been dean of the Midwinter Institution for local Methodist youth for five years, served on the summer institute faculty for six years—being its dean for four years—and will be dean of the new senior high school summer institute this year at Western Maryland College. Dr. John N. Link, of the college feculty, will be dean of the younger adult conference.

Baptists Convene Here on Feb. 19

The Baptist Convocation here on February 19 will "witness the greatest outpouring of Baptists ever seen in the Nation's Capital," Dr. Rufus W. Weaver said yesterday.

Executive secretary of the District Baptist Convention, Dr. Weaver, who with Dr. William S. Abernethy, is serving as general chairman, described the purpose of the convocation as being to "consider the mission of the church in a distressed world."

Dr. Elmer A. Frudell, of Berkeley, Calif., president of the Northern Baptist Convention, and other Baptist leaders will speak in various local Baptist churches on the Sunday preceding the convocation.

Dr. Fendrich to Open Lenten Sermon Series

Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, pastor of Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, tomorrow will open a series of six Lenten lectures under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association, Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

"As a Man Thinketh" will be the general theme of the lectures, to be heard Sundays at 2:30 p. m.

Gallinger Class Planned

The Washington Lutheran Inner Mission Society will conduct Sunday School classes tomorrow at 9:15 a. m. in the tuberculosis wards of Gallinger Hospital. Mrs. Ferderick Umhau and Mrs. Robert Middleton will be teachers.

Little Stories about GREAT HYMNS

"ALMOST PERSUADED"
*P. P. Bliss

"Almost persuaded now to believe;
Almost persuaded Christ to receive;
Seems now some soul to say:
'Go, Spirit, go Thy way,
Some more convenient day
On Thee I'll call!'"

"Listening to a Gospel message based on Acts 26, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian," and moved by the striking sentence which concluded the address, "He who is almost persuaded is almost saved and to be almost saved is to be entirely lost," inspired P. P. Bliss to write this touching hymn.

Portrait of Diamond Studded Tallulah

LOOKING far more seductive and much less like the most unscrupulous heroine of "The Little Foxes" is Tallulah Bankhead, above. Out of character for a moment, the sensational daughter of Speaker of the House Bankhead, affects the sugary colors and fabrics of the Victorian period in this gown of golden gauze and metallic lace.

The sheen of the lame cloth and Miss Bankhead's red-gold mane are exciting backgrounds for the many thousands of dollars worth of diamonds worn about her throat and in her hair. The recent Beaux Arts Diamond Ball held resplendently in New York was the occasion for this finery—especially for the costly jewels. Since diamonds have been slated for a big revival of fashion—due to Queen Elizabeth's displaying so many on her American tour last year—the entire Diamond Ball blazed with diamonds set in unique and fabulous ways. The Bankhead jewels in their quaint Victorian settings, were especially imported to complement her costume—the diamond hair clips are in rose pattern, the necklace in the sentimental garland design of 50 years ago.

Among other celebrities who glittered at the Diamond Ball were French Ambassador Count Rene de Saint Quentin, guest of honor since the American Field Service in France received the proceeds of the ball. Gertrude Lawrence led the grand march weighed down with half a million dollars worth of diamonds. The rich voiced Tallulah Bankhead however found the outstanding feature of the ball to be the fact that few promenaders looked vulgar or showy in their "ice"—great restraint and caution going into the selections worn.

Hunter Graduates Twins Who Look, Think, Talk, Even Write Alike

New York, Feb. 9.

SIX hundred and seventy-three young ladies have just been turned out of Hunter College clutching their diplomas and ready to plunge or stumble into life's whirlpool. Hunter is the great city institution on Park avenue which local girls can attend free.

I didn't pay much attention to the Valedictorian or the Girl Most Likely to Succeed, but my post-graduate eye was taken by a pair of identical twins in the graduating class, the Misses Charlive up in the Bronx and have lotte and Selma Gendell, who given fellow students and elder scientists a lot to think about in their academic careers. To begin with they are very pretty girls, and alike as two B-B shots. They have kept their classmates in a constant state of agog by the way their works at Hunter have run cheek by jowl.

Both attained the honor of Phi Beta Kappa, and membership in Sigma Tau Delta, the honorary English society. One or the other has always been prom chairman of her class. And when Selma became president of the Shakespeare Society, Charlotte came right back with the presidency of the Make-Up Box, the college's dramatic society. But what has chiefly baffled their mates is their manner on conversation, for Selma will begin a sentence and Charlotte will finish it without missing a breath or a syllable. This is very confusing, and some of their friends told me they feared, at times, they were going a little daffy from overstudy as a result of this sisterly double-talk. Occasionally they have tossed their dates for a loss by getting them all mixed up on identity.

Betting on Babs Hutton's Romance Occupies Resorters

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Toni Davis, wife of Forrest, the writer, has to make almost as many moves as a trouping actor. He's always being sent somewhere on writing assignments by magazines, to any of the States, or even as far as South America. The latest jump for Toni is to Washington. Forrest is to be secretary to Senator Taft, the Presidential candidate, so back into storage goes the Davis furniture. Be a journalist or an actor and you'll be a rolling stone—occasionally gathering a faint fuzz of moss.

Betting is both ways here now on whether Baba Hutton marries young Bob Sweeny when her divorce from Count So-and-So becomes final any minute. But we can do better with our money than waste it on such unimportant trivialities. Aren't the geegees still galloping at Hialeah, among the flamingoes?

Germaine Leroux, the pretty French woman, gets an honor this winter accorded to few women soloists. She will play the piano with our Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in a concerto by Martini. And speaking of music, I think you'll certainly enjoy "The Well Tempered Listener," the new book about music and musicians by Deems Taylor, composer, critic, and radio commentator.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Should Girl Wed Man Whose Mother Collapses, Resigns Job, on Hearing of Engagement?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 25 years old, and my life up to now has contained enough tragedy to fill a book. When I was 20 both my parents were killed in an auto accident. Shortly afterward I married a boy I had known all my life. Then, two years ago, he died of pneumonia, leaving me with a son then 16 months old. We went back to my home town to live, where I have real estate holdings (amounting to about $75,000) which I had inherited from my parents.

A maiden aunt came to make her home with us, and in order to get hold of myself, I went to work in a local store. (I wasn't prepared to do anything more useful.) Life pursued a drab routine until nearly a year ago, when I began going out with a young attorney who had come from a neighboring city some time before to start practice here. We were immediately congenial. He is 31 years old, intelligent, serious, ambitious and interested in a political future.

To make a long story short, he asked me to marry him. That was five months ago. I accepted, and we planned to be married this summer. He wrote of our plans to his mother (who had known we were going together). She had a political appointment in their home city and an apartment there. He used to spend week-ends with her about once a month. Well, when she heard we were going to be married, she collapsed and sent for him.

As a final upshot, she resigned her job, gave up her apartment and came here to live with her son, showing every intention of becoming an invalid for life. The situation became a nightmare. A month ago he persuaded her to go to Florida until warmer weather. (Incidentally, she has an annuity income from her late husband's estate and could live in modest comfort, independently of everybody, if she would).

Now, this is the situation: My fiance says his mother has managed to break up every romance he ever had, including an engagement during his senior year at college. But he also says she shall not rob him of me, if I will stand by him as he expects to stand by me. On the other hand, my aunt says if I get mixed up with "that woman," as she calls his mother, I won't know a minute's peace the remainder of my life.

She is fond of my fiance and rather sorry for him, but she says with all the sorrow I have already had, I deserve a better break than marrying into a "hornet's nest." She urges and implores me to break the engagement, give up my job, take the boy and her self and go away somewhere for "a long rest among new faces." I am so confused I don't know what to do.

I care very deeply for my fiance, and had grown very dependent upon his companionship and understanding. I am sure he would make an ideal husband, if it weren't for the mother angle. And I realize it seems rather cruel to punish him for his mother's selfishness. What shall I do—listen to him, whose pleadings are echoed by my own heart? Or listen to my aunt, with whose warnings my tired mind agrees? B. C. S.

Regain Perspective; Then Decide

DEAR B. C. S.: This is not a question to be abruptly or hastily decided. Your aunt's advice is good up to a certain point; to the point, that is, where she prescribes "a long rest among new faces."

Considering the strain of the past few months, it is unlikely you are in fit condition to make a decision affecting your whole future. And it may be that your dependence upon your fiance is due largely to propinquity and lack of variety of congenial suitors. Therefore, if it is financially convenient for you to get away until your nerves are steady and your perspective restored—by all means go, taking your little family with you.

If you went alone, the sojourn might have an unreal holiday quality; and you might suffer a sense of homesickness that could be mistaken for overwhelming need of your fiance's company. But by going en famille and settling down to a domestic arrangement for three to six months, with relaxation and recreation your major aim, you should speedily recover the ability to evaluate this situation with prophetic clarity.

I have a hunch you are right in thinking the man would make an ideal husband if it were not for the "mother angle." Men who have been mother-dominated in youth usually prove to be tractable husbands, if and when delivered from the maternal guiding strings. And it is to his credit that your fiance emphatically proposes to "stand by you," as versus his mother, in the current explosion.

But on the other hand, your aunt's prediction that you would be marrying into a "hornet's nest" cannot be gainsaid. Hell never loosed a more subtle adversary for a young wife to deal with (at long or short range) than a frustrated, obsessively clinging mother-in-law, spoiling with jealousy and resentment. As long as she lives, the marriage she resents is never impregnable to her cunning assaults; and even when stoutly and unanimously held at bay, she usually manages to get in enough "dirty work" to shrivel its happiness at least a little.

Basically, the questions to be decided are these: Do you love the man enough to be willing cheerfully to endure every trial in order to keep him at your side? And have you the emotional stability and strength of character to stand up to whatever underhanded blows the mother may deal, without ever losing courage or the sense that the adventure, even so, has been worthwhile?

Consult a Dentist When Baby Teeth Remain Too Long; May Cause Crowding Later

The problem of the retention of a child's first set of teeth and the time at which these are naturally lost to make room for the permanent teeth frequently causes confusion in the minds of parents.

The loss of the temporary teeth and replacement by permanent teeth is a gradual process which starts at about 6 years of age and ends at approximately 12 years. The first teeth should begin to come in between the fourth and the ninth month. The two central teeth, top and bottom, come in first. The ones lateral to the central teeth come in between the age of 7 and 10 months. The temporary back teeth come in at about 22 months. The sharp, canine teeth come in at about 18 months, and the second permanent back teeth come in at 2 years.

Don't Replace First

The first permanent teeth to come in do not replace any of the temporary teeth. There are only 20 teeth in the temporary set and there are 32 in the permanent set. These first permanent molars appear behind the back of the last temporary teeth. They are often mistaken for temporary teeth and allowed to decay as if they were of no consequence. It is very important for parents to conserve these first temporary teeth because they are the keystone of the arch.

The temporary teeth are shed as a normal physiologic process. The shedding is the result of the absorption of the roots of the temporary teeth. They may be lost too soon on account of neglect. The central teeth are replaced by the permanent central teeth at the age of 7, the laterals at the age of 8, 9 and 10, and the second molars, which do not replace temporary teeth, at the age of 12. Between the ages of 18 and 29 the wisdom teeth come in.

May Stay Too Long

Occasionally, instead of too early loss, the temporary teeth stay in too long. They have either loosened and not been removed to permit normal permanent eruption or for some reason the teeth never loosened and a dentist was not consulted to determine retention of temporary teeth may what should be done. Too long result in crowding of the permanent teeth or may cause certain of the permanent teeth to fail.

The above dates of eruption are to erupt at all.
approximate. All children do not leeway of several months should erupt teeth at the same time. A be allowed before anxiety is shown.

Perfumed Finger Tips

Hollywood, Calif.—Unlike most glamour girls of today, Miriam Hopkins, the feminine star of Virginia City," leaves the half-moons and tips exposed when she applies her nail polish. Finger tips are kept scrupulously white with a small baby's nail brush dipped in soapy lather or a bit of cotton saturated in eau de cologne on the sharpened edge of an orange stick.

Great Poetry Gives Inspiration

"I pray thee, then,
Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."
—Leigh Hunt,

From "Abou Ben Adhem."

through your mind in your quiet hours—lovely lines like these from Leigh Hunt's "Abou Ben Adhem?"

But so often the rest of the poem has slipped away. What pleasure then to be able to turn to old favorites, to read them complete.

A poem everyone loves is "The Arrow and the Song," by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. It ends, you remember, with this verse:

"Long, long afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow, still unbroke;
And the song, from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend."

And what an uplifting philosophy breathes through these lines by a Persian poet of long ago:

"If of thy mortal goods thou art bereft
And from thy slender store two loaves alone to thee are left,
Sell one, and with the dole
Buy hyacinths to feed thy soul."

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

SHAKESPEARE is credited in a moment of great inspiration, or perhaps a moment of hunger, with having said, "An' I had one penny in the world, thou shoulds't have it to buy gingerbread."

The recipe given here for gingerbread is guaranteed not to create any illusion. It's moist, delicate, tender and feathery light qualities will reward your choice for dessert or a successful sweet for evening refreshments. The pan in which the cake is baked, should be an 8x8 shallow pan and only the bottom greased. The recipe given is one developed by Kathryn Bele Niles, Institute of American Poultry Industries.

Gingerbread

Measure and sift together, ½ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1½ cup flower, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon soda and ½ teaspoon salt. Cream ½ cup shortening and ½ cup sugar. Add the dry ingredients alternately with ½ cup molasses mixed with ½ cup water. Pour into pan and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Let stand in pan about ten minutes before inverting on cake cooler, after cutting around on all sides. Serves 6 to 9.

Gingerbread may be dusted lightly with nutmeg or generously with powdered sugar and a jug of cream passed. To add a choice flavor, grated cheese may be sprinkled over the warm gingerbread. If you want to really dress it up for a special occasion, top with this sauce: To 1 cup of heavy cream whipped, add 2 beaten egg yolks; 3 tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon lemon extract. Dust judiciously with nutmeg.

Your Figure, Madame!

Movie Star Reduces 10 Pounds On Protective 1,000-Calorie Diet

Ilona Massey Also Lost Eight Inches In Measurements at the Right Places; Included Walks and Exercise in Regime

By Ida Jean Kain

IT LOOKS as if a dietician had broken into the movies—at last! The most recent reducing diet to emanate from Hollywood is a 1,000 calodie menu. And it is all right. Ilona Massey went on it and lost 10 pounds, and none of her sparkling vitality.

The lovely Viennese arrived in California weighing 129 pounds for her height of 5 feet, 6 inches. That is a couple of pounds shy of normal weight. Nevertheless, the camera would have made her appear a buxom 138 pounds—so she had to take off 10.

Victim Ate Hearty Meal

Her first luncheon at the studio was the generous meal of a young woman who has never had to worry about her weight and does not expect to. She had chicken soup with noodles, two orders of goulash with thick gravy, a salad, and a dessert. That was her last feast. She then was whisked on what she called the "cottage cheese and skim milk diet because it was so high in those two foods.

Coupled with the diet was an undeviating program of exercise and massage. That, not just a diet, is responsible for Miss Massey's exquisite figure. For general exercise she made a practice of walking several miles every day. And for occasional recreation she got down and scrubbed her garage floor. That can be counted as rigorous exercise. In addition, she followed a select set of specific exercises.

As a result, she lost a total of 8 inches in measurements and all in the right places. Her new figure measures: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 35 inches; thigh, 21½ inches. There's nothing wrong with that.

If you will follow these two magic-working exercises, along with a few others for variety's sake, you can make a rapid improvement in your own figure. The first exercise is for the waistline.

Position: Standing with feet wide apart and parallel, arms stretched high overhead without hunching shoulders.

Movement: Bend acutely to the left, grasp left ankle firmly with both hands and tug, down, down! Release, stretch upward, and bend to right, tugging at right ankle. Continue for 20 counts. In stretching upward, pull up with the lower abdominal muscles to strengthen them and flatten this portion of the figure.

How To Slim Down

The second exercise is the hip-rocker and it wears down fat pads along the backs of hips.

Position: Lying on the back on floor, left knee flexed and hands clasped tightly about it. Have right leg straight out from trunk, parallel with floor.

Movement: Hitch forward with trunk and rock over the hips, resting the heel of the right foot on floor, keeping that leg straight and the left knee flexed. Keep this position as you rock backward. Five counts will be plenty. Rest, then flex right knee, holding left leg straight, and repeat for five counts.

Party at Mrs. Emlen Davies' Home Bids Farewell to Mrs. Tydings

Senator's Wife and Her Sister to Leave Today for Palm Beach, to Stay 10 Days; Event Attracts Many of Diplomatic Set

"IF YOU CAN TALK FAST, you have lots of fun in Washington," observed a guest at the tea given yesterday by Mrs. Emlen Davies and her daughter, Mrs. Millard Tydings. The busy hum of conversation in the dining room, where well over 50 guests were gathered, bore out her words.

This pleasant party was the second in a series Mrs. Davies and Mrs. Tydings have given. The first, last week, was a fete for Mrs. Davies' youngest daughter, Mrs. Robert Grosjean. Honored yesterday was the latter's pretty sister, Mrs. Aldace Walker.

The tea was somewhat in the nature of a farewell party for Mrs. Tydings and Mrs. Walker will leave today for a stay of ten days at Palm Beach.

The two hostesses and their guest of honor yesterday received in the drawing room, while several of their friends poured tea and coffee from gleaming silver services in the dining room across the hall. The tea table was centered with a bouquet of mixed spring flowers flanked with tall white tapers in silver candelabra.

Mrs. Tydings had chosen a bouffant "Gone With the Wind" frock of black satin with crepe stripes. The bodice was tightly fitted and the long sleeves were puffed quaintly at the shoulders.

Mrs. Davies' frock of black crepe was made with a brief jacket and a vestee of cream lace threaded with gold and fashioned with a wide lace collar. Peace lace with a corsage of orchids set off Mrs. Walker's pink and white complexion and blonde hair.

Thomsen Arrival Causes Ripple

The arrival of Charge d'Agaires of the Germany Embassy and Frau Thomsen caused a well-bred ripple of excitement. They came during the latter part of the reception.

There were diplomats aplenty present. Senora de Boyd, wife of the newly appointed Ambassador from Panama, was renewing acquaintances made when she and her husband lived here several years ago. She was accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who assisted, wearing a dark blue frock and a hat to match.

Others who poured tea during the afternoon included Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith, whose smart black frock was set off with a match of a hat, made with loops of powder blue grosgrain ribbon and tied with a black velvet bow. Mrs. Lewis Clark, in a teel blue frock and chic matching hat trimmed with red coq feathers, and Mrs. Gray Foster, in a black and white ensemble.

Mrs. Harold Walker, mother-in-law of Mrs. Aldace Walker, generally assisted throughout the afternoon, as did her blonde daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr.

Official Set Well Represented

The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Horinouchi and Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, were among the members of the diplomatic corps present. Senora de Pastooriza, wife of the Dominican envoy, told friends that the legation, both residence and chancery, would shortly be moved to 2101 Connecticut avenue.

As Mrs. Davies has made her home in Washington for a number of years, there were many guests drawn from the ranks of residential society. They included Mrs. Joseph Washington and her son, George Washington; Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, and Mrs. Eugene Carusi, who was smart in an ensemble in toast and brown shades.

Mrs. Ernest Lundeen came without the Senator, as legislators are usually kept up on the Hill at tea-time. Miss Pauletta Guffey was another present from Congressional circles. Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, represented the Cabinet.

Many Notables Seen in Crowd

A trio of handsome young women present were Mrs. Esther Bissett Norment, Miss Anne Carter Greene and Mrs. Pearsons Rust. Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman were glimpsed chatting with Mrs. McCeney Werlich.

Mrs. Grosjean helped to see that everybody had a good time, and others present were Mrs. Harry Covington, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Miss Lelia Peachy, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. William T. Mann, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann told friends she was looking forward to the conference of members of the Republican National Committee which meets in the Capital this week. Nearby was Mrs. Loren Johnson, who wore a smart red ensemble.

Other guests were Mrs. James M. Helm, Mrs. Robert Love Taylor, Baroness von Below, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Culbert son, and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis.

Slayer of Son-in-Law Sentenced to 20 Years

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—Judge Lemuel Smith late yesterday sentenced Oliver Garrison, 72-year-old farmer of Mount Fair, to 20 years imprisonment for the slaying of his son-in-law, Cleve Frazier, last December 11.

He was convicted on the slaying charge in Albemarle County Circuit Court without a jury. The Commonwealth contended that Frazier was shot in his cabin and that the structure was then burned to conceal the crime.

Sen. Wickham, 90, Given Rare Honor By Va. Assembly

Richmond, Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—The General Assembly of Virginia today conferred an honor rarely extended to a private citizen or a member by requesting Senator Henry T. Wickham, of Hanover, 90-year-old president pro tempore of the Senate, to address a joint session of the Assembly during the 1940 session.

The resolution termed the Hanover Senator the "most beloved and distinguished member of the General Assembly" and one of the "first citizens of Virginia," whose life stretches from this generation to the period before the great War Between the States, and whose industry, ability and devotion have contributed so greatly to the progress of our beloved State."

In the house, the resolution was adopted unanimously on motion of Delegate Earl Fitzpatrick, of Roanoke, who was sent immediately to the senate to report the house concurrence.

No definite date was fixed for the address.

O'Conor Approves Revision of State Jobless Tax Law

Annapolis, Feb. 9 (AP).—Employers of the State were saved approximately $1,000,000 in 1940 unemployment compensation taxes today by action of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission and Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor.

A decree of the compensation board was formally approved by the Governor today.

Failure of the 1939 Legislature to revise the unemployment law to square with the Federal law, which exempts payments on that portion of salaries over $3,000, threatened employers in Maryland with the unnecessary million-dollar impost on over-$3,000 salaries.

Gov. O'Conor submitted the question to Federal authorities and the Attorney General, and it was found that the compensation board, with approval of the Governor, could decree that 1940 payments on over-$3,000 salaries could be deferred until 1941, at which time the legislature could enact the retroactive exemption.

Winchester-West Rwy. Auctioned for $48,300

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., Feb. 9.—The Winchester & Western Railway was sold at auction here today under court order for $48,300. The road was bid in by D. H. Sencindiver, receiver, for unidentified interests believed to be the Baltimore & Ohio.

It was stated the purchasers propose to reorganize the road, which extends from this city to Rock Enon Springs, near Gore. The principal business is derived now from transporting glass sand. At one time fortunes in timber from West Virginia passed over the line.

Harry W. Smith Inaugurates Custom Of Sunday Breakfasts for Sportsmen

HARRY WORCESTER SMITH has inaugurated the pleasant custom of entertaining a group of sportsmen every Sunday at 9 o'clock breakfast. After a delicious hot meal at My Hunting Box, Mr. Smith's home, they sit around and discuss horses and the week's hunts.

Mr. Smith will entertain tomorrow for his house guest, Dirk Van Ingen, of Chicago and New York. Among those present will be Robert Maddux, huntsman of the Middleburg pack; Nick Nichols, Louis Atwell, William Stevenson and Louie Leith.

DR. AND MRS. Jack Selby, formerly of Warrenton, who have been living in New York and Akron the past few years, have returned to Virginia and have bought a house on Washington street in Alexandria. Mrs. Selby, the former Miss Delia Slaughter of The Plains, Va., is a sister of Mr. and Mrs. Cary Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. William Perry, Pamie Hanner, of Keswick, and Miss Jane Wilbur and Alex Calvert, of William Slaughter, of The Plains. Warrenton, motored to Camden, S. C. yesterday to attend the Schooling Show today at J. North Fletcher's stables. Miss Wilbur and Mr. Calvert, who are on the committee for the Virginians' Horse Show, which takes place at Camden February 24, will remain until after that event. They are visiting Mrs. Victor Froment and North Fletcher, of Warrenton, who has a house there for the winter.

BLAKELEY LODGE, who has been in Mount Alto Hospital at Washington for treatments, has returned to the home of his sister, Mrs. Harvey Ball, of Purcellville. Mr. Lodge long has been known as one of the best show ring riders and trainers of show horses in America.

Miss Mae Frances Lewis has returned to her home at The Plains after a visit with her cousin, Mrs. Samuel Warrick Price, of Scarborough, W. Va., who formerly was Miss Louise Smith of Fauquier County. Mrs. Price's son, William Price, will run for State Senator in West Virginia in the June primaries.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lewis will leave their home at The Plains next week for St. Augustine, Fla., where they will spend the rest of the winter in their charming old home.

MRS. ROSEMARY WARD has left Middleburg for Miami, where she will join her mother, Mrs. Newell Ward. From there they will go to Nassau for several weeks.

Mrs. Rigan McKinney and her young daughter, Kathleen, have gone to Aiken to join Mr. McKinney, and from there they will all go to Miami to visit Mr. McKinney's mother, who has a house at the resort for the winter.

Remson Williams, of Middleburg, is in Miami, where he is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt.

MRS. BALDWIN D. SPILMAN, SR., her granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Rice Barett, and her cousin, Hugh Spilman, all of Warrenton, are spending several weeks at Miami Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Luddington Patton, of Middleburg, will go to Annapolis this evening to attend the boxing match between the University of Virginia and the Navy.

Mrs. Mary Lipscomb Jamison, of Manassas, will return to Middleburg next Wednesday and will join a party of friends to see "Gone With the Wind", that night.

Miss Roberta Fleming is visiting her sister, Mrs. William Rust, at her apartment at the Highlands in Washington.

James Herbert and John Osgoode, of Princeton University, were recent guests of Mrs. J. H. C. Beverley at her home, Selby, The Plains.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., Feb. 9.—Two CCC youths, Clinton Hornbeck, 19, of Paw Paw, W. Va., and Wayne Nixon, 18, of Springfield, W. Va., were brought to Winchester after waiving extradition at Romney, W. Va., and authorities said today they admitted the theft of $370 from the home of Edgar Lafollette, Frederick County farmer.

After taking the money, officers said, the two boys went on a spending spree. The arrests were made at the CCC camp at Mathias, W. Va.

Dovell Boomed For Governor In Virginia

Williamsburg Group Invades Richmond To Back Speaker

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Feb. 9.—An open move in the interest of Speaker Ashton Dovell for the Governorship of Virginia took form in the capitol today with the appearance of a delegation of Williamsburg citizens and the subsequent "buttonholing" of members of the Legislature in behalf of his cause.

The delegation's appearance was the harbinger of those groups expected to appear in the spring in behalf of this or that gubernatorial possibility. Included in the Williamsburg group were Mayor Channing M. Hall of Williamsburg; Vernon Geddy, former Commonwealth's attorney and now a member of the Williamsburg school board, and B. D. Peachey, Commonwealth's attorney.

It was stated at the capitol that already Dovell's backers had started organizing in various precincts of the State. Informed of the action on his behalf, the Speaker said:

"If these citizens of Williamsburg are appearing in my behalf, I am duly appreciative, but I think I should not comment on the situation at present since I have a definite and rather hard duty to perform as the presiding officer of the Virginia House of Delegates."

Dovell has been mentioned along with a half-dozen others as a probable candidate to succeed Gov. James H. Price, whose term will expire on the third Wednesday of January, 1942.

While the Williamsburg delegation was more in evidence, friends of Judge Thomas W. Ozlin of the State Corporation Commission; Senator William Tuck of Halifax, Senator Aubrey G. Weaver of Front Royal and Senator John S. Battle of Charlottesville have been "sounding out" opinion in the General Assembly.

Old Dominion's Next Governor?

Coast Guard Saves 7 Md. Fishermen Ice-Bound in Bay

Chestertown, Md., Feb. 9 (AP).—The State patrol boat Chester River rammed through ice today to rescue seven Rock Hall fishermen marooned overnight on two small boats by an ice floe.

The boats, the Four Sisters owned by Joseph Gagalski, and the Virginia, owned by R. Hynson Carter, were caught off the entrance to Rock Hall harbor yesterday after they had been out to set nets.

Distress signals were sent up, but the patrol boat, commanded by Capt. Frank Agers, was unable to reach the men last night.

Two men were with Gagalski and three with carter. None suffered ill effects.

School Needed More Than Jail, Group Pleads

Children Seen Periled By Worcester 'Firetrap;' New Prison Opposed

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Md., Feb. 9.—A citizens' delegation will carry a plea for a new Berlin school instead of a new county jail before the Worcester County board of commissioners Tuesday.

Petitions signed by 350 Berlin residents said the school—to replace a building labeled as "veritable firetrap"— is more urgently needed than the jail.

Commissioners have appropriated $12,000 to build a $25,000 jail at Snow Hill with WPA aid.

A new elementary school here would cost about $40,000, of which the WPA might pay half, citizens said.

The county's share could be cut to $10,000 by sale of the present school property on South Main street, and relocation of the elementary school as an annex to the Buckingham High School, they argue.

The petition asked the commissioners to provide funds to build a new school this year. The 1940 county levy will be set about February 15.

A committee of five appointed by the Berlin Business Men's Association, and a delegation of about 50 citizens will meet with the commissioners in Snow Hill.

John W. Burbage, Worcester County board of education member, who had called the present building a "firetrap," was one of the first signers.

Radcliffe Opens Drive in Blast At O'Conor Aid for Bruce

Senator, Speaking in Cambridge, Assails Hint Of Governor 'Dictation' by Patronage Use; Cites Own Record on Md. Projects Obtained

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Md., Feb. 9.—Senator George Radcliffe (Democrat), Maryland, opened his campaign for renomination tonight with a blast at the support of Gov. O'Conor's organization for Howard Bruce and the assertion that Maryland Democrats "Are accustomed to selecting their candidates without attempted dictation from the State administration or through use of State patronage."

He called no names, but to a home town crowd gathered in the armory for the initial speech of his campaign, he declared:

"Some of the supporters of one of my opponents (for the Democratic nomination) have stated publicly and privately that they will support that opponent because by doing so they will get certain patronage for their communities from the State of Maryland.

"This is a strange doctrine entirely in conflict with the time-honored principles of the Maryland Free State. The Democrats of Maryland are accustomed to select their candidate for office on grounds of merit and not because of patronage and influence.

"They are, therefore, accustomed to make their selection without attempted dictation from the State administration or through use of State patronage."

Bruce, Democratic national committeeman, was a leading supporter of Herbert R. O'Conor's gubernatorial campaign. The Governor has announced he will support Bruce's candidacy.

Most of Radcliffe's speech was devoted to discussing his record and his activities before he went to the Senate. Not until near the close of the address did he level verbal guns at his opponent.

"I believe that, in the legislation he has recommended, President Roosevelt has sought diligently the welfare of our people, although I have not always been able to support some of the measures he has suggested," the Senator said.

Radcliffe declared that his own work was largely responsible for many WPA projects in the State, including the Ocean City inlet improvement, the widening of the Chesapeake & Delaware Canal, the Choptank River Bridge and others. President Roosevelt, he said, has referred to the Charles County Bridge over the Potomac River as "Radcliffe's baby."

Changes "undoubtedly" will be made in social security and unemployment legislation, but "the fact remains that social security legislation is with us to stay and properly so," he continued. "I am happy to realize that I could participate in the first real move by the Federal Government in that direction."

Modifications in the National Labor Relations Act "are desirable, but to my mind there was so much merit generally in the legislation that I supported the measure," he told the Eastern Shoremen.

"It is obvious that we must plan to balance the budget as soon as feasible. But we must not be so hasty about it as to cause grave distress. This should be obtained as early as possible, and certainly within the near future," he said.

He said he favored generally the policy of reciprocal trade agreements, and that the treaties had been worked out to try to avoid hardships upon specific industries.

Bruce carried his campaign into Southern Maryland for the first time last night at a dinner arranged by the Goodwill Democratic Club at Leonardtown.

Bruce spoke informally, and at one point emphasized his disagreement with President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reorganization proposal by reading his condemnation of the plan. The statement, he said, was issued within 24 hours after the proposal had been put forth.

Bruce said he had been asked "repeatedly" for his views on farm problems.

"Frankly," he declared, "I don't know the answers yet. However, I think there are enough brains in this country to work out a formula that will keep farmers' incomes in balance with the rest of the country, and that is the only way the farmers' troubles will be solved."

Pigeons Blamed For Wrong Time On Town Clock

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., Feb. 9.—Pigeons, Wilbur Chapman, custodian of the city hall says, are responsible for discrepancies and shortcomings of the town clock.

When the minute hand is ascending to the hour of 12 and descending to the hour of 6 o'clock, pigeons frequently perch on it.

When the hand is upward bound, the clock slows down; when the hand is downward bound, it speeds up. Two pigeons can't stop the clock but three can.

Chapman is undetermined what he will do to solve the problem. He says he has climbed to the cupola as often as four times daily to set and start the clock.

Dug-outs Found On A. U. Campus

American University is boasting today that it is the only college in the country that has a campus adorned with air-raid shelters.

Pat Cayo and Hank Shields peering into poison gas chamber of concrete dugout on A. U. campus

Hank Shields, an undergraduate who likes to use his legs in getting items for the American Eagle, a student publication, discovered the concrete dugouts while tramping over a lonely, tree-covered area of the campus.

There are two of them, sunk well into the ground and probably much like the smaller air-raid shelters in London, Paris and Helsinki.

Actually, however, they were not built for air-raid shelters at all, as Reporter Shields found out on investigation. They were used as poison-gas chambers in the World War, and when the war was over the Army abandoned them.

Ruth Harris and Pat Cayo in front of ammunition magazine, discovered in lonely, tree-covered area of campus

When the United States entered the war in 1917 the University trustees wrote to President Wilson, offering the use of the 100-acre reservation. The Army took it over and the campus soon bustled with engineers, "flame throwers" and officers and men of the Chemical Warfare Service.

Besides the underground chambers there are several other mementoes of the days when the campus was "Camp American University." Hundreds of sand bags remain and there also is a magazine for explosives.

No Short Cuts

Keep Off The Grass!

It's pretty tough trying to cut short a short cut. That was the complaint yesterday of Park Policeman James A Moran, who was seeking with little success to shoo pedestrians off the Ellipse grass

Policeman Moran explains to Mrs. Anne Tarnary, of Alexandria, Va., what a tough time he has to enforce that sign

"I'm only one man," he said philosophically. "All I can do is stand here on the east side in the afternoon and keep them off this worn path. In the morning I'm on the other side of the same path, warning them to walk around on their way to work."

The signs were put up a number of weeks ago. About 800 Government workers were found to cross the sward each morning and night on their way to and from the Agriculture, Munitions, Commerce and Interior buildings

Now the main stream is stemmed, but pedestrians continue to trickle across from all other directions. And in the midst of it all stands Policeman Moran, sadly shaking his head and reflecting:

Here's what "short-cutters" are doing to the grass on the Ellipse

Post Staff Photos.

"Well, there aren't as many as there used to be."

Moran's whistle halted Mrs. Anne Tarnary, a young Social Security Board proofreader, who lives in Alexandria, Va.

"It saves a lot of time for me," she said. "But, if it's against the law . . ." She looked at the sign Moran pointed at, shugged her shoulders and walked away

Teachers' Pay Boost Asked Of Assembly

$720 as Minimum Proposed; Repeal Of Judges' Pension System Is Weighed

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Feb. 9.—The General Assembly received bills today providing for a minimum State appropriation per teacher unit of $720 a year and for repeal of the judicial retirement system, passed a number of other bills and then adjourned until noon Monday.

Delegate John B. Spiers, of Radford, and six other House members offered the $720 teacher pay bill, which would cover one of the phases of the "three-point" program backed by Virginia school teachers. Spiers said he believed the program could be financed by funds from the budget without resort to any new revenue producing measures, other than those centering on alcoholic beverages as already recommended by Gov. Price.

Delegate Charles L. Spangler, of Patrick, offered the bill to repeal the judges' retirement funds as set up by the 1938 General Assembly, and announced he would offer an amendment to the Weaver anti-diversion road fund resolution to prevent diversions from the general fund as well as from the road funds.

Spangler said his proposed amendment to the Weaver resolution, adopted yesterday in the Senate, would prevent the setting up of retirement funds solely for "special classes" of State employes and would provide that in all retirement funds at least 50 per cent be contributed by the employes.

Senate Bill Defeated

The House defeated a Senate bill to authorize governing bodies of counties to release upon certain conditions the liability for interest, penalties and accrued costs on unpaid county and district taxes upon real estate for the year 1939 and all previous years. The bill, patroned by Senator E. R. Fuller, of Richmond, was rejected 23 to 60.

The Senate rejected a House amendment to a Senate bill, adding State park roads to the highway system, which would have added also to the highway system the roadway entrances from public highways to public school buildings. The House insisted on its amendment and called for a committee of conference.

The Senate finance committee deferred action on the Rodgers House bill to tax the salaries of Federal employes, pending an opinion from the attorney general.

Delegate Spangler, commenting on his proposal for repeal of the judges' retirement fund, said he believed his action was "justifiable as this legislation was acted upon so hastily in the dying hours of the 1938 session and was not given due consideration by the members."

The retirement act provided for retirement at 70 with two-thirds pay for members of the Supreme Court who have served ten years, and three-fourths pay for circuit and corporation judges who have served 15 years.

Co-Patrons Listed

Co-patrons with Spiers on the teacher pay bill were Delegates C. C. Louderback, of Page; N. J. Perkins, of Fluvanna; I. N. Coleman, of Dinwiddie; H. P. Spotswood, of Orange; E. W. Dodd, of Botetourt, and Burnett Miller, jr., of Culpeper.

The Virginia Education Association, supporting the "three-point" school program of a $720 minimum teacher pay, free textbooks and a sound retirement plan, estimates the $720 minimum would require an increase of approximately $3,500,000 a year over the school appropriation for the current year.

The Weaver and Wright resolutions on road fund diversions were referred to Speaker Ashton Dovell to the House committee on roads and internal navigation.

The Senate received a bill for the regulation of barbering and beauty culture. The measure, offered by Senators Vivian Page and Robert O. Norris, would prohibit any person from practicing either profession without a certificate of registration issued by a State board of barbering and beauty culture.

Among the bills passed by the House were the Montague Senate bills authorizing cities of the second class to make appropriations for the erection and maintenance of armories; the Sterrett-H. McK. Smith-Goodwin House bill banning pollution from streams in Bath and Highland counties; the I. N. Coleman bill extending the maximum length of passenger buses which may be operated on roads of the State from 33 to 35 feet, and the Ferguson-Hutchens House bill authorizing cities and towns to issue bonds for purchase of parks and playgrounds.

Delegate Charles R. Fenwick, of Arlington, offered a bill to prohibit the Arlington trial justice court clerk from collecting trial fees from plaintiffs when the amount in controversy did not exceed $50. A graduated scale would be provided for amounts in excess of $50.

Legislative Summary

Bills introduced in the General Assembly today, with their patrons, included:

Water Lines To Be Asked In Alexandria

Extension Requests Will Be Presented To Council Tuesday

A request that the City of Alexandria order the Alexandria Water Co. to extend its mains and fire protection service to three outlying sections of the city will be presented to the city council Tuesday evening, City Manager Carl Budwesky said yesterday.

A ruling of the Virginia State corporation commission recently gave the city the power to issue such an order, Budwesky said, but in turn the water concern was authorized to apply a surcharge to the bills of other water consumers to defray part o fthe cost of the proposed extension.

The commission's ruling provided the water company would be paid 24 per cent of the total extension cost annually, the funds to be provided through the surcharge applied to consumers' bills and revenue received through addition of new customers in the areas to be served by the proposed extensions.

The water company has submitted to Budwesky these estimates on the fotage and costs of the extensions requested: 2,080 feet of 6-inch pipe to N. Fairfax and First streets, $3,752.10; 2,292 feet of 8-inch pipe on Janney's lane to Quaker lane, $6,067.21; 2,340 feet of 8-in pipe on King street to Scroggins lane, $5,854.95; 3,440 feet of 8-inch pipe, storage tank and pump station on Quaker lane, $19,446.86.

The heaviest request for service has come from residents of the Seminary Hills area on Janney's and Quaker lanes, where the city health department recently has condemned a number of sources of drinking water, and where there is no adequate supply of water for firefighting.

Census Takers Named

Five enumerators have been appointed to conduct the Alexandria school census which was launched this week, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Ellen Harper, director. The census will involve a citywide canvass to determine the names of all children under 20 years of age attending both public and private schools.

The work will require two months, Mrs. Harper said, but complete reports will not be available until June, inasmuch as extensive clerical work is involved in preparing final tabulations.

Names of students under 20 who are attending colleges in other cities but whose parents reside in Alexandria will be included in the census, it was announced.

The census is required every five years by the State board of education and is being conducted by the city school board. An appropriation of $2,000 recently was granted by the city council to cover expenses.

Norris Heads Bar

Hannon E. Norris has been elected president of the Alexandria Bar Association to succeed Judge Robinson Moncure. He has practiced in the city for 14 years and is a past exalted ruler of the Alexandria Lodge of Elks and a past commander of Post 24 of the American Legion.

Other new officers are Stanley King, vice president, and James N. Colasanto, secretary-treasurer.

New members of the executive committee are John Barton Phillips, Walter L. Young and Franklin P. Backus.

Girls Bring Hospital Plea To Capitol Hill

A delegation of 30 Prince Georges County high school girls yesterday made the rounds of Capitol Hill to appeal for establishment of a county hospital under the proposed $100,000,000 Federal Government's hospital construction program.

Accompanied by their teachers, the girls, excused from school early to aid the county's hospital drive, visited the offices of Senator James Mead, of New York; Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, and Senator George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland.

Senator Mead Hears Appeal

Rachel Jones, of Mount Rainier High Scrool, appealed to Senator Mead, sponsor of the hospital bill, to remember Prince Georges County's need of a hospital.

Other highlights of the visit were watching Congress in action from the gallery, eating lunch in the Senators' private dining room and riding on the Capitol subway.

The pilgrimage was arranged by John R. Riggles, of Seabrook, Md., a member of the hospital committee of the Prince Georges County Federation of Citizens Association.

Girls Who Made Trip

O The girls and high school represented on the trip were:

Oxon Hill—Sue Shirley, Jackie Swann, Elizabeth Mistretta; Hyattsville—Martha Brittain, Evelyn Bowers and Margie Dubendorff; Greenbelt—Varina Craig, Lillian Bell and Shirley Freidman; Baden—Margaret Trueman, Eunice Grimes and Priscilla Chickester; Surrattsvbille—Betty Selby, Catherine Hartman and Frances Gemeny; Bladensburg—Mary Szabo, Dolores Anderson and Dorothy Shaw; Bowie—Louicille Nalley, Eleanor Lloyd and Clairs Lloyd; Upper Marlboro—Susan Smith, Meanette Marr and Rose Goen; Brandywine—Mary Finch, Anna Roberts and Bette Zamer; Mount Rainier—Betty Ott, Florence Hunter and Rachel Jones.

Maryland Starts Registering All Workers Under 19

Baltimore, Feb. 9 (AP).—Every employed youth in the State under 19 years of age will be registered and his birth date certified to avoid violation of child labor laws, John Pohlhaus, commissioner of labor and statistics, announced today.

Pohlhaus said he could not estimate the number of persons the order would affect, but that it would be "many thousands." Through the cooperation of the State health department, county health officers will certify the ages of working youths in their counties. The program, already started on a small scale, will get under way within a few weeks.

After a youth is registered and his age certified, a pink slip will be issued to his employer. Youths under age will be dismissed.

Lutherans to Hear Rev. Mr. Vogeley

The Rev. Raymond A. Vogeley, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Bethesda, Md., will discuss "On Forty Locks Road" at the 11 a. m. services tomorrow.

Brotherhood officers will be installed at tomorrow's services of the St. Luke Lutheran Church, Silver Spring. Dr. L. M. Zimmermann will preach. Services will begin at 11 a. m.

Conserve Water, Oakland Warned

Oakland, Md., Feb. 9 (AP).—Oakland citizens were confronted with a serius water shortage today, but were told that with strict conservation the supply should provide the necessities of the town indefinitely.

The shoriage has been caused by an extremely dry autumn in Garrett County and the recent severe cold weather that froze the ground about 3 feet down.

Citizens were urged not to use city water for any purpose other than drinking, cooking and sanitation.

Welfare Board To Handle Aid In Montgomery

Transfer From Office Of Supervisor Due Within a Few Weeks

Administration of general public assistance funds, now under the office of supervisor of county aid, will be transferred to the Montgomery County welfare board, Thomas E. Hampton, president of the board of commissioners, announced yesterday.

The change, to be effected in the next several weeks, will make the county eligible for a grant of $8,311 from the State welfare board.

Reorganization of the State board by the 1939 Legislature prohibited allotment of general public assistance funds to counties where relief was administered by a local agency, as in Montgomery.

The office of supervisor of county aid will not be abolished as result of the change, however, Hampton said. Alfred D. Noyes, present supervisor, will continue to handle hospitilization and lunacy cases.

The board of county commissioners has been notified by State Welfare Director J. Milton Patterson that he is anxious to co-operate in effecting the change. He has promised additional personnel for the county welfare board.

Store Loses Suit

Two sisters who claimed they were falsely accused of taking a 49-cent pair of stockings from a counter at Woolworth's Ten-Cent Store, Bethesda, yesterday were awarded $1,000 each by a circuit court jury at Rockville, Md.

Misses Frances and Beulah Barnett, of Hotspot, Ky., told the court the manager of the store embarrassed them before other patrons by charging them with "shoplifting." The incident occurred last

Arlington Parkway Delayed

Green Refuses To Release $45,000 For Unit No. 2 Of Memorial Drive

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST
Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 0509

Refusing to sign a check in favor of the Natiqnal Capital Park and Planning Commission for $45,000, John Locke Green, county treasurer, yesterday upset plans of county officials to accompany members of the commission to Richmond to confer with Gov. James H. Price regarding plans for Unit No. 2 of the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Treasurer Green said that there was only $19,000 in the budget on which the county is now operating. He cited the law that no item can be increased more than 10 per cent in refusing to sign the check.

He said that he is willing to cooperate with the county after a ruling from the court. He has taken the matter up with counsel. The county board authorized release of the $45,000 at a special meeting Thursday.

County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan, County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas and County Safety Engineer Clifton G. Stoneburner with members of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission were to have gone to Richmond yesterday.

$349,868 in Construction

Building operations in Arlington County for January, according to records released yesterday by the Department of Buildings show a total of $349,868 for new construction.

There were 45 permits issued for one-family dwellings costing $253,400; 6 permits for semidetached dwellings costings $48,000; 1 for business building costing $45,000; 11 for alterations to old homes costing $1,768; and 6 permits for new garages costing $1,700 making a total of 69 permits issued representing an outlay of $349,868.

St. Luke's Pastor to Install Officers of New Brotherhood

Officers of the brotherhood of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Silver Spring, Md., will be installed by the pastor, the Rev. Milton J. Bieber, at 11 a. m. services tomorrow. The church meets in the Masonic Temple.

The brotherhood is the first of three auxiliary organizations to be formed in the church, which was organized January 14. The Rev. Mr. Bieber will serve until a permanent pastor is appointed by the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church, probably after Easter.

The sermon at the 11 a. m. services will be given by the Rev. L. M. Zimmerman, of Washington. Church school will be held at 9:45 a. m.

The brotherhood was formed Wednesday at a meeting at the home of Adam P. Mossinger, with the following officers: Paul M. Yost, president; Moessinger, vice president; Dr. William A. Randall, secretary; H. H. Hobbs, treasurer; F. H. Ruth, chairman of the literature committee.

The group voted to have a free will offering at each meeting instead of dues to meet the second Wednesday of each month. Raising of funds for the proposed church building was adopted as primary objective.

Heart That Carried Md. Gray Through 14 Battles Is Failing

John B. Munger III; Montgomery's Last Civil War Soldier

John Benjamin Munger, 97, last surviving soldier of the Civil War in Montgomery County, Md., was seriously ill last night at his home in Poolesville, Md. The stout heart that supported him well in 14 pitched battles in Stonewall Jackson's "foot cavalry" has started to weaken.

Active until the first part of the year, he was confined to bed shortly after the New Year. His condition has improved somewhat and he is allowed to sit up for short periods now but his condition is considered serious because of his heart.

He had planted and tended his garden at the Poolesville home every year, including last summer, and was proud of the vegetables he grew. Each year's Armistice Day services found him at the courthouse in Rockville to represent the Gray Legions until the services were discontinued several years ago. He was the principal figure at the Monocacy Cemetery Confederate memorial services each year.

Was Captured

Munger was born in Rockingham County, Va. He will be 98 April 17. At the age of 19 he enlisted in Company I, Tenth Virginia Infantry, Jackson's Division.

Munger was captured at the Battle of the Wilderness, but not his battle flag. He hastily rolled the flag and placed it between the bodies of two dead comrades on the field. Just prior to his capture, a cannon ball had struck the flag pole and had knocked Munger to his knees, but he was not injured. Many bullet holes in the flag he carried attested to his having been in the thick of the battle, but by some quirk of fate he escaped wounding throughout his service. The flag now is in the possession of descendants of his officer, Lieut. Miller. After his capture in June, 1864, he was kept at Point Lookout for three months and then transferred to a prison at Elmira, N. Y.

"We were placed in an old building, weatherboarded and stripped," he wrote on a memorandum he prepared for his grandchildren telling of his experiences. "But still with many cracks, the cold air came in. We had only two stoves for each 100 men. We were kept in close confinement and hundreds died from lack of food and exercise."

Released in '65

He said that supplies were issued each Monday for the week and toward the end of the week it would dwindle. One loaf of bread would be cut into 12 pieces. Most of the prisoners suffered from hunger, he said. About April 1, the prisoners began making watch-chains from horsehair and other trinkets which they sold to eke out their slim food rations.

He was released from prison June 27, 1865, after taking the oath of allegiance, and was taken to Harpers Ferry by train. From there he had to walk to his home in Harrisonburg, Va., arriving July 4.

He engaged in the lumber business for a number of years in Staunton, Va., and later operated a farm near Roanoke, Va. He went to Poolesville about 25 years ago.

The aged veteran enjoyed immensely a Thanksgiving Day reunion of his family, which includes a son, four daughters, 11 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren, at the Poolesville residence.

He has been a great fisherman and often goes on little jaunts to nearby fishing spots with Judge Charles W. Woodward, who until recently resided in Poolesville. Radio also is a hobby, with Amos 'n' Andy his favorite sketch.

The closing session of the Epworth Training Conference and School of Missions are scheduled for 7:30 p. m. and 9:30 p. m. tomorrow at Andrew Chapel Church. All the ladies of the circuit are invited to Andrew Chapel Church tomorrow night at 7 o'clock for the election of three delegates to the provisional district meeting.

Walter Johnson Files for Congress

Annapolis, Feb. 9 (AP).—Baseball's "Big Train" started on a political run today—Walter Johnson, immortal pitcher of the Washington Senators, filed for the Republican nomination for Congress in Maryland's Sixth District.

Johnson is seeking his second elective office. He was the only Republican county commissioner elected in Montgomery County in 1938.

Johnson, now a dairy farmer at Germantown, is opposed for the G. O. P. nomination by Walter Long, Kensington, and Robert Kimble, Cumberland, State senator from Allegany County.

D. C. Gamblers Fined $800 In Maryland

Two Washingtonians Accused of Violating Prince Georges Law

Two Washington men paid fines totaling $800 in police court at Upper Marlboro, Md., yesterday on charges of violating Prince Georges County's gambling laws.

They were John A. Mahoney, 33, of 1215 G sreet ontheast, fined $600 and James Conner, 48, 511 Fourth street southeast, fined $200. Both men pleaded guilty.

Mahoney was arrested January 9 and February 3 in raids on the Home Stretch Inn near Forestville on the Marlboro pike. He previously had pleade dnot guilty to a gambling charge growing out of the first arrest. He changed his plea yesterday and was fined $200 on the first offense and $400 on the second. Conner was arested in the raid February 3.

Prince Georges County police have raided the Home Stretch Inn for alleged gambling operations four times in the past year. On three occasions the evidence obtained included numbers and race horse slips. The other time, slot machines were seized.

Tax Yield Up $5,000,000 In Maryland

Comptroller Gives Report to O'Conor; $8,000,000 More Spent Than in 1938

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Feb. 9.—Tax collections in Maryland during the fiscal year 1939 were up $5,000,000, the State spent $8,000,000 more than the year before, gained a round million in surplus and lost the same amount in the cash balance on hand.

These fiscal facts highlighted the formal report submitted to Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor today by Millard Tawes, State comptroller. (The fiscal year ended Septmber 30, 1939, but auditing delayed submission of the report.)

Tawes reported collections from gasoline taxes set an all-time record last year, jumping from $9,923,431 in 1938 to $10,372,568 in 1939.

Marylanders were thirstier during the year, and swelled the coffers with taxes on spirits, wine and beer, all of which showed increases. Beer revenues were up from $810,282 to $893,033; wine imposts rose from $71,609 to $100,099; taxes on liquor jumped from $2,367,899 to $2,457,484.

Auto registration revenues increased from $3,011,860 to $3,207,241 for private cars and from $746,523 to $784,664 for autos in commercial classifications.

Total collections, from all sources, were $66,061,555 during fiscal year 1939, up from the $61,380,911 collected in 1938.

Disbursements also increased. The State spent $59,355,985 in 1938, but loosened the purse strings to lay out $67,152,297 in 1939.

Largest expenditures of the government were for roads and schools. Highway construction and maintenance accounted for $11,503,276 last year, up slightly from the 1938 expenditure of $11,418,138. Educational costs were $9,297,297, also increased slightly over the $9,030,627 spent in 1938. The cash balance at the end of fiscal year 1939 was $14,889,733, down more than a million from the $15,980,474 on hand at the close of fiscal year 1938.

The State's surplus shot up from $3,241,645 at the end of 1938 to $4,467,725 last year. Tawes estimated the probable surplus at the end of fiscal year 1940 at $4,246,580.

Two Gunmen Get $4,262 Loot; One Believed Self-Shot

Baltimore, Feb. 9 (AP).—Two bandits, one of whom apparently shot himself in the leg, were sought by police tonight for robbery of $4,262 in cash and tax-paid whisky stamps from a distillery company clerk here.

The loot included $3,000 in stamps, officials of the Frank L. Wight Distillery said.

The clerk, Horace Cowman, told police he was stopped on the old Philadelphia road, forced by one bandit to drive over back roads, and that the man's gun accidentally discharged as he shifted it from one hand to the other. Police said they found blood on the seat and floor mat of Cowman's machine after the bandits fled.

drew blood from Godoy's nose.

A smashing right uppercut to the chin made Godoy's knees buckle and he held on as Joe tried to shake loose. They mauled each other in close. Louis' left jabbed staggered Godoy momentarily. Godoy tossed a straight left to the body at the bell. Louis' round.

Round Three—Joe sparred with his left hand extended. Godoy jumped in with two shorts lefts to the body. Godoy backed Louis against the ropes and had the champion hurt from a two-fisted flurry which caused Louis to blink his eyes and hold on. Louis came out to punch with Godoy and they flailed away for half a minute as the crowd burst into an uproar.

Godoy's round. Godoy failed to hear the bell and threw two punches after the round ended.

ROUND FOUR—Louis grased Arturo's chin with a short uppercut, then they fell in close and mauled each other with left hands. Godoy banged the champion with a wild right swing to the head, then they both missed long lefts. Louis cracked the challenger with a short right uppercut, then snapped his head back with the same punch.

He was catching Godoy coming in in this round with the right uppercut. Louis smashed a right hand to the body. Godoy backed the champion into a neutral corner and hit him with two lefts which made Joe blink. At close range they were each doing considerable damage. Godoy with lefts to the face and Louis with right uppercuts to the chin as the champion remained backed in the neutral corner. Godoy's round.

ROUND FIVE

Godoy slashed a hard right hand off Joe's ear and Joe bounced two rights and a left, all uppercuts, off the Chilean's chin. Louis landed a straight left jab, then crossed his right with such force that Godoy's head snapped back. Louis whacked the challenger with another hard right uppercut. Joe fired left, right and left at the head as Arturo crowded him against the ropes.

ROUND SEVEN—Louis jabbed with his left to the nose three times, then fired a hard right to the jaw. Godoy made Joe blink with three stiff left hands to the side of the chin. Godoy kept on crowding Joe against the ropes as they mauled in close. Godoy poked his left to the body. Again Godoy crowded Joe into the ropes and they mauled away. Louis staggered Godoy with a smashing right to Arturo's sore eye and Godoy, rushing in, fell half through the ropes before recovering.

Godoy poked a left to the body as he backed Joe against the ropes. Louis fired his right uppercut to the chain again. Godoy crowded Louis to the ropes, then tossed both hands to the body as Joe uppercutted with his right. Godoy smashed a vicious overhand right to the chin which staggered Joe momentarily.

They danced around for a few moments exchanging straight left. Louis cracked his right uppercut against the jaw once more, then hooked twice with his left to the head. Godoy leaped in with a slashing right to the side of the face. Louis fired a right to the ear. Louis hooked a hard left to the head and repeated as Godoy tossed both hands to Joe's ribs. In close they mauled away in a neutral corner, Godoy backing Joe against the ropes and refusing to give ground. Godoy smashed two hard left to the jaw and was still fighting after the bell sounded. Godoy's round. The crowd howled in delight.

Louis fired a hard left to the body, then jabbed twice to the nose. Joe tossed a left jab and right uppercut to the head, then crossed his right to the chin and Godoy appeared to be hurt. Godoy continued backing the champion against the ropes. Louis' right uppercut bounced off the South American's eye. Godoy fired three lefts to the ribs, then got inside with two stiff left hooks to the head.

Godoy backed the champion into his own corner and they flailed away with short punches at each other's head. Louis slugged back in his own corner, connected with his right uppercut as Godoy punched to the body and they kept this up for several seconds. Godoy hurt the champion with a hard right and Louis blinked as Arturo followed it up with left, right and left to the jaw at the bell and he crowd was positively hysterical. Godoy's round.

ROUND TEN

Godoy appeared fresher as he came out in his crouch for this heat. Louis landed a hard left hook on the chin as he danced away from Godoy's rush. Godoy straightened up momentarily and the crowd shouted "Get down" as Louis nailed him with left jabs. Godoy tossed a left to the body, then took three short punches to the head in return as Louis tried to dance away from his crowding rushes. Louis fired a left and a right to the jaw. Godoy banged a left hook off the ear and a left to the body.

Louis connected with three short uppercuts. Godoy went dep into his crouch, then backed Louis against the ropes and hit the champion six times on the head without a return. Louis landed a short right uppercut at the bell. Godoy's round.

ROUND ELEVEN

Louis bounced a straight left off the challenger's chin and again the crowd howled to Godoy to get down in his crouch. They exchanged stiff lefts to the ears. Godoy barely missed with a smashing overhand right. Louis hit the challenger

Tarheel Ringmen Upset Conference Champs, 5½-2½, In Chapel Hill

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 9.—After breaking even in the four lighter weights, North Carolina's varsity boxers won the 155, 165 and heavyweight bouts and drew in the 175-pound division to upset Maryland's Southern Conference champions 5½ to 2½ here tonight.

Approximately 4,500 jubilant fans, the largest crowd to see a collegiate boxing match in the State this season, saw the Tarheels avenge last year's 15-14 defeat in the Southern Conference tournament.

The Tarheels' first surprise of the evening came in the 145-pound class when Co-Captain Dickerson outboxed and outguessed undefeated Izzy Alperstein.

After losing the first round on Alperstein's effective left hooks to the fact, Dickerson set up a crafty defense in the second and third rounds to ward off the devastating smashes of his foe, and did some hard punching of his own. He jolted Alperstein twice in the second round and once in the third with a hard left smash.

Peter Bradley, slugging 127-pounder, and Nathan Askin, skilful 135-pounder, were Maryland's outstanding performers.

Bradley outpointed John Johnson in the first two rounds by pounding him with savage right and letf hooks to the face, the Tarheel, however, rallied in the final stanza and had the better of a wild hitfest. Bradley's convincing edge in the first two rounds enabled him to garner the decision.

Askin Defeats Gennett

In the 135-pound class Askin handed Andy Gennett his first defeat in a dual bout, a finalist in the Southern Conference tournament as a sophomore last year. Gennett came back to win the second round after losing the first, but Askin turned in a brilliant final round performance and rained blows on Gennett's face and body. Askin used stinging left uppercut and caught Gennett thrice on the chin in the final round.

Maryland was handicapped in the 165-pound division by the absence of its Southern Conference champion, Newton Cox, who was out with a bad hand. Cox substitute, George Pyles, put up a fine scrap against the more experienced Elden (Red) Sanders until the last 30 seconds of the final round when Sanders threw five jolting punches that rendered Pyles almost helpless at the bell.

The summary:

120-pound class—Winstead (N. C.) decisioned Harn.

127-pound class—Bradley (Md.) decisioned Johnson.

135-pound class—Askin (Md.) decisioned Gennett.

145-pound class—Dickerson (N. C.) decisioned Alperstein.

155-pound class—Ferris (N. C.) won technical knockout at end of second round over Hathaway.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

The 1940 edition of Jerome Herman ('Dizzy') Dean, who steamed off 15 pounds instead of words this winter, arrived in Chicago yesterday, ostensibly on business for a Mississippi baseball school with which he is connected. But Diz promptly went into a huddle with Cub Owner P. K. Wrigley and after a two-hour conference announced he is still a holdout. In this picture the wide angle lens reveals how big an item Dean's sore arm really is

3 Tie With 66s in Texas Open Tourney

Oliver, Hogan, Penna, Shoot 5 Under Par in Inclement Weather

By the Associated Press

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 9.—Golfers robots, the winter tour professionals, mocked cruel weather conditions today and dragged par through sleet, rain, stiff winds, bitter cold and finally a burst of sunshine in the opening round of the $5,00 Texas open.

On top after a day of plowing through the mud were chubby Ed Oliver, of Hornell, N. Y.; Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., and Chunky Tony Penna, Dayton, Ohio, all with 5-under-par 66s on the par 36, 35—71 Brackenridge Park course.

Oliver, recent winner of the Bing Crosby and Phoenix tournaments, started with the weather cutting its worst capers and did the first nine in 33. Three more birdies rattled off his muddy sticks on the last nine, but he 3-putted one hole for a bogie.

Penna, also caught in the early cold, struck his most damaging blows on the last nine, skidding in putts of all lengths to get a 31, best nine of the day.

Guldahl Way Out

Silent Ben Hogan, the homegrown Texan, closed his round late in the sun-swept afternoon with four birdies on the last six holes to slip into the three-way tie.

Stooped Ralph Guldahl the Texas boy who won the '37 and '38 National Open titles, but who has been searching in vain for his old touch, shot himself to the sidelines with a 41, 39—80 to become the most prominent casualty. Just as bad off was Dapper Paul Runyan with a 77, and Harold Jug) McSpaden was 8 shots off the pace at 74.

Washington's Cliff Spencer carded a 38-37—75. Spencer encountered trouble on the difficult seventh and eighth holes, where he lost three strokes.

Nineteen rain-jacketed players took the measure of par in an amazing demonstration of shotmaking in a crazy quilt of weather.

As darkness settled, W. A. (Lefty) Stackhouse, Seguin, Tex., professional, came in with a fine 67 to jump into a second-place tie with W. Lawsan Little, Los Angeles open

Eagle Rally Fails And Orioles Win, 4-3

Washington Sextet Stages Another Third-Period Drive, Only to Fall Short; Loss Is Fourth Straight

By Jack Munhall.

For the second successive game the Washington Eagles' third-period rally fell a goal short last night and the locals lost their fourth straight match, Baltimore winning, 4-3, in the last two minutes of play.

Trailing 3-1 going into the last session, Washington tied up the score on goals by Hal Dewey and Roy Covert, but the Orioles, taking advantage of a penalty against Covert a moment later, put in the deciding point at 18:39.

It was scored by Fred Hunt who followed up a shot missed by Larry Archambault. The tripping penalty called against Covert by Referee Bill Chadwick seemed unjustified since at the time Ned Vitarelli, the Baltimore player he was supposed to have tripped, was punching Covert with his stick. Moreover Vitarelli wasn't knocked off his feet.

The victory, Baltimore's sixth in its last seven starts, moved the Orioles to within five points of the league-leading New York Rovers. Washington, in third place, is eight points behind Baltimore.

The match, one of the fastest of the season here was by far the cleanest the Orioles and Eagles have ever played. Only three penalties were called, all of them minor, and at no time was there evidence of the bad blood that has led the intercity rivals to mix it up in almost every previous game.

A large portion of the credit for Baltimore's victory should be given to Goalie Omar Kelly, who, during the first two periods, made many remarkable saves.

Dewey, Covert and Bill Lahti, diminutive wing who was promoted coincident with the temporary suspension of Bill Cairns as a "disciplinary measure" by Coach Mackenzie, were outstanding for Washington.

Orioles Take Lead

The Orioles, although outplayed, took a 2-0 lead in a very fast first period. Washington had little difficulty in reaching the Baltimore defensive zone but once in scoring territory the Eagles couldn't get the puck by their nemesis, Goalie Kelly. They missed easy shots time and again.

The Orioles, on the other hand, made good use of their opportunities, tallying their two goals on four shots. Tuten was credited with the first at 1:27 on a double pass from Ripley and Erickson and Roach the second at 7:19 on a splendid unassisted play.

The big Baltimore defense stole the puck from Knipfel, of Washington, in the center zone and barged straight down the middle of the ice. When near the net he feinted Goalie Lee and slid in a backhander.

Baltimore maintained its two goal lead in the second period as each team scored once. After the first penalty of the match had been called against Riley, of Baltimore, midway of the period, Baltimore increased its advantage to 3-0 when Archambault and Griger collaborated on a nice play.

After a Washington rush had been stopped the puck rebounded to center ice where Archambault retrieved it. Grigor, skating fast, outdistanced Washington's McKillop who was guarding him and took a long pass directly in front of the net and it was no task to beat Lee from that short range.

Bethesda Five 30-27 Winner Over Johnnies

Victors Get Away to Early Lead to Turn Back St. John's

A fast-breaking attack that started clicking in the very first few minutes of the game enabled Bethesda-Chevy Chase to defeat St. John's, 30-27, on the Bethesda court last night before a capacity crowd.

The victors worked themselves into a commanding position from the start and were leading, 10-7, at the end of the first period and went on to a 17-8 advantage at the close of the half.

For some unknown reason Cady and Hathaway, stars of the Johnnies, were not inserted in the game until midway the second period, and by that time the victors had things well under control. These two players have been outstanding in previous games.

Kinsman and Barnsley paced the victors' attack with 9 points each. Hathaway also found the cords for 9 points to share the night's scoring honors.

Cunningham Bows Again to Fenske

Philadelphia, Feb. 9 (AP).—Glenn Cunningham, trackdom's tired old man, ran second to Chuck Fenske once more tonight, trailing the Wisconsin runner by 4 feet at the finish of the Penn A. C. Mile, feature of the third annual Penn A. C. indoor meet. The time was 4:13.5, a new meet record.

Diz Refuses $10,000 Pact For One Year

Dean Says He Will 'Starve to Death' Rather Than Sign

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Jerome Herman Dean today definitely joined the Chicago Cubs' holdout brigade.

"I'll starve to death before I pitch ball for $10,000 a year," said Dean explosively at the end of a futile two-hour conference with Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs.

Dean, paid $20,000 last season, when he won only six games, had demanded $15,000 for 1940. Wrigley's offer was $10,000. After two hours of discussion, Wrigley stopped for a moment where newspapermen and photographers were waiting in another office, and said:

"Your subject will be out in just a minute." Then he started down a hall.

"Wait a minute," urged a reporter. "You're our subject . . . at least, a part of it."

Back to His Gum

"Not me," replied the retreating Wrigley. "I'm back in the gum business . . . thank God."

A couple of minutes later Dizzy appeared.

"I ain't signed," he famous hurler began. "He offered me $10,000. I wanted $15,000. I'll starve todeath before I sign for that. I'll go back to my farming near Dallas. But there ain't no hard feelings between us. It's just business after all."

Dean said he did not expect any further conferences with Wrigley, although he will remain in Chicago until Monday.

"There ain't anything left for either of us to say," drawled the big pitcher." We covered it all today."

Dean's original proposal, calling for a bonus if he won 12 or more games next season, was overruled before the conference because of baseball's law against such contracts.

Predicts Great Year for Self

Dizzy was asked:

"Wouldn't you take Wrigley's word of a bigger chunk of dough if you proved your arm was okay?"

"No, sirree," he replied. "That ain't my way of doing business."

Before his conference, Dean predicted a great year for himself, declaring he would win 20 games. He said he had been playing golf and sawing wood and had no pains in his pitching right arm.

"Don't I look in good shape?" he queried.

Truthfully, he did. He was dressed in his Sunday best blue suit. There wasn't an ounce of overweight noticeable on his huge frame.

Dean will join the faculty of a baseball school opening in Jackson, Miss., next Wednesday.

"Better remind him," Wrigley smilingly said. "Not to forget to send back his Cub uniform."

Joan Tozzer, Galbraith Boys Set Pace in Figure Skating

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Feb. 9.—Miss Joan Tozzer, of Boston, defending titlist, paced the field today in the Ladies' Senior Singles of the United States Figure Skating Association's championship competition.

At completion of the school figures division, Miss Tozzer unofficially headed the contestants, followed in order by Heddy Stenuf, of Chicago; Charlotte Walther, of New York, and Gretchen Merrill, of Boston. Dorothy Snell, of Washington, D. C., competed. Free skating is scheduled for tomorrow.

Two inseparable brothers from San Francisco threatened to turn the men's junior singles into a strictly family affair.

Murray and Sheldon Galbraith finished one-two, respectively, in the school figures division today, but figured they had plenty of work cut out for them in the pending free style competition before they could take the first of the 11 titles to be decided in the two-day trials. The Nation's leading figure skaters performed today to the polite applause of several hundred spectators, who didn't know exactly how any of their favorites stood because no figures were announced.

Many of the skaters relaxed between their appearances by going to a movie. The Galbraith brothers, for instance, had a rubdown and a nap.

The brothers train together, skate together. Last year the younger brother was second in the novice division, and Murray was third.

Neither seemed to care who won this year. It was all in the Galbraith family.

This Morning

Without Shirley Povich

(During Shirley Povich's vacation his column is being written by other members of the sports staff.)

By Anthony Neri.

Probably the most sports conscious high or preparatory school in this sector is little Georgetown Prep. Backed by a faculty which advances sports in its curriculum every student participates in some athletic endeavor. The favorite of the school is football. On the morning of a varsity football game the whole student body assists at mass and receive Holy Communion in the school's chapel. The faculty members are the team's most rabid spectators.

NERI

The Prep was founded in 1789 as a part of Georgetown University. In 1918 the new school at Garrett Park was completed, but the Prepmen didn't move in until the following year, allowing women war workers to use the building for the Government.

One of the school's greatest boosters is the Rev. Robert S. Lloyd, S. J., headmaster from 1929 to 1935, and now spiritual director of the retreat house, Manresa on the Severn. Father Lloyd first came to the Garrett Park school in 1926 from Gonzaga, where one of his students was Orrel Mitchell, present Purple coach. He taught at the Prep for two years, and left the school until 1929, when he returned and assumed duties as headmaster. Father Lloyd speaks in glowing terms of the sports glories of the school. The former headmaster states, "no school has produced so well in sports, as has Georgetown Prep from 1926 to 1940 with so few boys and no athletic scholarships." Father Lloyd praises the efforts of the Rev. Bernard F. Kirby, S. J., director of athletics, and the Rev. Robert P. Arthur, S. J., present headmaster, for the school's sports progress.

Father Kirby is a graduate of Loyola, of Baltimore, and in 1923 played against Georgetown Prep as a member of the college frosh football team in the game in which "Dutch" Letter, Prep star, dropkicked a goal from the 53-yard line, which still stands as one of the longest dropkicks on record around Washington. Father Kirby is in charge of the school's tennis team. The prepmen have ten excellent courts which were dedicated in 1932 with the assistance of Bob Considine, Tom Mangrum, Dooley Mitchell, Tom Callahan, and Tom Markey. Some of the past tennis stars at the Prep were George Crowley, Francis Cole, George W. Cannon and Tom Keating, present varsity coach of basketball, baseball and football.

Father Arthur was a teammate of Father Kirby in 1923. He starred in baseball, basketball and football. Others on the faculty who assist in sports are Mr. William Ryan, S. J., a graduate of the school, and an al-prep guard in 1931, who helps Coach Keating with the varsity grid team; Mr. Robert Hoggson, S. J., assistant director of athletics, and Mr. Emory Ross, S. J., soccer coach and an accomplished pianist, graduate of the Peabody Conservatory of Music of Baltimore. Incidentally, Keating was instrumental in starting soccer at the school.

First coach at the school since moving Garrett Park was Harry Sullivan, graduate of Georgetown University, where he played end on the football team and first baseman on the baseball nine. He served from 1920 to 1925. Father Lloyd speaks highly of Sullivan and gives him much credit for the advancement of sports at the Prep. Edward M. Brooks succeeded Sullivan as coach. Brooks was also a graduate of Georgetown as have been all the coaches of the school. He served from 1925 to 1930. In 1930, Father Lloyd secured the services of two coaches, Ralph Duplin and Joey Gardner. Duplin left in '31, but Gardner served untill 1936, and became one of the most popular men ever at the Prep. It was in his regime that Garrett Park turned out its great grid team of 1933, all-prep champions. On that team were such outstanding players as Keating, Maury Knee, Don McNamara, Henry Leslie, Hughes Spaulding, and John F. Schroder. Following Gardner was Ed Hargaden, who was coach untill 38, when To mKeating was given the job.

Keating played baseball, basketball, tennis and football at the Prep before entering Georgetown University where he starred as a quarterback on the varsity, in addition being a regular shortstop on the ball team. Father Lloyd and Father Kirby rate Keating as the best all-around athlete ever to attend he Prep. Others held in high esteem are Washington's excellent golfer, Maury Knee, and Dick Heekin, captain of 1930 football team and later all-Big Ten for two years at Ohio State. Heekin was an outstanding track man, holding local meet records in the discus and dash events.

Other sports luminaries graduated from Georgetown Prep are Jack Robinson, who later played center for Notre Dame, and received al-American honors while there; Bob Spaulding, gridder, later starring at the University of Virginia; Bill Schroder, another who moved up to Notre Dame, and later coached the University of Georgia freshmen; Mathew Virden, of Mississippi, and Leo Haller, captain of the 1922 football team, nationally know nas a gliding expert, and George M. Cohan, jr., son of the famous New York playwright and actor.

An appropriate motto fo the school is: "Where Sons of Georgetown Men Really Grow Up." From the Prep to the University have gone such stellar athletes as Young Cy Cummings, Joe Williams, Tom Keating, Maury Knee, Frank McNamara, DeSales Powell, one of four Powell brothers, all of whom attended the Prep, Gene Golsen, of Chicago, first Prep player from the new school to make a varsity team at Georgetown University, Joe Shields, Henry Leslie, Nick Scatuorchio, Billy Dettweiler and Charley Fish, great intercollegiate boxer.

Georgetown Prep golf teams have ranked the best around Washington. Led by such golfers as Maury Knee, Billy Dettweiler, Frank (Shanty) Allen, Bob Troutman, Rupert Friday and others, the Prep set a new high in District schoolboy circles. Both Knee and Dettweiler qualified for the National Amateur, while members of the Garrett Park team. The school has a neat ninehole course.

Family footbal lhas been a tradition at the school, including many brothers who stare din the sport, among whom are the Grahams of New York, Ray, John, Robert, Ziba and Toomy; Lewis, Winthrop and John Rutherfurd; the Williams, James, Charley and Billy; the Scatuorchios, Nick, Mike and Tony; John and Grant Friday; Joe and John Shields; the two Waterworths, Andy and James; Devereaux boys of Chevy Chase, Ashton and Edward; Tom and James Keating, of New York, and numerous others.

It is remarkable the high scholastic grades achieved by the athletes at the Prep. Numbered among its past honor students are Maury Knee, Bill Schroder, and many others. The boys combined high scholastic grades with athletic achievement with intreped courage and honesty. And Georgetown Prep may well be proud of its sports progress, for from it have gone into the world real men from its many Blue and Gray teams, men who possess that intangible quality known as character.

Seabiscuit Third to Heelfly and Sun Egret

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 9.—Seabiscuit came back to the turf wars after a year's lay-off today and ran a creditable third to Heelfly and Sun Egret in a 7-furlong race at Santa Anita Park.

Seventeen thousand fans turned out under clear skies to see the 7-year-old former stake champion run his initial "come back" race in a campaign to reach the post in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap March 2.

George W. Stratton's Heelfly, 1937 rival of Seabiscuit, took charge of the spring entering the stretch, overhauling the pace-setting Sun Egret and coming on in to win by a length. A. C. Compton's Sun Egret finished two lengths ahead of Charles S. Howard's 'Biscuit.

The time for the distance was 1:23.

Heelfly paid $12.80, $4.40 and $2.80; Sun Egret, $3.80 and $2.80; Seabiscuit, $2.80.

Seabiscuit, retired after injuring an ankle at Santa Anita last February 14, apparently came out of the race in good shape, and was going strong at the finish.

Georgie Woolf took Heelfly away to a good start, and kept him close on the flying heels of Sun Egret, while Jockey Red Pollard, the lad who rode Seabiscuit to many of his great triumphs, found himself in tight quarters on the rail pounding down the backstretch.

The old 'Biscuit, wearing four bandages, couldn't keep up with the burning pace, just as observers predicted. However, he kept traveling and might have won had the distance been longer.

Eight horses went to the post, including the leaders and Best Beau, Arigotal, Our Mat, Mount Vernon II and No Competition.

The track was fast. Three times in the past three weeks Seabiscuit had been scratched because of mud and rain.

Elizabeth Hicks Scores 4-3 Victory In Palm Beach Play

By the Associated Press

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 9.—Playing almost as ragged a brand of golf as her opponent, Elizabeth Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., won a 4-and-3 victory today in the Palm Beach women's tournament.

She overcame the penalty of shots into the rough, in sand traps and other unlikely spots to defeat Grace Amory, of Palm Beach on the fifteenth hole of their finals match.

The victory entitled Miss Hicks to have her name engraved for the first time on a cup that has been offered for victory in the Palm Beach tournament for almost a quarter of a century.

Governor's Mile Tonight at Baltimore Draws Track Stars

Undefeated Hoyas' Relay TeamEntered

Blaine Rideout, Jim Deckard, McCluskey, San Romani Compete In Annual Events

By Jack Munhall.

What likely is the strongest array of board gobblers ever to be gathered together in this civinity will compete tonight in the fourth annual University of Maryland-Fifth Regiment track meet at Baltimore.

A total of 60 high schools and colleges plus independent clubs will be represented in the three divisions—intercollegiate, interscholastic and A. A. U. All three defending champions will be on hand to defend their honors. Navy, in the intercollegiate; Mercersburg Academy, in the scholastic, and Passon A. A., of Philadelphia, in the A. A. U.

As the result of the onslaught of this crack field, numbering about 450, many records are certain to fall, perhaps in as great numbers as last year when one world mark and 11 meet marks were smashed and 5 meet records were tied.

Feature of the games which are scheduled for 8:30 will be the Governor's Mile, in which Joe McCluskey, Jim Deckard, Archie San Romani, Blaine Rideout and others of the country's premier milers are entered. Officials expect a new record for the event, although the boys will have to hit a terrific pace to better the 4:13.5 performance with which Missouri's John Munski established a world record for a flat, unbanked track last year.

Blozis May Set Record

Maryland, the host team, Navy, Georgetown and North Carolina, Southern Conference indoor champions, will be strong contenders for the collegiate team title.

Georgetown is expected to account for two new meet records with its undefeated 1-mile relay team and Al Blozis, its gigantic shot putter. The Hoya quartet of George Tucknott, Vinnie Braun, Ken Lyden and Mort Alnwick last week turned in a 3:21.6 race in the Millrose games and if at all pressed tonight they should clip a couple of seconds off the existing mark of 3:25.2.

Blozis, 6-foot 6-inch and 240-pound football star, is figured to easily eclipse his own shot put record, set last year, of 50 feet 7¼ inches. Blozis, a former national interscholastic shot put and discus record holder, has tossed the 16-pound ball 53 feet and better on many occasions.

Next to the Governor's Mile the Oriole 600, which will bring together seven of the world's outstanding half-milers, is commanding the most interest. Charlie Beetham, of N. Y. A. C. holds the record of 1:22.7 for the event but that mark should be lowered when Sanford Goldberg, the New York fireman, Maryland's Jim Kehoe and the other star entrants step out.

Cardinals Defend Laurels

Besides Maryland and Georgetown, the District collegiate ranks will be represented by Catholic University and American University, which will oppose in the Mason-Dixon Conference one-mile relay race. The Cardinals, defending champions, will look to Roger Cooper, Leo Wall, Jim Milkes and John Weschler to retain the crown.

The city's scholastic entrants are Tech, Central, Eastern Roosevelt, and Gonzaga. From nearby Virginia, Episcopal and Washington-Lee will send small but strong squads.

Two of the sidelights of the meet will center around Mason Chronister, Maryland miler, and McCluskey, veteran long-distance ace, who soon will hang up his spikes. Chronister, now a senior, will be making his third effort to win the mile race in which he has been a strong contender for two years. As an inexperienced sophomore in 1937 Chronister surprised one and all by placing third to Cunningham and Venzke. Last year he again ran a fine race only to finish second to Munski's world record-breaking feat.

McCloskey, who has stated he will not retire from the track until he wins 100 trophies, will have opportunity to boost his prize list to 89. He is entered in the mile and 2 miles, miss and out. The New York insurance broker won both events in 1937 and was second in the 2 miles in 1938. Tonight he will be shooting for a 9:06 time in the longer race and is conceded a fine chance to realize his aim, for he has covered the distance in 9:03.8.

Sukeforth Named Montreal Manager

Montreal, Feb. 9 (AP).—Clyde Sukeforth, former Cincinnati and Brooklyn catcher, today was appointed manager of the Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League.

Sukeforth, who managed Elmira in the Eastern League last year, received the appointment after President Hector Racine had considered several candidates, including Rogers Hornsby and Bill Killifer. The new manager will be in Montreal Tuesday to sign his contract, details of which were not revealed.

New Market High Defeats S. V. A., 24-20

New Market, Va., Feb. 9.—In a warmup game here this afternoon before entering the tournament for the district championship, the New Market High School, Shenandoah County high school champions, defeated the Shenandoah Valley Academy, 24 to 20. The S. V. A. boys staged a rally in the last half of the game that almost put them on the long end of the count, but the locals managed to emerge victorious.

The local team has dropped only one game this season.

Mount Rainier's "coming" cage five registered its second decision of the season over Maryland Park yesterday, 24-15, with the second team carrying the burden for most of the second half. An earlier meeting ended, 27-13, in favor of the Mounts.

In taking their seventh judgment in 15 starts, the Mounts managed to double the score on their county foes at the end of each quarter except the last. The first period count was 10-5, the second 14-7, and the third 20-10.

Ludwig Rodriquez, star of Mount Rainier's early season games, was back in form yesterday, leading the scoring with 10 points and starring in the defense. Bob Gilbert and Hughes turned in 10 points between them. Beyer, forward of the Parkmen, was best in the scoring department with five counters.

Charlotte Hall's Coaches in Dither Over Fred Chesley

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., Feb. 9.—A problem, in the person of Cadet Fred Chesley, will present itself to the athletic department of the Charlotte Hall Military Academy tomorrow afternoon as both the Cadet basketball and swimming teams swing into action.

Chesley is a member of both teams, being the ace of the tank team and its most dependable point-getter. Prior to last Wednesday he was a second-string forward on the basketball squad.

However, on Wednesday he was the outstanding performer in the Cadet courtmen's 53-28 conquest of Sidwell Friends, clinching for himself a starting berth.

Swimming Coach Fred Hughes has been counting on Chesley to garner valuable points tomorrow afternoon in the meet with the Southeast Boys' Club of Washington in the Clubmen's pool. At the same time, however, Coach W. A. Stephens of the court squad wants the rangy local boy to start at forward when the Cadets line up against Towson Catholic High here in a Maryland "B" Conference game.

Cavalier Five Meets Generals At Lynchburg

Battle of Star Shot-Makers Is Due When State Rivals Clash

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Feb. 9.—Four of the ranking shotmakers in State basketball circles will shoot it out when Virginia and Washington and Lee meet tomorrow night at Lynchburg in their first and only engagement this season.

The Cavaliers, primed for a rebound from Wednesday's hairline defeat by William and Mary, will present Bill Harman, whose 208 points top all efforts for the leadership in individual scoring, and Armand Feldman, who has worked his way into the first ten during the past week with a total of 129 points.

Washington and Lee's side of the foursome are Dick Pinck, brilliant forward, and Howard Dobbins, towering center, both of whom have passed the 100 mark in fewer games than the Cavalier stars have figured in.

With Harman and Feldman installed at the forwards, Virginia will begin action with its other regulars, Walter Smith and Bolly McCann, guards, and John Blackwell, center. McCann, whose polished floorwork has been a feature all season, also ranks high in the scoring list with 96 points.

Virginia's freshman team, undefeated in seven starts, will offer a set of accomplished scorers on its own account for the opening of the doubleheader program against Washington and Lee's freshmen. Dick Wiltshire, former Woodberry Forest captain, has 90 points to his credit, and Bill Welfley is second to hime with 66.

New Market Quintet Beats Mt. Jackson

New Market, Va., Feb. 9.—The New Market Cardinals, Shenandoah County Independent Leaguers, defeated the Mount Jackson Capers here last night, 35 to 20. Moyers, of the Cardinals, paced the game with 13 points, followed by Mount Jackson's Dellinger with 10. Local girls were defeated, 14 to 5, by Mount Jackson girls.

Blue Ridge's Varsity Found Ineligible as Foes Await Game

By the Associated Press

New Windsor, Md., Feb. 9.—Scholastic ineligibility of Blue Ridge College's entire first-string basketball team caused postponement of tonight's basketball game with Frostburg Teachers College and of tomorrow night's battle with Potomac State.

Coach Sylvester Pauxtis, announcing the postponements, said he hoped his front line troops would be ready by Monday—they're to take a conditional test Saturday that will determine their standing. The men poring over textbooks instead of trying for field goals were: George Fielding, captain and center; Jake Barnini and Ed Troccia, forwards, and Charlie Gloski and Joe Gannon, guards.

Postponement of the two games this week gives the Blue Ridge outfit a prospective five-game card for next week: St. Peters, of Jersey City, N. J., February 13; Frostburg, February 14; Potomac State, February 15; Shepherds College, February 16, and Gallaudet of Washington, February 17. Pauxtis said he probably would try to have two of the games changed to later dates.

Navy Cards Nine Sports Events Today

Feature Will Be Boxing Match Against Virginia U. Ringmen

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Feb. 9.—In a home sports program of nine events at Navy tomorrow, at least four national topnotchers in their line make appearances as rivals of the Middies. The boxing match with Virginia, the sole evening attraction, easily stands first in the eyes of the local contingent.

Virginia is the one school whose boxers lead in the series with Navy, five victories to three, with one draw, and short of a football game with the Army, there is no event where a victory for Navy is more keenly desired.

High points on the afternoon program are swimming with Yale, wrestling with the Oklahoma Aggies and basketball with Pittsburgh. The Eli tankmen have for many years, with only an occasional drop, been at the top in their class, and the same can be said of the Oklahomans on the mat, while not more than two or three basketball teams in the Nation have more consistent records than Pitt's. Fencing with Cornell is the other varsity event.

Plebe Events

The plebes also present a more-than-usually interesting card, with swimming and basketball against the freshmen of Pennsylvania, wrestling with Wyoming Seminary, school leaders, and boxing with the Virginia frosh.

Two of the Virginians fought against Navy at Charlottesville last year. Truman Southall won from Herb Benham, now graduated, but Al Wallace, also graduated, defeated Fenton Somerville, at 175 pounds. No member of the Navy team of this year was in the lists against Visginia last season.

However, three of the Cavaliers boxed here last year against the Navy plebes. Art Lipkint boxed at 120 pounds and Peter Coy, a son of Ted Coy, the great Yale back, at 135 pounds. Both won their bouts, but will have different opposition tomorrow.

Five Optimistic

Ken Rathbun, boxing at 175 pounds for the Virginia frosh last year, also won from Jess Miller, and the two will meet tomorrow at the same weight.

In spite of the nonsuccess of the Navy basketball team, with its loss of seven of eight games, it looks for an improved game against Pitt, with a chance for victory.

Johnny Wilson will use plenty of players tomorrow, including Norm Ackley, Bill Riley, Lew Syuires, John Ebnet, Jack Hardy and Wibur Barton, forwards; Charley Smith and Phil Gutting, centers, and Capt. Mike Hanley, Roy Falconer, Norman Lee and Walter shaffer, guards.

Georgetown Boys Stage Runaway; Bornathimer, Schmidli, Engles Stars

Trailing 4 to 0 after the first few minutes of play, the Georgetown Freshmen began to click and ran away with their annual clash with the Maryland Frosh played at the Richie Gymnasium yesterday. The Hoya Club ran up a 22-8 lead in the first half and then coasted to a 44-14 victory.

Bill Bornathimer, Charlie Schmidli and Ken Engels turned in the bulk of the scoring for the Georgetown team. Horn topped the Maryland attack with 5 points.

Labrot's Boat Defends Title In Lipton Race

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 9.—Fourteen of the country's fastest sailing craft will unfurl canvass here tomorrow in the eleventh renewal of the Sir Thomas Lipton yacht race, a classic emblematic of the high traditions established by that celebrated British sailor who spent half a lifetime and several fortunes developing the sport he loved so well.

Defending the title it won last year will be the trim 54-foot yawl Stormy Weather, owned by William Labrot, of Annapolis, Md. For the last three years it also has captured the 185-mile Miami-to-Nassau race, which will be renewed next week.

The Lipton regatta, staged under auspices of the Biscayne Bay Yacht Club for strictly amateur skippers, will be sailed once around a triangular course of approximately 28 nautical miles. Corrected time handicaps will determine the winner.

Entries range from the 72-foot yawl, Wakiva, owned by Harkness Edwards, of Lexington, Ky., down to to 26-foot local craft owned by W. T. Price and Jack Wirt.

Other entries include Scarab, 65-foot yawl, W. H. White, Chicago; Java Head, 44-foot cutter, chartered by David Sloss and Charles Beck, Detroit; Bagheera, 53-foot schooner, Manzy Mann, Houston; Borealis, 42-foot kawl, Wendell Anderson, Detroit.

10 Grid Games Are Scheduled By G. W. High

Six Home Contests at Night to Be Played By Alexandria Team

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Feb. 9.—A ten-game football schedule has been arranged for George Washington High School next fall, it was announced today by Athletic Director Albert Doran. The Presidents will perform in six home games, all to be played at night, and will take to the road for four engagements.

One of the highlights of the schedule will be the appearance of the Petersburg High School eleven here on October 11. Consistently ranked as one of the greatest scholastic elevens in the South, the Crimson Wave gridders have never before performed on a local field, although Petersburg basketball and baseball teams have drawn capacity audiences in previous Alexandria appearances.

Two District of Columbia elevens have been booked by the Presidents for home games. Western High will perform under the the arc lights here on September 27, while Gonzaga High has been scheduled for a floodlight tilt on November 8.

The Presidents will meet six Virginia Class A Conference opponents, playing three league games at home and three away. Conference foes include Newport News High School, Maury, of Norfolk; E. C. Glass, of Lynchburg; Lane High, of Charlottesville; Petersburg and Hopewell.

The complete schedule:

September 20—James Monroe High, of Fredericksburg, at home; 27, Western High, at home.

October 5—Newport News High, at Newport News; 11, Petersburg, at home; 19, Maury High, at Norfolk; 25, E. C. Glass, at home.

November 2—Lane High, at Charlottesville; 8, Gonzaga High, at home; 15, Hopewell, at home; 26, Washington and Lee High, at Ballston.

'Help Browns' Trend Noted In A. L. Trades

Tailenders Stronger After Trades With Yanks, Sox and Tigers

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 9.—Without any fanfare, or even public admission that they have noticed the plight of St. Louis' struggling Browns, the other American League clubs are shunting players to the tail-enders.

The Browns have made three deals—with the New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers—since William Harridge, president of the league, reportedly made his plea for the other members to help St. Louis.

The latest of these mysterious maneuvers sent Pitcher Eldon Auker from Boston to the Browns yesterday in a straight cash transaction. Previously the Yanks had sold them outfielder Walt Judnnich and the Tigers had traded them Pitcher George Coffman for Catcher Billy Sullivan.

None Outstanding

None of this talent is of conspicuous ability, perhaps, but nobody expected any club to send the Browns a Feller, a DiMaggio or a Williams, and all of the players received are likely to help in their own way.

Auker ought to fill a starting post. For three of the five years he was with Detroit he was a top-notch flinger and in 1935 he led the American League in percentage of victories and defeats, winning 18 and losing 7.

His fortunes slumped in ratio to the Tigers' own troubles, and he never was able to get going for the Red Sox after being traded in the five-player swap for Pinky Higgins a year ago. But he is only 29 years old and should have a considerable number of winning games left in him.

Hit 21 Homers

Judnich is a 23-year-old rookie, for whom the Browns are believed to have paid about $12,000. He appears a bargain at the price, even though his hitting at Newark last season was a modest .284. This figure covers up the fact that he poled 21 homers, 13 triples and 23 doubles, batting in 105 runs. He is fast and a good fielder.

Coffman is expected to handle relief chores, as is John Niggeling, who was obtained from the Cincinnati Reds on waivers. The Browns lost countless games in the late innings, and the addition of a couple of troubleshooters, as well as a starter in Auker should aid the wobbly pitching staff materially.

None of this should be taken to mean that St. Louis is likely to spurt out of the cellar. But it does mean that the Browns probably will field a much stronger team this season and give the opposition and fans a better ball game. With the installation of lights the club has a chance to recoup its financial situation and possibly cease to be the circuit's problem child.

Marshall College Schedule Complete

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—Two new opponents are included on a ten-game football schedule announced for this year by Coach Cam Henderson, of Marshall College.

The Morehead (Gy.) Teachers and Detroit Tech replace Salem and Geneva.

Eight home games are with Morehead, September 21; Virginia Tech, September 28; Dayton, October 5; Scranton, October 26; Morris Harvey, November 1; Detroit Teach, November 8; Xavier, Noember 16; West Virginia Wesleyan, November 21.

The Thundering Herd plays at Toledo October 12, and at Wake Forest, October 19.

Central Five Downs Little Hoyas, 25-19

Winners Pile Up Early Lead; Prepmen Stage Second-Period Rally; Coach Lynn Woodworth Uses Two Teams in Victory

Celebrating the return of Harry Martin to its lineup after a three-week absence, Central High's basketers dealt Georgetown Prep a 25-19 setback yesterday on the Mount Pleasant court.

An early Central lead spelled defeat for the Little Hoyas, the Blue obtained a 9-3 margin at the end of the first quarter, due greatly to the excellence of Sam Di Blasi and Charley Kligman.

It was well, too, that the victors were able to amass an early lead for Georgetown Prep came back in the second quarter to hold Central on even terms throughout the remainder of the game and forged ahead by one point in the scoring after intermission.

Coach Lynn Woodworth employed ten men in winning, substituting a new team at the beginning of the second and fourth quarters. In contrast to this method, Coach Tommy Keating of the losers failed to send in one substitute until midway in the fourth quarter.

After the Prepmen came back to threaten Central's superiority midway in the second period, the Mount Pleasanters, paced by young Teddy Thomaides, until today an obscure substitute, rose with a vengance and spurted strongly to hold a 17-10 margin at intermission.

The Little Hoyas, however, were not to be denied and fought back gamely throughout the second half but the closest they were able to come to tying the score was 18-14 shortly before the end of the third period.

The fourth quarter, like the previous two, were evenly fought. The teams matched each other point for point, neither team holding a decisive edge at any time during the proceedings.

Play as a whole throughout the game was ragged. Both teams missed shots under the basket which hardly befitted their high standing in the local scholastic cage picture. Especially was Zello Lagos, a tiny forward, embarrassed no little by his inability to convert a few shots in the fourth quarter. His failures brought howls of laughter from the stands, result of said failure being the departure of young Mr. Lagos.

Although scoring only 2 points, Martin's return was a boon to the team's play, rendering invaluable aid in his defensive work under both baskets. His return to active duty augurs well for Central's chances in its next interhigh engagement.

Sport Barrett was the game's high scorer, tallying 10 points. His nearest rival was Thomaides, who scored seven.

Pitcher Bowman Gets Bonus With Card Pact

Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—Pitcher Bobby Bowman said today he had signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals for $5,500 and a "sizable bonus."

The right-hander returned his original contract unsigned two weeks ago and Branch Rickey, Cardinal executive, came to McComas, Bowman's home near here, to talk over the stalemate.

Bowman will report at St. Petersburg, Fla., next week for spring training.

Raiders Come From Behind and Defeat Gonzaga; Karas and Lumpkin Pace Victors

Starting the last period with a three-point deficit, Western High raced to the front to score an impressive 31-25 triumph over Gonzaga yesterday on the Georgetown court.

The Purple was held to a scant three points in the final session, all by lanky Jim Mulvihill, while Jimmy Karas, Hop Perell and Irving Schenker tallied 11. Karas was mainly responsible for the Raiders' ninth victory in 13 games, his accurate set shooting bringing his total points to 15. Gonzaga's Franny Counselman kept even with Karas in the first half, scoring 7 points, but that proved to be his output for the game.

For the first three periods it was nip and tuck scrap. Western managed for a 6-2 lead midway of the first quarter, but wound up holding a mere 6-5 edge. At the half, due to a pair of quick set shots by Karas just before the horn, Western was again out front, 16-15. Mulvihill and Freddy Rice helped the Purple to a 22-19 margin going into the last quarter, but then began a long period of Purple scorelessness.

Lane O'Donnell, Counselman and Buddy Rowzee stood out in Gonzaga's effort, as much as did Karas and Johnny Lumpkin for the victors. The final few minutes of the game were marked by the use of George Barnes and "Buck" Herrlein, Western football stars, in the Raider lineup for the first time this year.

Woodberry 5 Beaten, 29-16, By Petersburg

Losers Limited To Two Points Each In 2d and Last Periods

Special Dispatch to The Post

Woodberry Forest, Va., Feb. 9.—The Petersburg High five downed Woodberry Forest here today for the second time this season, 29-16.

The home team moved out into an early lead on goals by Patton and Smith, but Evely, Clements and Peterson collaborated in erasing this margin and sending the visitors out front for the remainder of the contest.

Wild passing and erratic backboard work, combined with close guarding on the part of the winners, limited Woodberry to 2 points each in the second and fourth quarters.

Landon Five's Defense Routs St. Andrew's

Delaware Visitors Swamped, 31-5, as Paul Baker Stars

One of the finest defensive jobs of the season was turned in yesterday by Landon School as it trounced St. Andrews, of Middleton, Del., 31 to 5, on the local floor.

The visitors were held to 3 points in the first quarter and 2 in the third. Meanwhile Landon, capturing its sixth victory in ten games, steadily improved its shooting eye as it tallied , 6, 8 and 13 points in the respective periods.

Paul Baker, one of the highest scoring players in the District, again paced his team's point-making with 15, ahead of Alford and Amussen, who tallied 6 each. White and Burton were the only St. Andrews players to hit the basket from the field as the invaders lost their second engagement in six this year.

Wiscocnsin Forward Is Ruled Eligibile

Madison, Wis., Feb. 9 (AP).—The University of Wisconsin faculty executive committee today reinstated Erin Karp, reserve forward on the basketball team, who previously had been declared ineligible.

Karp had passing grades in mid-year examinations, but he had failed in a course the previous semester and did not make it up. When he was declared ineligible he appealed to the committee, contending the course was an elective, and the committee wiped the failure from his record.

Jockey Flinchum Rides Four Winners on Hialeah Program

Star Starts Day With a $44.40 Shot

Pilots Home Victor In Feature; Followers Have Field Day as Jockey 'Goes Wild'

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 9.—This was charity day at the home of the Miami Jockey Club, but to the army of fans who back Apprentice Jack Flinchum's mounts regardless of past performances, it was just as much a field day for the 17-year-old kid from Miamisburg, Ohio. Well in front of rival booters at the meeting, Flinchum clicked with four mounts to send his followers wild with joy. Flinchum previously had earned two tripiles at the meeting.

The youngster, who weighs well under 100 pounds, began with Cadmium, a first-time starter that won the opener at $44.40 for $2. He missed in the second race, but won the third on Doubt Not, a $5 favorite. Time Please, his mount in the fourth race, finished fourth, then Hutoka was out of the picture in the fifth. Flinchum then booted Visigoth, a $13.00 for $2, to a nose score in the sixth event, and came back to drive Panjab first home in the seventh, paying 4 to 1.

The Kelley entry ruled favorite in the field of seven, of which all save the winner and Lackawanna are eligible for the $50,000 Widener Cup.

A crowd of 11,157, slightly less than attended the same day a year ago, helped the cause of the needy. Proceeds of the day's events will be distributed to worthy local and State causes. The weather man failed to show a cooperative spirit. Gray clouds and a threat of rain hung over this sector from early morning.

The Southern Cross was one of those races in which the result could not be predicted at any time, even after the horses hit the wire. Day Off, Cardinalis and Gridiron were bunched in that order for the early lead. Visigoth joined the trio around the last turn and the four horses raced through the stretch as if tied. Day Off finally cracked, but the other three, with Visigoth on the outside, bobbed their noses in unison to the finish. It was two straight for Visigoth, which recently won in $5,000 claiming company.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CADMIUM, $44.40, $11.50, $5.60; STRING MUSIC, $5.50, $3.20; EASY BLEND, $2.70.

CADMIUM, breaking alertly, went in close attendance of the pace from the start, responded with determination when the final issue came to outlast STRING MUSIC. The latter, quickest away, assumed a short lead in the early stages, but faltered slightly in the last strides. EASY BLEND drifted out after the start, but continued gamely to outstay MAEZACA. The latter was under punishment most of the trip.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:32. Off 2:33½. Winner, E. C. Roth's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUNNY RABBIT, $36.10, $19.10, $10.20; TETRATOWN, $21.40, $10.40; JACINTO, $5.70.

BUNNY RABBIT worked her way up while saving ground in the early running and, responding courageously to punishment, outlasted TETRATOWN. The latter, prominent all the way, made a bold effort when placed to a drive, but could not stave off the winner's bid. JACINTO, slow to get going, finished fast through the stretch to wear ACQUIN down. The latter showed the most speed, but weakened in the last furlong.

Daily Double, CADMIUM and BUNNY RABBIT, Paid $349.30.

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, GOOD.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:02. Off 3:02½. Winner, A. B. Christopher's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOUBT NOT, $5.00, $3.20, $2.50; CERISSE III, $4.00, $2.80; HANDIBOY, $2.90.

DOUBT NOT, displaying high speed, drew out into a winning lead rounding the turn and held sway thereafter under light pressure. CERISSE III, outrun the first half mile, gained steadily when straightened into the stretch and easily disposed of the others. HANDIBOY, a forward factor throughout, continued with good courage and held DOUBLE B. safe. The latter, hard ridden, could not get up.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:31½. Off 3:32½. Winner, King Ranch's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COMO NO, $7.10, $4.00, $3.00; BRIGHT AND EARLY, $4.60, $3.20; FOXY MAUDE, $3.50.

COMO NO, on the outside and going in close pursuit of the leader in the early running, responding courageously when it came to a drive and got up in the last few strides. BRIGHT AND EARLY set a swift pace from the start, finished gamely, but could not withstand the winner's challenge. FOXY MAUDE, always prominent, faltered slightly through the stretch, yet held the others safe. TIME PLEASE, vigorously ridden, could not reach the leaders.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:03. Winner, Brandywine Stable's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SACK, $10.20, $4.50, $3.60; HIGH PLAID, $3.80, $3.50; THE LOOM, $8.10.

SACK forced a steady pace in the early stages, shook off HUTOKA midway around the turn, opened up a good lead, but faltered and was under extreme pressure to stave off HIGH PLAID'S bid. The latter gradually worked his way up under intermittent punishment and would have won in a few more strides. THE LOOM stopped through on the inside entering the stretch and wore TIPCAT down. The latter had no mishaps.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Southern Cross. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:36. Off 4:37. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VISIGOTH, $13.30, $3.80, $3.10; CARDINALIS (entry), $2.50, $2.80; GRIDIRON (entry), $2.80.

VISIGOTH, under strong pressure from the start, gained steadily in the final 3 furlongs while going around the field and got up in the last stride. CARDINALIS, a keen contender all the way, continued courageously under punishment through the stretch and outlasted GRIDIRON. The latter, sandwiched between the leaders from the start, assumed a short lead in the stretch, but, hung right to the end. DAY OFF, hustled all the way and saving ground, faltered in the final 20 yards.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:07. Off 5:07½. Winner, H. N. Lape's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PANJAB, $10.00, $3.30, $2.70; BURNING STICK, $3.20, $2.30; KEN'S POP, $3.80.

PANJAB, reserved off the early pace to the stretch turn, gained steadily on the outside in the final furlong and wore the leaders down to win going away. BURNING STICK, who gradually eased back in the run down the backstretch, was taken to the inside when he moved into contention and was in the deepest going in the last 3 furlongs. KEN'S POP, prominent all the way, hung when it came to a drive. PAUL PRY quit in the stretch run.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:38½. Off 5:39. Winner, Lucky Teter's b. g. (4), by Masked Marvel II—Satin Collar. Trained by L. H. Silves. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:53⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SATIN MARVEL, $14.10, $9.90, $4.30; OUR LADDIE, $6.00, $3.90; PETE WENDLING, $3.40.

SATIN MARVEL held his opposition safe for speed, opened up a good lead after leaving the backstretch, faltered through the stretch and was vigorously urged to withstand OUR LADDIE'S bid. The latter worked his way up on the outside and closed with a belated rush. PETE WENDLING moved up menacingly entering the stretch, but faltered as if short and just lasted to stave off BRAVING DANGER. The latter closed a big gap.

Savings Group To Meet Feb. 22 At Pittsburgh

Home Ownership to Be Chief Topic at 17th Winter Conference

Local building and loan delegates attending will soon hear everything about supplying money for home ownership, from establishment of "Own-a-Home Savings Clubs" to use of central appraising bureaus. These will be discussed at the seventeenth annual midwinter conference of the American Savings and Loan Institute in Pittsburgh, February 22-23.

Choosing a traditional meeting date which permits use of the Washington's Birthday legal holiday to increase attendance, the institute expects between 500 and 600 senior and junior executives of the savings, building and loan associations at this first national assembly of the business in 1940.

Speakers will include the Frank W. Hancock, member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board; George W. West, Atlanta, president, United States Savings and Loan League; Morton Bodfish, Chicago, executive vice president of the league; Leo Kieran, of New York City; A. J. Bromfield, Denver, president of the institute; W. H. Houghton, of the UUnited States Secret Service; John F. Mahr, Oklahoma City, executive secretary of the Oklahoma Building and Loan League, and many whose special field of savings and loan work is advertising.

Loan Management

A full morning's session will be devoted to "Loan Management and Procedure," with L. H. Allen, Houston, Tex., second vice president of the institute, presiding. The program will start with a discussion of methods of saving up for the down payment on a home, that new approach to home ownership which has been revived from the earliest emphasis of savings, building and loan associations 100 years ago.

Other subjects will include "Interviewing the Prospective Borrower," "Effects of Costs and Terms on Loan Volume," "Variable Interest Rates," "Meeting Competition Through Service," "Central Appraising Bureaus," "Collection Practices," "Insuring the Physical Risk," and "Possibilities of the New Title 1, Class 3, FHA Loans."

Advertising

Another half day's session will be given over to advertising and business development. The conference will close with a banquet Friday night, February 23, in which the annual banquet of the Allegheny County Building and oLan League, usually attended by between 1,200 and 1,500, will be merged with that of the national meeting. Mr. Kieran is to be the speaker.

The institute is the educational or ganization of the $6,000,000,000 savings, building and loan business, its chief activity being the organization and conduct of classes for professional training in savings and loan work throughout the country, having already established more than 100 chapters in as many different cities. The holding of a yearly conference, with special emphasis on the operative phases of the thrift and home financing institution, has also been part of its program since it started in 1922. tI is an affiliate of the United States Savings and Loan eLague.

Eastern Building and Loan

Shareholders of Eastern Building and Loan Association met this week for annual election of officers and directors. One new officer was named to occupy the position of vice president, held by the late Clarence F. Donohoe, he being Charles A. Carry, who has served for sometime as a director of the association.

William N. Payne, jr., was unanimously reelected president of the 51-year-old group. Mr. Payne is also president of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League. Other officers reappointed were R. Edward Early, secretary; William H. Harrison, treasurer; Alfred R. Keir, assistant treasurer, and Arthur G. Bishop, attorney. Directors chosen were Walter M. Bastian, T. Earle Bourne, William J. Brewer, Osbourn Owings, J. Chester Pyles, James A. Donohoe and Messrs. Payne, Harrison and Cary.

The report of the secretary revealed that total resources moved past the $4,000,000 mark during 1939, representing a net increase of more than $960,000. The surplus account reflected an increase of 50 per cent and now stands at $135,000. A feature of the report was the volume of real estate loans made, totaling $1,921,850 and representing 323 transactions. The association is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corporation, District of Columbia Building and Loan and United States Savings and Loan Leagues.

Southeastern Discount Corporation

Reporting substantial gains in business for the year recently ended, stockholders of Southeastern Discount Corporation elected officers and directors at their annual meeting at company headquarters, 1407 K street northwest, this week.

Lewis Eisele was reelected president of the corporation. Other officers reelected are M. W. Bohrer, Charles Wilson, Harry J. Donoghue, vice presidents; Paul Chesley, executive vice president and Clifton M. Eisele, secretary-treasurer. Printed detailed reports of the corporation's business will go forward to all stockholders, the president announced.

Profit-Taking, Peace Rumors Lower Wheat

Early Rise to Above $1 A Bushel Is Wiped Out in Final Hour

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Profit taking and intentional diplomatic moves that revived peace talk helped to take starch out of the wheat market today after prices had stiffened with net gains of a cent a bushel.

The early gains, which carried May contracts above $1 a bushel and lifted the market's level to the highest point in more than two weeks were wiped out in the final hour of trading. Wheat closed ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, compared with yesterday's finish, May, 99⅝@99¾; July, 97@97⅛.

Strength exhibited in other pits also gave way to weakness. Corn closed ¼ to ½ down, May, 56⅜@56¼; July, 56¼; oats, ¼ to ⅜ off; rye unchanged to ⅜ down and lard unchanged to 2 higher.

Early wheat gains, attributed largely to buying inspired by improved milling and merchandise demand, attracted profit taking inasmuch as top prices were about 5 cents above last week's lows. The market was weakening at the moment of announcement that the United States has started diplomatic conversations with neutrals regarding economic conditions and possible armament reductions. This, coupled with the dispatch on an envoy to survey conditions in Europe and disclosure that the President's personal representative to the Vatican would sail soon revived the peace talk.

Cotton Futures Rise 5 to 45 Cents Per Bale

New York, Feb. 9 (AP).—Cotton futures today climbed to the highest levels in the forward drive which started late in January. Gains of 1 t o9 points were scored, helped by higher foreign markets and lively demand from Bombay, Wall Street and the trade Bombay tugged the market forward at the start. Brokers said that this reflected sharply higher prices in the East Indian market and a lower private estimate of the Indian crop.

Speculative interests also appeared to find cotton a good buy. Recent steadiness of the price list was seen as the main stimulus for outside takings.

The March delivery broke through the 11?cents-a-pound mark for the first time since January. Since the close last Friday that delivery has advanced more than $1 a bale despite heavy offerings by leading spot interests.

Large spot houses were again the chief source of supply for contracts today. Moderate hedge selling developed.

Cottonseed Oil

The cottonseed oil futures market leaned on firm allied commodities today and uniformly advanced 1 points.

Early gains running to 7 points carried the September delivery to a new high for the season at 7.37 cents a pound.

Sales totaled 177 lots: March *7.01, May *7.14, July *7.24, September, 7.33.

Week's Auto Output Well Above Year Ago

Detroit, Feb. 9. (AP).—Automotive news in its weekly survey of plant activity in the motor car industry today reported the current week's output would total 130,207 cars and trucks compared with 101,241 last week and 86,644 units this week a year ago. It attributed the contraseasonal rise in assemblies to the resumption of five-day production operations at the Packard plant.

The survey credited General Motors divisions with 38,570 assemblies this week compared with 39,219 last week; Chrysler with 24,300 compared with 24,347 last week and Ford divisions with 24,150 cars and trucks compared with 24,165 last week. The trade publication reported all car canufacturers in production this week excepting Willys-Overland.

United Food Stores To Stage Festival

The United Food Stores, Inc., announced yesterday that their chain of locally owned independent stores has grown to 120 stores, an increase of 20 per cent in the last two years and that the volume of business has increased every week during the last year.

Meyer L. Sody, who has served for two terms as president has been reelected and also has been named executive general manager.

United Food Stores throughout Washington will hold a "parade of progress food festival" from February 12 to February 22, presenting a food show at each store.

Eggs Rise as Demand Exceeds the Supply

Chicago, Feb. 9 (AP).—Demand for eggs again exceeded the supply in the wholesale market here today and prices jumped a cent a dozen in their seventh consecutive advance. Fresh firsts, current receipts and undergrades reached their best levels in more than a year. Extra firsts, the best grade, were quoted at 26½ cents a dozen, 9½ cents above a year ago. Adverse production and marketing weather and light receipts held buying enthusiasm high. Reflecting the strength of the wholesale market, egg futures also advanced slightly, October refrigerators reaching 18¾ cents, new season high.

Five Companies Bid for Far East Steamship Line

By the Associated Press

Five companies have submitted bids to the Maritime Commission for purchase or charter of the American Pioneer Line's Australian and Far Eastern services.

Bids were submitted by the United States Lines; Charles U. Bay, of New York City, in behalf of a company to be known as the American Pioneer Lines, Inc.; Argonaut Line, Inc., New York City; California Steamship Co., San Francisco, and Curthew-Sanders & Son, of New York City.

The United States Lines bid $150,000 for each of eight vessels for operation in the Far East Service. The vessels were the City of Delhart, City of Elwood, City of Rayville, Jeff Davis, Potter, Tampa, Michita, Yomachichi.

United States Lines also bid $143,000 each for the same vessels and four others—Capulin, Collamer, Independence Hall, and Quaker City—for operation in the Far East and Atlantic and Gulf-Australian services.

Bay's bid on 12 vessels ranged from $76,000 for the Quaker City to $103,000 for the City of Delhart for operation in the Far East and Atlantic, and Gulf-Australian services.

Argonaut Line, Inc., bid on four vessels for the Atlantic-Australian services. The California Steamship Co. bid on four vessels for the Far East service.

Week's Financing 10% for New Money

New York, Feb. 9 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities during the week ended yesterday totaled $32,825,800 compared with $17,361,563, the previous week and $10,425,661 a year ago, Poor's Publishing Co. reported today.

The latest amount was made up principally of corporate issues to refund existing obligations. Only 10 per cent of the total represented a demand for new money.

MunicipalBond Issues 24.8% Below 1929

Relief and Refunding Flotations Reveal Substantial Rise

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Economic and political changes during the past decade resulted in a 24.8 per cent decline in the amount of municipal bonds issued last year compared with 1929, a Nation-wide survey indicated today.

Compiled by Barcus, Kindred & Co., bond house, the survey covered 6,013 issues in 1929 and 5,153 in 1939—a large part, the company said, of all municipal issues—and compared the purposes for which they were issued.

Fewer bonds, it showed, were issued for road and school construction last year than in 1929, but more for relief and refunding.

Bonds totaled $1,107,025,000 last year, a decrease of $364,454,000 compared with the 1929 total of $1,471,479,000. The drop, however, the survey said, was about balanced by an increase of $323,279,000 in short-term financing maturing within one year, or from $986,658,000 in 1929 to $1,209,937,000 last year.

Road bonds, which totaled $237,244,000 in 1929, when they were the largest class of municipals issued, dropped 70 per cent to $70,111,3000 in 1939, the survey pointing out that road construction now is financed largely out of gasoline tax revenue.

Large Refunding Total

Of minor importance ten years ago, refunding bonds last year totaled $249,744,000, the increase due largely, according to th esurvey, to a favorable refunding market. Relief bonds, of which there were none in 1929, amounted to $66,118,000 last year. Revenue bonds increased from $10,791,000 ten years ago to $139,117,000 last year, when municipalities frequently resorted to this hype of financing to match grants for improvements.

School construction bonds dropped 67 per cent from $229,503,000 in 1929 to $75,205,000 in 1939, but money spent on school building, the survey declared, probably was about the same last year as ten years ago, with the Federal Government donating 45 to 50 per cent in most cases. The diminishing birth rate was cited as one reason for what decrease there was in building.

Six More Fast Defense Tankers To Be Constructed

By the Associated Press

Construction of six more "National Defense" tankers will begin shortly, the Maritime Commission announced yesterday.

Announcement was made some time ago that private ship operators would build 24 of these tankers, with the Maritime Commission paying the cost of certain national defense features incomporated in their design.

The first of 12 in the program are nearing completion, with nine already launched. These tankers, described by the commission as the largest and fastest in the world, were built by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, at a cost of $3,129,667 each. The Maritime Commission paid $880,250 toward the cost.

The new group of six ships will be built by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., of New York. The vessels will be about 500 feet overall, with a beam of 68 feet, a designed speed of 16½ knots and single screw propulsion. All are being designed for quick conversion into Navy auxiliaries.

Howard Black Elected Time Vice President

New York, Feb. 9.—Election of Howard Black as a vice president of Time, Inc., publishers of Time, Life and Fortune magazines and the Architectural Forum, was announced today by the board of directors of Time, Inc., meeting here. Mr. Black has been advertising director of Life since 1937, and will continue to serve in that post.

Joining the advertising staff of Time magazine in 1924, shortly after the founding of the publication, Mr. Black successively served as Eastern advertising manager of Time and Time's advertising manager, assuming the latter post in 1933 and remaining in that position until taking over the advertising direction of Life.

Many Markets Close For Lincoln's Birthday

New York, Feb. 9 (AP).—Lincoln's Birthday will be observed with closing of most principal security and commodity exchanges throughout the country on Monday, February 12.

Attention will be turned to those Southern markets which will be opened for trading—notably the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, Savannah and Jacksonville Naval Stores Markets. All markets in Canada and abroad will operate as usual.

Bethlehem Stele Files $105,000,000 Issue

Bethlehem Steel Corporation yesterday filed a registration statement covering $35,000,000 of serial debentures, due March 1, 1941, to March 1, 1950, consolidated mortgage 20-year sinking fund 3 per cent bonds, series G, due February 1, 1960, and consolidated mortgage 25-year sinking fund 3¼ per cent bonds, series H, due February 1, 1965. The aggregate principal amount of the series G and series H bonds is $70,000,000.

According to the registration statement the net proceeds from the sale of the securities will be used, together with funds to be supplied by Bethlehem Steel Co., for the redemption on or before July 1, 1940, of $50,390,000 of series D bonds and $50,342,000 of series E bonds outstanding in the hands of the public. Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Smith, Barney & Co. and Mellon Securities Corporation are expected to be the principal underwriters.

Refunding Issues 74% Of 1939 Total

Volume of Retirement Securities Compares With 52% in 1938

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission reported yesterday that the total of security issues registered with it last year declined to $1,761,416,000 from the 1938 total of $2,422,590,000 and that the proportion intended for "new money" purposes was cut nearly in half.

The amount of "new money"—funds sought for plant and equipment and for working capital—dropped to 14 per cent of the total from 26 per cent in 1938, while the securities issued for repayment of debt and retirement of stock composed 74 per cent of the aggregate, compared with 52 per cent the previous year.

The allocation of expected proceeds for purchase of securities declined to 9 per cent last year from 20 per cent in 1938.

New Ventures Negligible

"Security financing during 1939, as reflected in registration statistics," the SEC said, "consisted largely of fixed interest-bearing securities of utility and manufacturing companies issued for refunding purposes and offered through underwriters. Moreover, virtually all of the securities were registered by established companies, the registrations by new ventures accounting for only 2 per cent of the total."

Columbus Ringmen Favored

Kentucky U. Will Oppose Local Boxers

Wildcat Mittmen Are Undefeated So Far This Season; Bouts At Turner's Arena

Seeking its first victory in three starts, the Columbus University boxing team plays host to the University of Kentucky at Turner's Arena at 8:30 tonight in the only college bouts scheduled here this weekend.

The Explorers, benefiting from successive setbacks by Miami and Catholic University, are in their best fighting trim of the season and will be favored over the Wildcats.

Kentucky is undefeated to date, having walloped Xavier University of Cincinnati, 6-2, in its only start. The invaders will feature one of the largest college heavyweights ever to appear here in 6-foot 7-inch 237-pound Clyd Johnson, a freshman football tackle.

Johnson will square off with Columbus' promising Abe Cohen who made an impression last week though he was decisioned by Jay Turner of Catholic University. Johnson comes touted as a good puncher and unusually fast for a man of his huge bulk.

Two other Kentucky stars are Lawrence Smith, 127 pounds, and Cebell Posey, 135 pounds. Both scored knockouts over their Xavier opponents. Posey is a former Kentucky Golden Gloves lightweight champion.

Smith will meet Lou Taub and Posey will fight Stanley Stevenson, both of whom were victorious against Catholic University.

Buddy Lazear, Columbus' hard-hitting 145-pounder, who has eight knockouts in ten varsity bouts will attempt to up his flattering record against Elwood Chambers. Lazear last week was deprived of what seemed certain victory over C. U.'s Josh Hughes when the referee stopped the bout in the first round, as Hughes' eye was cut, and declared it "no contest."

The pairings—120, pounds, Leonard Lehner (C.) vs. Jim Overby (K.); 127 pounds, Lou Taub (C.) vs. Lawrence Smith (K.); Stanley Stephenson (C.) vs. Cabell Posey (K.); Ralph Lazear (C.) vs. Elwood Chambers (K.); 135 pounds, Charley Cox (C.) vs. Paul Haskell (K.); 165 pounds, Bill Crum (C.) vs. Andy Slatt (K.); 175 pounds, Lou Harman (C.) vs. Tommy Zinn (K.); heavyweight, Abe Cohen (C.) vs. Clyde Johnson (K.).

Hagerstown Tankmen Lose To D.C. YMCA

D. C. Swimmers Take Close Meet by 39-38 Margin

Washington "Y" junior swimmers earned a close 39-38 victory over Hagerstown "Y" here last night when Palmer, District representative, came in second in the final event of the meet.

First place in the finale, the 100-yard free style, was a deadlock between Washington's Fields and Auscherman, of Hagerstown. The crucial points depended on second, in which place Palmer finished.

In all the Hagerstown swimmers took six of the nine events. Washington's time of 1:01.4 in the free style relay bettered the old pool record.

50-YARD FREE STYLE—Albert Rojas (W), first; James Poyner (W), second; George Ridgley (H), third. Time, 32 seconds.

50-YARD BREAST STROKE—Carl Larson (H), first; Elvyn Kearns (W), second; James Poyner (W), third. Time, 41.4 seconds.

100-YARD FREE STYLE RELAY—First, Washington (Kearns, Shenk, Rojas, Poyner); second, Hagerstown. Time, 1:01.4. (New record.)

(17 Years and Under)

50-YARD FREE STYLE—Forest Hoover (H), first; John Bender (W), second; Robert Means (W), third. Time, 26.2 seconds.

50-YARD BREAST STROKE—John Binbinder (H), first; John Bender (W), second; Robert Means (W), third. Time, 32.2 seconds.

50-YARD BACKSTROKE—Don Wyvell (W), first; Harold Cochrane (H), second; George Clark (W), third. Time, 33.7 seconds.

313-YARD FREE STYLE RELAY—First, Hagerstown (Auschreman, Bruce, Unger, Hoover); second, Washington. Time, 1:58.9.

100-YARD FREE STYLE—Auscherman (H) and Fielder (W), tie for first; Palmer (W), second. Time, 1:01.2.

winner, who had posted 35-32—67.

Stackhouse fashioned nines of 33-34. But the 68 bracket was jammed with seven players, including Joe Coria, St. Paul's cinderella youngster, who yesterday fired a 63 to equal the competitive course record.

Other 68 shooters were Byron Nelson, national open champion, who finished brilliantly after three penalty strokes at 34-34—68; John Revolta, Evanston, Ill., 36-32—68; Lloyd Mangrum, Oak Park, Ill., 35-33—68; Sam Byrd, Philadelphia, 3533—68; Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., 36-32—68; and Tony Butler, San Angelo, Tex., 35-33—68.

The 69 bracket held Johnny Dawson, Hollywood amateur, 34-35—69; R. Bond, Cleveland, 34-35—69, and Slammin' Sam Snead, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, Pa., 34-35—69.

Other par breakers at 70 were Mike Murra, Wichita, Kans., 36-34; John Barnum, Edinburg, Tex., amateur, 36-34; Eddie Held, of St. Louis, former amateur great, who turned professional today, 33-37; Horton McVeigh, Los Angeles, 37-33, and Horace Lacey, Little Rock, 36-34.

Blair Five Wins, 40-19, Over C.H.M.A.

Johnny Norris High Scorer as Suburban Taem Takes 12th

Blair High's powerful basketball forces rang up their twelfth victory in 16 games this season last night on their home court, trouncing Charlotte Hall Military Academy by a 40-to-18 count.

At no time were the fast-breaking Blair lads in serious danger. They ran up a 19-to-6 score at the half and allowed reserves to take care of much of the final two periods.

Johnny Norris' 15 points stole scoring honors for the winners, and Nick Carter was only 5 points back. Best for the losers was Forward

'Poisoned Dart' Penman Arrested After Horse Threat

Los Angeles, Feb. 9 (AP).—A man Government agents said had written Racehorse Owner Neil S. McCarthy demanding $5,000 under threat to kill one of his horses "with poisoned darts" was arrested today as he appeared at McCarthy's office.

The man gave the name of Robert Hilton Nixon and was carged with extortion. His bond was fixed at $25,000.

McCarthy owns a string of thoroughbreds including Augury and Big Ben, nominees for the Santa Anita Handicap.

Terp Mat Squad Beats Gallaudet

The University of Maryland wrestling team took its second start of the year from an experienced team from Gallaudet at College Park last night. Every bout was well contested despite the one-sided score. The outstanding bout was the decision which Council won from Scotts. This bout was exceedingly close and hard fought. One near fall decided the issue. Capt. Otts Meade, who lost the only Maryland bout, was handicapped by an ankle which was badly sprained.

Dual Wrestling Meet

121 pounds—Hess (G) and Burley (M), draw.

128 pounds—Sullivan (G) won by decision from Meade (M.).

136 pounds—Ayres (M) won by decision from Rafferty (G).

145 pounds—Rockstroh (M) won by fall from Romero (G) in 1:48.

155 pounds—Council (M) won by decision from Stotts (G).

165 pounds—Watson (M) won by fall from Dillon (G) in 3:48.

175 pounds—McNeil (M) won by fall from Roberts (G) in 5:53.

Heavyweight—Krouse (M) won by fall from Mirabeal (G) in 4:40.

Final score—Maryland, 27½; Gallaudet, 4½.

Referee—Tom Clarton.

Charlotte Hall Boxing Schedule

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., Feb. 9.—The Charlotte Hall Military Academy boxing team will trade punches with the estern Maryland College freshmen fighters on Saturday, March 2, at Westminster, Md., in the first dual meet in the history of boxing at Charlotte Hall, Coach Bill Shores announced today.

Although Cadet mitt-slingers have been regular competitors in the South Atlantic Prep School Tournament for years, the match with the Terror Cubs will be their first in dual competition. Next year, with an enlarged indoor athletic plant, the Shoresmen probably will fight at least four dual matches.

Iowa State Tankmen Win

Ames, Iowa, Feb. 9 (AP).—Winning seven of the nine events, Iowa State's Big Six champion swimming team defeated Kansas State, 54 to 27, here today.

Blow-by-Blow Of Louis' Title Fight

with three straight lefts as Godoy backed again.

The jab was bothering Arturo more in half around with a hard left hook to the ribs. Louis was dancing away from this round. Godoy turned the champion Godoy's rushes more effectively in this round. Godoy backed the champion into a neutral corner with two stiff lefts to the chin, but took a left hook to the jaw in return. Louis nailed Arturo with a left and a right and Godoy held on. They were sparring in midring at the bill. Louis' round.

ROUND THIRTEEN—Godoy jumped off his stool and was half across the ring before the bell sounded. He was called back, then he rushed Joe to the ropes with a right to the body. A short left to the ear and Godoy put one in the mid-section. Louis swung a right to the body and Godoy landed two left in the same place. Arturo landed a left to the jaw and another to the mid-section.

ROUND FOURTEEN

Godoy came out leaning way down and with his arms hanging almost to the canvas, apparently as a joke. Then he danced all around Joe without a punch being thrown. Suddenly he leaped in with a pitched a terrific left flush to the point of the chin. He had Louis apparently befuddled as he danced all around the champion and there were howls of laughter as he motioned to Referee Donovan to have Louis come in and fight.

He was crouching in all methodical poses first one way and then the other. Then he leaped again and connected with his left to the jaw as Joe met him with a short left and a right. After fooling Joe with his crouching and bobbing for another 30 seconds he came in close and rushed Louis into the ropes. Louis nailed Godoy with a stiff right to the chin as the challenger leaned against the ropes with his hands down grinning at the bell. Louis' round.

ROUND FIFTEEN

Both McAvoy, Brown Talk Good Fight

Rivals Preparing for Act 2 at Arena On Monday Night

Muttering dire threats of what he will do to Natie Brown in their return match at Turner's Area Monday night, Mickey McAvoy will come back to town today to taper off in a heavy three-day training grind.

The West Coast Irishman,a accompanied by Manager Lew Myers, will arrive this morning and report o the Huron Gym for a final workout.

Speaking to Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn from New York yesterday, McAvoy said of his last week's fight with Brown:

"Brown shot his bolt in the first two rounds, and when I cracked him with that hard right hand to the jaw he wanted to quit right then and there. He was hurt and began to shoot low punches and foul as a way out. This is one score I'm going to even and I'm going to even it by knocking that bum stiff Monday night."

Brown, meanwhile, was predicting he would finish McAvoy before "he has a chance to get his hands up."

"I'll hit this guy so hard and so quick," he boasted," that he won't be able to yell foul. When that bell rings I'll be all over him with punches."

Brown will end his training at the Huron Gym today in a workout starting at 1200 p. m.

Four Games Booked In Soccer League

IN MEMORIAM

TAPP, HARRY B. In loving memory of our dear husband and father who passed away one year ago today, February 10, 1939.

He bid no one a last farewell
He said good-by to none;
His loving heart had ceased to beat
Before we knew it he was gone.
He did not fail to do his best;
His heart was true and tender;
He worked hard for those he left
And ever will be remembered.
HIS DEVOTED WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

Contract Bridge

B. H. Davies, a British writer, describes an unusual hand from the Anglo-French match, the cards of which are shown in today's box.

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable

SOUTH DEALER

Opening lead: K ♠.

"West led the king of spades, which East allowed to make. To trick 2 West led his ten of clubs, and by this time South had presumably solved his puzzle, for if he carelessly discarded a small spade from North on trick 2, instead of a small diamond, the slam is automatically wrecked.

"Suddenly he saw daylight gleam. Assuming a two-two split in diamonds, South's nine of diamonds could be discarded on dummy's last heart, provided that South's trumps were reduced to one fewer than North's by means of spade ruffs. South arrived at this plan before he discarded on trick 2, and elected to throw a small diamond from dummy in lieu of a small spade.

"For he required two spade ruffs in South to reduce South's trumps to one fewer than North's, and so furnish a discard for the blocking nine of diamonds.

"This particular tactic is well known as the 'reversed dummy,' declarer's trumps being utilized mainly to ruff, whilst dummy's trumps are used mainly to draw the enemy's trumps. A preliminary lead of a high heart from South verifies the no longer alarming suspicion that West actually holds four trumps. On a two-two diamond split the slam is now safe. Two spades are ruffed high in South. Trumps are drawn; the diamonds have split as desired; the blocking nine of diamonds is discarded on North's last trump and all North's surviving diamonds are as powerful as trump aces."

Today's Radio Highlights

From the White House, President Roosevelt addresses the members of the American Youth Congress and the young people of the United States—WOL, WRC, WMAL and WJSV, 12:30 p. m.

Puccini's "La Boheme" is broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House. Singing the role of Mimi is Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano. Others in the cast are Giuseppe de Luca, barytone, as Marcello; Ezio Pinza, bass, as Colline; Armand Tokatyan, tenor, as Rodolfo. "La Boheme" was first produced in Turin in 1898 and was adapted from Muerger's novel, "Vie de Boheme"—WMAL, 1:55 p. m.

The Right Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, associate professor of philosophy at Catholic University, will address the Youth of America on the "Call to Youth" program, sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Women—WRC, 2 p. m.

A series of four programs of contemporary American music by eminent composers from all sections of the country is inaugurated today with selections by the Stradivarius Quartet and Composers Arthur Roberts and Raphael Siliverman, in a broadcast from Boston—WJSV, 4 p. m.

Mr. Lynn C. Drake, president of the Washington Boy Scouts, interviews a group of scouts who appeared at the New York World's Fair as a special feature of the Boy Scout thirtieth anniversary of scouting—WOL, 5:15 p. m.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and Rear Admiral Reginal R. Belknap, U. S. Navy, retired, will discuss problems related to national defense, on the "People's Platform" program—WJSV, 7:30 p. m.

Bruno Walter, internationally famous conductor-pianist, will conduct the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra in the first of a series of five weekly concerts. Walter, last of three distinguished guest conductors heard during Arturo Toscanini's absence from the N. B. C. Symphony podium, has chosen Bruckner's "Romantic" Symphony No. 4, in E-Flat Major, and Haydn's Symphony No. 86, in D Major, for his opening concert—WMAL, 10 p. m.

Listen!

with Slocum

For a gentleman who once earned a pretty fair reputation as a sissy, WJSV'S Lanny Ross is doing pretty well these days.

LANNY ROSS

He's working a little hard, five days a week in fact, but he's the spearhead of one of the most interesting experiments in radio today.

Lanny, as you probably don't remember, got his name plastered all over the newspapers way back in 1928 when he was a student at Yale. At that time he was one of the world's greatest trackmen and one of the world's greatest fair-to-middling tenors. He was chosen for the Olympic team but thousands of Americans swooned when he chucked it for a chance to go on tour with the Yale Glee Club.

Lanny pointed out at the time that the United States track team needed him a great deal less than the Yale Glee Club and that the Olympics were in the bag for Uncle Sam but the tenor section was giving Old Eli plenty of headaches. In both cases Lanny proved accurate. The Yanks won the Olympics without his flying feet and the Glee Club finished the tour nicely with the aid of his talented vocal chords.

Lanny got his professional radio start singing with the "Highlanders," a Yale quartet which was hired by a sponsor who had been an old Blue. They were expected to sing Yale songs, and that they did, but the boys got the gate when it was learned that the number of Yale songs was sufficient only for three programs, even if they did use "Boola-Boola" on every show.

Lanny knocked around for fully ten years, doing extremely well on long shows, but recently he was chosen to take a crack at that afternoon serial problem. He was put on to sing three times a week, right in the middle of the serials.

That was only a short few months ago. Today Lanny is in there every day of the week except Saturday and Sunday, singing for 15 minutes at 2 o'clock and the show is one of the most successful in radio.

NUTS AND JOLTS

THE DRAGON'S TEETH
By ELLERY QUEEN

Chapter 28

WITH VI clinging to her, Kerrie was marched away, and soon only Capt. Angus, the San Francisco man, De Carlos, Beau, and Ellery were left.

"You'll excuse me, too," said Edmund De Carlos, slapping his wig on his skull. "Captain, you're my guest while in New York—don't forget." He stamped to the door. Then he turned and with a malevolent grin said: "And thank you, gentlemen, for the shave."

But Beau sprang like a cat, forestalling him. "No, you don't," he snarled. "You stay!"

He turned, surprised. Mr. Queen had suddenly begun to laugh. He laughed so hard that he doubled up, clutching his abdomen as he sank into the swivel-chair behind his desk.

"YOU'RE BOTH mad," exclaimed Mr. Edmund De Carlos. "Get out of my way."

"What?" said Beau blankly, watching Ellery.

"If you don't let me go, I'll have you arrested!"

Capt. Angus scraped his lean jaws, concealing a smile. "This looks like a private fight. So if you gentlemen will excuse me—"

Mr. Queen wiped his streaming eyes. "Please be good enough to remain, Captain," he gasped. He began to laugh again.

"What's so funny about what?" growled Beau. "Anybody would think what happened here tonight's a joke!"

"It is. Oh, it is, Beau. A great joke, and it's on me." Mr. Queen sighed and wiped his eyes once more. "I'd appreciate your remaining too, Mr. De Carlos."

"I don't see why I should!"

"Because I ask you to," said Mr. Queen, smiling. He stared at De Carlos, who clicked his plate agitatedly. "Sit down, gentlemen; sit down. There's no reason why we shouldn't discuss this fiasco like civilized people. Drink?"

Capt. Angus brightened. "Now, that's different."

Ellery produced a fresh bottle of Scotch and several glasses from a desk-drawer. The captain flung his coat and hat aside, drew up a chair, and accepted a glass companionably.

"You, too, Mr. De Carlos," said Mr. Queen. "Oh, forget it, man! Mistakes will happen in the best-regulated detective agencies."

He smiled so disarmingly, and the bottle gave off such a warmly inviting glow under the lamps, that Mr. De Carlos, although surlily, sat down and accepted a glass, too.

"Beau?"

"Don't I look as if I could use one?" Beau asked disgustedly.

"On that basis, you ought to appropriate the bottle. Gentlemen, a toast! To Logic—never sell her short!" Mr. Queen drank and then beamed at them all.

"Where do we go from here?" grunted Beau. "There's Kerrie back in stir, and we're as far from an answer as we ever were."

"Not quite." Mr. Queen leaned back and surveyed them with bright eyes. "Not quite, Beau. This little experience has taught me a lesson: Always trust the dictates of pure reason. The little voice warned me, and I was very rude. Ignored him. Completely. Shame on me."

De Carlos suddenly helped himself to another glassful, which he tossed down with a jerk.

"I told you, Beau," continued Mr. Queen, his eyes on De Carlos, "that there was one discrepancy in the array of facts at our disposal which bothered me. But the identification of poor old De Carlos here as Cadmus Cole seemed so indisputable that it made me commit the unforgivable sin . . . the sanctioning of a showdown before the case was complete to the last comma. It embarrassed Mr. De Carlos, it embarrassed me, and as for Inspector Queen, my doting parent," he grimaced, "wait until he gets me alone within the four walls of our loving home. Did you see his expression as he left?"

"I saw it," groaned Beau. "But, Ellery, how in God's name could we have been wrong? I still don't see—"

"We based our conclusion that De Carlos was really Cole on three points; his possession of Cole's fountain pen, his perfect resemblance to the man who visited us in this office three months ago, once you eliminated the false teeth, wig, glasses and beard, and the crusher—the incontrovertible fact that the handwriting of both persons was identical."

"Do you really need me?" muttered De Carlos. "I'd prefer—"

"Another drink, Mr. De Carlos?" asked Mr. Queen, glancing at him, and De Carlos reached quickly for the bottle again. "Now the first point, the fountain pen, was the least decisive of the three . . . a leading, or build-up, point. And yet it was in this point that the discrepancy lay."

"What discrepancy?" howled Beau.

"Why, the fact that those peculiar markings on the cap of the pen could only have been made by teeth. Of course, you saw that, Beau? Those arced patterns of dents? Those deep nicks in the hard rubber composition? It was obvious that the markings were impressed into the cap by some one who was in the habit of chewing on the end of his fountain pen."

"Why, sure," said Beau. "So what?"

"The man who used the pen that day in our office was presumably the owner of the pen, and the owner of the pen was unquestionably in the habit of chewing on it. And yet the man who used the pen that day, the man who called himself Cadmus Cole, didn't have a tooth in his mouth!

"And that was the discrepancy, for I asked myself, not once but dozens of times, and finally wound up by ignoring the question: How can a toothless man make teeth-marks on the cap of a fountain-pen?"

CAPTAIN ANGUS poured another drink for himself; but at the sight of De Carlos's face he suddenly offered the glass to the bald man. De Carlos accepted it and drank with a sort of desperation; and the captain's eyes grew colder.

"But De Carlos wears false teeth," protested Beau. "Couldn't those marks have been made by false teeth as well as by real teeth?"

"As a matter of fact," retorted Mr. Queen, "they couldn't have been—not by Mr. De Carlos' false teeth, at any rate."

"Why not?"

"Skip it. Let's examine, or rather reexamine, the second point: our identification of De Carlos as Cole on the basis of exact facial and physical similarity."

"But we were wrong. The captain has identified De Carlos as De Carlos, not as Cole."

"That's right," nodded the captain. "He is De Carlos."

"I am De Carlos," said De Carlos defiantly, glaring about.

"You are De Carlos," said Mr. Queen in a soft tone. "Exactly. But there is still no doubt, Mr. De Carlos, that the man who visited us three months ago looked exactly like you. Consequently, I must revise our former conclusion. We said that since Cole came that day, and since you look exactly like Cole, then you must be Cole. Now I say that since you are De Carlos, and since the man who visited us three months ago looked exactly like De Carlos, then the man who visited us three months ago was De Carlos!"

"You mean," boomed Captain Angus, "that De Carlos came here three months ago and posed as Mr. Cole?".

"Precisely."

"I'll be damned," gasped Beau.

"Let's rather stick to the point," murmured Mr. Queen. "That's the revised conclusion, gentlemen, and it's the correct conclusion. It also clears up another point that troubled me.

"The man who introduced himself to us as Cadmus Cole came to hire our services. When I asked him, not unreasonably, what we had been hired for, he refused to say.

"Later we discovered that we had been engaged for the simplest possible task—merely to locate a couple of missing heirs. That only deepened the mystery. Why did Cole originally refuse to tell us what he was hiring us for, when it was merely to find two missing heirs?

"But now," grinned Mr. Queen, "you grasp the confirmation of my thesis. Cole made a mystery of why he was hiring us because he didn't know why himself! But how could Cole not know? Only in one way: if he wasn't Cole, but some one else!"

De Carlos took still another drink with trembling fingers. His cheeks, where the beard had just been shaven, were deathly pale; his cheekbones and nose, however, were bright red.

"So he was a crook after all," remarked Capt. Angus reflectively. "I always suspected it. Sneaky sort. Couldn't look you in the eye." He roared suddenly at De Carlos: "What did you have up your sleeve that time, you black shark?"

"I think I can guess," said Mr. Queen gently. "The secret of his Cole impersonation three months ago lies in his character. He can carry out orders admirably. He can execute a plan concoted by some one else with remarkable efficiency. But, like most men who are trained to unquestioning obedience, he came a cropper when he pushed out on his own. Isn't that so, Mr. De Carlos?

"You knew Cole had made out his will, that he was suffering from heart disease. Cole may even have told you that he felt he had only a short time to live and would probably not return from that last West Indian cruise alive. So he sent you into town to deliver his sealed will to Goossens, with orders to stop in at our office as well and engage Ellery Queen for an unstated investigation. That worried you, Mr. De Carlos. What investigation? But you were too discreet to ask Cole. You were worried and you didn't ask Cole for the same reason: you had prepared a little scheme of your own. And that scheme necessitated impersonating your employer, didn't it?"

De Carlos burst out: "You know that, but you don't know why! The captain could tell you—he knew Cole as well as I did. He was a devil, a—a snake, that man!"

"He had his moments," admitted Capt. Angus with a grim nod.

"FOR YEARS before his death," said De Carlos hoarsely, "he amused himself with me. He'd tell me he knew why I was sticking to him so faithfully—why I kept living that ghastly living death at sea." His face was a uniform mauve now, suffused with passion. "He'd say it was because I expected to come into his fortune when he died. And then he'd laugh and say he was going to change his mind and say he wouldn't leave me a cent. He kept me on a hook like that for years, playing me like a fish!"

Mr. Queen glanced inquiringly at Capt. Angus, and the captain nodded. "It's true. I'll give him that."

"Things got worse between us," cried De Carlos. "The last few months he played only one tune—that he'd leave me nothing. I guess he liked to see me try to act indifferent about it, the old devil! When he made out his will—it was the very first document of his I knew nothing about. He had Angus write it out for him. He wouldn't let me stay in the cabin. So I didn't even know what the will said."

"That's so," said the captain. "Mr. Cole called me in and dictated his will. I wrote it out in longhand and then, when it was corrected to his satisfaction, he had me type it out. He made me burn the handwritten draft, and he was laughing."

"I was frantic," said De Carlos, clasping and unclasping his hands. "I saw all those years, alone with him, taking his orders, knuckling under to him, enduring his bad temper, having to act a part all the time—wasted, all wasted! Because he didn't have me make out the will and even kept me out of the cabin, I was positive he had cut me off without a cent. He even said to me when he handed me the sealed will to take ashore: 'Don't open it, Edmund. Remember! I've enclosed instructions for the lawyer to examine the seal very carefully—to see if it's been tampered with.' And he laughed that ugly barking laugh of his, as if it were a great joke."

"Of course that wasn't true about the instructions," said Mr. Queen. "He was toying with you, trying to make you squirm."

De Carlos nodded, seizing the bottle. He drank deeply and set the bottle down with a bang. "That was when I made my plan," he said defiantly. "It wasn't very clear. I was half-crazy . . . Who knew Cole personally? I said to myself. Nobody but Angus and I and the crew had seen him for 18 years. If Cole died at sea and Angus was willing to throw in with me, why, we could buy off the crew and the two of us could come back and say it was De Carlos who died and was buried at sea. Because I'd take over the role of Cole! Nobody would be the wiser, and Angus and I would divide something like 50,000,000."

He stopped short, frightened by Capt. Angus' expression. The seaman seized De Carlos by the collar and said in a low voice: "You dirty rascal. Tell these men this is the first I've ever heard of that thieving plan—tell 'em, or I'll make you wish you'd never been born!"

"No, no, I didn't mean to imply—" began De Carlos hurriedly. "Mr. Queen, Mr. Rummell, I assure you . . . the Captain didn't have the faintest idea of what I had in mind. I hadn't spoken to him about it at all!"

"That's better," scowled the Captain, and he sat down again and helped himself quietly to another drink.

"I see," murmured Mr. Queen. "So that's why you impersonated Cole—shaved the gray fringe off your skull, removed your glasses, your dental plate. Made up that way, you corresponded roughly to Cole. Later, when you expected to return, after Cole died at sea, with the story that De Carlos had died, you'd pass yourself off as Cole and there would be three people at least prepared to swear in all sincerity that you were Cole—the three people you had visited ashore in the guise of Cole, Goossens, Rummell, and myself. Grandoise in conception, Mr. De Carlos, but a little optimistic, wasn't it?"

Bill to Punish Gas Sale Fraud Is Disapproved

Commissioners Turn Down Measure To Penalize Dealers

The Commissioners have disapproved a bill which would authorize the superintendent of weights and measures to prosecute gasoline dealers for selling inferior fuel under the guise of a "high test" product, it was revealed yesterday.

Proposed by George M. Roberts, superintendent of the division, the measure also would provide a $7,500 laboratory to set up standards for fuel. This is the second time the Commissioners have disapproved the bill. It was first brought to them by Roberts in April, 1939, and disapproved the next month. Their recent action was taken January 18.

Roberts last night declared he had not been informed either of the disapproval last year or this.

Yesterday Roberts met with Commissioner Hazen, requesting action on some new regulations which would require food dealers of all types and gasoline dealers to receive his approval before they could obtain District licenses to operate.

A similar regulation now governs coal dealers. The proposed regulation would include grocers, restaurants, butchers, and the like.

Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, yesterday repeated that he was determined to investigate the local gasoline industry in view of the report made by Roberts that of 83 test purchases of gasoline 27 per cent were found to be other than as represented by the dealer. Nichols will request an investigation when the House District Committee meets Monday, he said.

Route 60 Section Closed in State To Heavy Traffic

Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—An entire section of Route 60 extending from Amherst to Buena Vista was ordered closed to heavy traffic today because of possible damage to the road foundations following a quick thaw.

In announcing the restriction, District Highway Engineer Kenneth G. McWane said the important traffic artery is closed now to trucks of 5 tons gross weight or more all the way from Buena Vista to Richmond.

"We have no idea when restrictions will be lifted on any of the roads," he said. "If the foundations continue to dry out, the restrictions may be lifted in a few days, but if they freeze again and another quick thaw occurs, opening will have to be delayed."

Charlotte Hall Alumni To Give Fete Tonight

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., Feb. 9.—The Alumni Association of the Charlotte Hall Military Academy will hold its annual midwinter banquet in the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore, tomorrow night.

Senator George L. Radcliffe will be the speaker. Members of the current cadet corps, led by Maj. M. D. Burgee, headmaster, will be present.

Otto F. Hopkins, of Washington, is president of the association, while T. Ormond Nichols, of Bethesda, Md., is secretary.

British Captain Says War Has People Singing 'Round Piano

Capt. C. W. R. Knight, who lectured before the National Geographic Society last night, introduces to Dorothy Schwenk, at the society's headquarters, his eagle, Wing Commander Ramshaw

Officer of Queen's Regiment, Here to Talk, Declares Conflict and Blackout Brought Revival of Many Oldtime Tunes

Capt. C. W. R. Knight, M. C., late of the Queen's Own Royal West Kent Regiment and owner of Wing Commander Mr. Ramshaw, a golden eagle, observed here yesterday that the war has encouraged people to stay at home and sing around the piano.

A very wholesome thing, he went on informally before his lecture for the National Geographic Society last night. The blackouts came and people stay at home. "They have revived 'Oh, Johnny,' and sing 'South of the Border,' particularly good with a few ales!"

The captain, a large, graying man with a voice as salty as an English cost wind, regarded Wing Commander Ramshaw that was perched on the back of a chair, and he grew wistful. It was this way:

He had been training Wing Commander Ramshaw and three other eagles on the meadows of peaceful Kent, his home, "when all the activity became affected by this unfortunate situation."

"I was living in peaceful Kent," the captain went on, "working at falconry and with Wing Commander Ramshaw when the war came along. Unhappily, our studies came to an unfortunate end.

"Where the eagles alighted upon the hares, there now are antiaircraft guns;" his associates are gone into the services "and the eagles are evacuated," he said.

But Capt. Knight reports the British chin wel up. In areas where enemy aircraft has penetrated the people go to the rooftops to watch and people look from the streets. Someone commented about the daring of it.

"Why, old boy, there's nothing so surprising about that,' the captain boomed. 'He (Hitler) said he would send 3,000 planes over us. Didn't he? But they haven't harmed us yet. Three thousands planes! That would take a lot of petrol, old boy."

State Auto Head To Seek Change In License Law

Richmond, Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—Col. Marion S. Battle, director of the State division of motor vehicles, said today the division probably would sponsor legislation in the General Assembly within the next week to change the license law requirements affecting motor vehicle transfers to Virginia.

Col. Battle's disclosure was prompted by a letter from Admiral J. K. Taussig of the Norfolk Navy Base, who said several hundred men transferred to the Norfolk area from California faced the prospect of having to buy 1939 Virginia auto tags at half the yearly rate because the 1940 tags were not obtainable until March 15. The 1939 California tags expired February 4.

The motor vehicle division is studying the problem in the hope of remedying the situation, the director said, but at present "no exceptions may be made under the law" and any change in the ruling would require legislative action.

Squalus Diver Will Get Navy Cross for Heroism

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—The Navy Cross, awarded by President Roosevelt, will be presented tomorrow at the Naval Operating Base to Osco Havens, shipfitter first class, for the "extraordinary heroism in the line of his profession as a diver during the rescue and salvage operations following the sinking of the U. S. S. Squalus May 23, 1939."

The presentation will be made by Capt. H. A. McClure, commanding officer of the Norfolk Naval Training Station and Receiving Station, at brief ceremonies to be at Unit D.

At present, 160 youths are employed on NYA activities in Caroline County.

Jewish Parley To Hear Plight Of Oppressed

400 to Get Reports On European Situation At Meeting Tonight

Approximately 400 delegates, representing 20 States, will participate in the session of the American Jewish Congress opening tonight at the Willard Hotel, when the situation of Jews in Europe and America will be discussed on the basis of two reports to be rendered by representatives of European Jewry.

The conference is the first to be called by the youth group since the outbreak of the present European war. It will consider the effects of war on 7,000,000 Jews in Europe and "plan some means of ending their oppression now and of bringing about the eventual restoration to them of their rights after peace," the conference announcement said.

To Report on Europe

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman, administrative committee of the World Jewish Congress, and Dr. Maurice L. Perlzweig, chairman of the British section of the same agency, will present the reports on the Jewish situation in Europe. Dr. Goldmann will be heard tonight at 8 o'clock, along with Louis Lipsky, vice president of the Congress.

The Washington community will extend greetings through Lawrence Koenigsberger, chairman of the Washington Council of the Congress.

Tomorrow's Speakers

Dr. Perlzweig and Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, will be heard at the Sunday afternoon session, Sunday at 7 p. m. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Senator Warren D. Barbour, of New Jersey; Vladimir Hurban, the Czecho-Slovakian Minister to the United States, and Dr. Goldman will speak at a dinner at the Willard. Dr. Wise will preside.

The Monday sessions will center on the American situation of the Jews, featuring a luncheon symposium on good neighbor relations. Participating will be Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington; Senator James M. Mead, of New York, and Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore.

County Finishes 3 Miles of Survey Of Border Lines

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 9.—Three miles of the boundary line between Washington and Frederick counties have been resurveyed, County Surveyor Edward M. Schindel announced. Schindel expects the costs to run about $35 per mile. This is the first survey in 116 years and many of the original markers, such as trees and piles of stone, are missing.

Frederick County officials, who conferred with officials of Washington County last year, have indicated that that county may not continue the resurvey because it would entail more expense than it is worth to the county. Another conference will be sought by local officials. Several years ago a man was arrested for dipnetting in the Potomac River on the Frederick County side. It was later found that the fisherman was not guilty, as he had been fishing in Washington County.

Barksdale to Take Oath As Federal Judge Today

South Boston, Va., Feb. 9 (AP).—Judge Alfred Dickerson Barksdale of Lynchburg will be sworn in as a Federal judge of the Western District of Virginia at ceremonies at noon Saturday in the Halifax courthouse, where his father, Judge William Randolph Barksdale, presided for 47 years, until 1925.

Appointed by President Roosevelt after the elevation of Judge Armistead Dobie to a Federal circuit judgeship, Judge Barksdale will be sworn in by Thomas J. O'Brien, United States commissioner.

Rossiter Wins Liquor License Renewal

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday voted to renew the license of Leo J. Rossiter after a split vote among its members had held up the license for eight days.

William P. Meredith, new member of the board, whose approval yesterday paved the way for the renewal, said he thought "it is unfair to refuse to reissue his license in absence of any change in conditions or sentiment since the granting of the license."

At a previous hearing Thomas E. Lodge, chairman of the board, had voted to deny renewal, and Mrs. Agnes K. Mason voted for renewal. The late Isaac Gans, member of the board at the original hearing two weeks ago, did not vote on the issue.

A new hearing was granted after an appeal by Rossiter's attorney and a Congressional order of an investigation of the A. B. C. Board.

The renewal of the license for Rossiter's Restaurant, at 4132 Georgia avenue northwest, had been vigorously opposed by various Petworth civic, religious and school groups. The new hearing was held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

During the hearing Rossiter testified he had pledged some $30,000 for remodeling his place, before the renewal question came up.

Meredith said his decision might have been different "if this was an original application or a license for the first time, but since this board in January, 1939, determined that it was a proper location and that the license should issue."
